Cropland classified as highly erodible is defined as land in capability classes II-V, eroding at higher than three times the soil loss tolerance, or land in capability classes VI-VIII. For retiring such land from crop production, Hummel said farmers will receive annual rental payments, based on a bid, of up to $50,000 per year in cash or commodities and one-half the expenses of establishing the permanent vegetative cover on the land.

"Rental payments will be made annually as soon as possible after October 1 of each calendar year," said Hummel. "Cost-sharing payments will be made as soon as possible after individual participants report the approved conservation treatment is completed."

He said farmers who decide to return land to production during the 10-year contract period must repay the government, with interest, all of its costs for annual rental and for establishing cover. In the event of national need, however, the Secretary of Agriculture may declare that any farmer who wants to return the land to production may do so without penalty.

"USDA will retire only the most highly erodible land under the Conservation Reserve Program," Hummel said. Approximately 242,000 acres of Maryland cropland are eligible for the program.

Farmers who are interested in the program should contact the county ASCS Office in the Garrett County Courthouse.

Livestock Slaughter Down From Last Year

Red meat production in December, based on dressed weights, totaled 5.7 million pounds in Maryland and Delaware, up 11 percent from November but down four percent compared to last year. Changes in liveweight produced during December 1985 compared to a year earlier were: cattle up two percent, calves, down 18 percent, hogs, down 13 percent; sheep and lambs down 45 percent.

Nationally, commercial red meat production in December, based on dressed weights, totaled 3.1 billion pounds up one percent from last month and up one percent from a year ago.

Southern States Plans Regional Board Meeting

Members of Southern States Cooperative's local boards and committees, the cooperative's retail managers and agricultural workers will attend a regional board meeting to be held by the cooperative at Will O' The Wisp in Oakland on February 26.

Invited to attend from this area are the elected representatives of Bruceton Farm Service, Accident; Eglon Farm Service, Eglon, W.Va.; Southern States Cooperative-Grantsville Service, Grantsville; and Southern States Oakland Co-operative, Oakland.

Also attending the session will be a number of guest young farmers from this area.

A total of 36 of these regional meetings will be held by Southern States over a five-state area. The cooperative serves farmer-members who live in Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and Kentucky.

Dr. Marvin R. McClung of Morgantown, W.Va., a member of the cooperative's 15-man board of directors, will preside at the session. Registration for the meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Robert W. Taylor, vice president and controller of the cooperative, will present the financial report for the first six months of the co-op's current fiscal year.

Also featured at the session will be a videotape presentation entitled "What if . . .?" which points out the importance of the cooperative to members in the operation of their farms.

Another major part of the program is entitled "Ag Outlook '86." Taylor will take a look at what the future holds for agriculture, while Wayne Harman of Clarksburg, W.Va., a regional manager of the co-op, will discuss Southern States' community operations.

There will also be the presentation of awards to retail managers for their performance in the organization's Operation Image Program.

The meeting will adjourn following lunch provided by the cooperative.

Apple Production Unchanged From '84

Utilized apple production for 1985 totaled 80-million pounds for Maryland growers. This is unchanged from 1984. Value of production at $10.65 million rose 17 percent on a price rise of 1.9 cents per pound.

U.S. commercial apple production totaled 7.81 billion pounds in 1985, six percent below the previous year's crop, and seven percent more than the 1983 crop. Of the total production, 7.72 billion pounds were utilized, seven percent less than in 1984. There was 2.99 billion pounds utilized in the east.

FFA
LEADERS FOR THE NEW FIELDS OF AGRICULTURE

Next week, February 15 through 22, is National FFA Week, and both the North Garrett and the Oakland FFA Chapters have planned special activities to celebrate the event.

The North Garrett Chapter has been hampered this year somewhat by the renovations taking place at Northern High School, according to Advisor Harold Loughrie. Doing the best they can in the French room, they hope to be back in the Vo-Ag Classroom after Easter vacation. The students still have the use of the greenhouses but everything else has been stored away until the renovations are completed, making it difficult to conduct business as usual.

Chapter Reporter Mark Rodeheaver served as the committee chairman to plan FFA Week activities. One day during the week will be a "jacket day" when all FFA members will wear their FFA jackets to the day's classes.

As FFA publicity, the chapter will distribute ballpoint pens and litter bags with the FFA insignia to Northern High School faculty members and FFA sponsors.

To finish out the week, the students will deliver hoagies on Saturday. Orders can still be placed for hoagies until Friday, February 14, by calling any North Garrett FFA member.

Members of the Oakland FFA Chapter will begin the week by driving farm tractors to school on Tuesday. Wednesday will be official dress day, and the chapter officers will serve cherry pie and ice cream to the school faculty.

In honor of the first president of the United States, one of FFA's mentors, the chapter will hold a George Washington look-alike contest on Thursday with prizes being awarded the winners.

The week will end Friday with another official dress day. A bulletin board will be on display during the week in the school entrance by chapter members explaining many of the activities FFA members take part in.

FFA has always been intertwined with vocational agriculture education in the public schools, and began nearly a century ago when many farm youth had lost hope in the future of agriculture.

That was the year 1890. The frontier was declared officially closed by the director of the census, and American agriculture was in the depths of a depression.

Just a few years earlier, agriculture was booming, the result of vast areas of land in the Western Plains being brought into production, coupled with revolutionary developments in farm production techniques and the development of farm machinery.

Discouraged by low commodity prices, high production costs and mounting debt, farm youth began migrating to the cities in droves.

Concerned about the effect this mass migration might have on rural life and the country's agricultural base, public leaders moved into action. By the turn of the century, vocational training programs in agriculture below the college level were growing in numbers. And several states, through legislative action, added vocational agriculture to high school curricula.

Then, in 1914, Congress passed the Smith-Lever Act that established the Agricultural Extension Service. Although its outreach programs went a long way in bringing agricultural knowledge from the colleges and Agricultural Experiment Stations to rural communities, a systematic instruction program for farm youth was still needed.

By 1917, the need was met with passage of the Smith-Hughes Act, which provided funds for a nationwide program of vocational education in agriculture for high school students, out-of-school students and adult farmers.

States quickly adopted the provisions of the Smith-Hughes Act, and by 1922, 48 states were offering vocational agriculture courses in high schools.

About the same time that vocational agriculture classes were being added to high school course offerings, agricultural clubs began to spring up.

The trend probably caught on because farm boys had chores to do at home and couldn't participate in most school activities. So the idea of an organization that fitted their interests, needs and schedules had great appeal.

A popular activity among the early vocational agriculture classes was livestock judging contests. Soon statewide judging contests were organized, which led to the first National Vocational Dairy Cattle Judging Contest held at the National Dairy Show at Indianapolis, Indiana, in 1925, with representatives from 17 states participating.

The success of this first national judging contest led the next year to Kansas City, the American Royal Livestock and Horse Show, and the first national livestock judging contest.

The event was officially called the National Congress of Vocational Agriculture Students and was the forerunner of the National FFA Convention.

As the movement to organize vocational agriculture students spread across the country, a Virginia organization emerged as an influential leader.

The man credited with much of the success of the Future Farmers of Virginia (FFV) was Henry C. Groseclose. In 1926, he wrote the constitution and by-laws for the FFV, which later became the basis for the national organization and earned for Groseclose recognition as the father of FFA.

By 1928, the goal of a national organization of vocational agriculture students was realized. The first National FFA Convention was held at the Baltimore Hotel in Kansas City, Missouri, on November 20, 1928, in conjunction with the American Royal Livestock Show and the National Congress of Vocational Agriculture Students. Eighteen states were represented at that first convention with 33 official delegates.

Once the foundation for the FFA was established, the organization quickly grew and developed. During the first year, the Star Farmer of America program was developed, and the first award was won in 1929 by Carlton Patton of Arkansas.

The next year, 1930, E.M. Tiffany wrote the FFA Creed and it was approved by delegates at the National FFA Convention. That same year, the first FFA Manual was published.

And by 1933, the familiar blue corduroy jacket was adopted as the official dress uniform by national convention delegates.

In 1939, with plans for a national FFA camp on the drawing board, the FFA purchased a 28 and one-half acre tract of land in Alexandria, Virginia, that had formerly been a part of the estate owned by a famous agriculturalist in the country's history—George Washington. The site later became the home of the National FFA Center.

By the time the FFA reached its 25th anniversary in 1953, the National FFA Foundation had been established to coordinate and raise funds for the growing number of activities and programs; FFA had been officially recognized by Congress with a Federal Charter; the National FFA Band and the National FFA Chorus were mainstays of the National FFA Convention; the FFA Code of Ethics had been adopted; and "The National Future Farmer" magazine was one year old.

By the time the FFA reached 50, the New Farmers of America, an organization of black vocational agriculure students, had merged with the FFA. Young women were also accepted as members.

The Star Agribusinessman of America award was established, reflecting the rapid changes taking place in agriculture and the growing number of new career opportunities.

Learning to Do
Doing to Learn
Earning to Live
Living to Serve

The National FFA Alumni Association was established and, by its 58th year, all 50 states plus Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia had chartered state associations.

Recounting the history of the organization tells the chronological story of how vocational agriculture education and the FFA grew and developed, but does little to give the true flavor of what has transpired with the creative energies of thousands of young people working and learning together.

Now in its 58th year, the FFA has played a major role not only in training young people for careers in agricultural production and agribusiness, but has trained them to become achievers and leaders.

Some have grown up to become national leaders in government, industry and even entertainment, like former President Jimmy Carter, Secretary of Agriculture John Block and country music entertainer Willie Nelson.

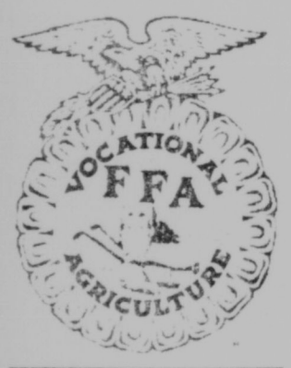
The creative energies and the dedication to the aims, goals and principles have made vocational agriculture and the FFA flourish during the past 58 years.

Looking ahead, vocational agriculture education and the FFA can be counted on to continue the tradition of excellence in education and in training leaders for the new fields of agriculture.

THE FFA EMBLEM

The familiar FFA Emblem is made up of five symbols that depict the organization's purpose.

The emblem's background is formed by a cross-section of an ear of corn. Corn represents common agricultural interests because corn is native to America and grown in every state.

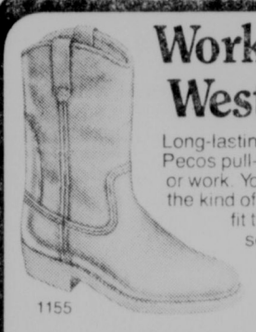


The rising sun in the center of the emblem symbolizes progress in agriculture and the confidence that all FFA members have in the future.

The plow is the symbol of labor and tillage of the soil.

The owl symbolizes wisdom and knowledge.

The American eagle atop the cross-section of corn is symbolic of the national scope of FFA.



The words Vocational Agriculture surrounding the letters FFA tell us that FFA is an important part of the vocational agriculture/agribusiness program.

Gramm-Rudman Cuts Will Not Affect "Buyout"

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced late last week that payments under the dairy termination program are not subject to sequestering under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, known as the Gramm–Rudman-Hollings amendment.

Under Secretary of Agriculture, Daniel Amstutz said these payments to milk producers under the dairy termination program will not be reduced because of the special rules applicable to the Commodity Credit Corporation under this act.

Signup runs from February 10 through March 7 for the program which gives the dairy producer the opportunity to terminate milk production and dispose of the producers' whole herd by selling for slaughter or export all the female dairy cattle in which the producer has a financial interest.

Program provisions include the following:

The incentive to terminate production is a payment based on the producer's history of milk marketings and the bid which is offered by the producer to cease production.

Herd disposition will take place over an 18-month period. Program payments will be made over a five-year period, beginning after disposition of the herd.

If a producer's bid is accepted, the producer may not: engage in the production of milk for commercial use for five years; acquire or retain any interest in dairy cattle or the production of milk; acquire any milk production facility that becomes available because of the dairy termination program; or make available any milk production facility to any person for the purpose of producing milk.

Those interested in participating in the program may submit a dollars-per-hundredweight-milk bid, based on their base period milk marketings, as adjusted if appropriate. They must offer evidence of the size and composition of their dairy herds (cows, heifers and calves) for three dates: January 1, 1985; January 1, 1986; and on the date that the bid is submitted.

The producer's base period milk marketings will be the lesser of the commercial milk marketings in two 12-month periods—one beginning July 1984, the other beginning January 1985. Bids will be evaluated based on production during the base period and not on prospective production. There will be no upward adjustments.

Producers may submit bids for one or more of the following disposal periods: April 1—August 31, 1986; September 1, 1986—February 28, 1987; March 1—August 31, 1987. Disposal periods represent the times during which producers contract to dispose of their female dairy cattle through either slaughter or export.

Dairy cows and bred heifers sold by milk producers for slaughter must be slaughtered within 15 days from the date of sale, but not later than the final day of the contract disposal period. Other dairy cattle such as unbred heifers and calves sold for slaughter must be slaughtered within six months from the date of sale, but not later than the final day of the contract disposal period, except that for the initial disposal period such slaughter must occur no later than September 30, 1986.

The contracting producer's dairy cattle must be branded as specified by USDA. With the sale of the cattle, the producer must certify the following information on forms provided by the county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office: head of cattle by type (cows, heifers and calves); date of sale, weight and price received. Certifications must be signed by the seller, the buyer, and the slaughterer or exporter of the dairy cattle.

Successful bidders may elect one of two options to receive cash payments under the program. Under the first option, producers may receive up to 80 percent of their payments in the first year following herd disposition with the remainder paid in four equal annual installments thereafter. This option would permit the producer to receive payments in five equal installments by choosing a 20 percent payment as the first payment. Under the second option, a producer may choose to receive, as an initial payment, up to 85 percent of the payment in the second year following the herd disposition with the remainder paid in three equal annual installments thereafter.

UM Researchers Counter RFM Syndrome In Dairy Cattle

Scientists at the University of Maryland say they have found a way to prevent dairy cows from retaining fetal afterbirth following induced calving.

When the technique is developed for all calvings, it could spell a savings of millions of dollars for Maryland dairy producers alone.

The problem, also called "retained fetal membrane syndrome," is a national one that occurs in up to 30 percent of all natural births of dairy calves and in 90 percent of all births that are deliberately induced. Researchers estimate that the problem causes a $15-million-a-year loss for the nation's dairy industry.

Researchers Timothy S. Gross and Walter F. Williams injected expectant heifers with a synthetic corticoid called "dexamethasone" five to seven days before the cows were scheduled to give birth to their calves.

A synthetic corticoid is a man-made drug that produces a response in the cow's body to inflammation. The drug induces calving within 36-48 hours, according to Gross, who will receive his Ph.D. in animal sciences this spring.

Within one hour of birth, cows in the experimental group received an injection of "prostaglandin," a naturally-occurring fatty acid compound that helps to regulate body functions such as reproduction. Cows in a control group were given saline injections instead of prostaglandin.

Of those cows in the experimental group, only nine percent suffered from retained fetal membrane syndrome, while 91 percent of those untreated cows in a control group fell victim to the syndrome.

"When a dairy cow retains its placenta, or fetal membranes, the tissue starts to rot inside the animal and that causes uterine infection and a loss of milk production," Gross said.

"The cow then requires the attention of a veterinarian. That not only means increased medical costs, but it usually means that antibiotics are necessary. And anytime you introduce antibiotics to a dairy cow, that cow's milk cannot be sold for human consumption," he said.

"But most important, retained placenta means you cannot get that animal back into its normal breeding cycle, which is critical for dairy producers who want to keep their animals pregnant as much as possible to maintain optimum milk production," he added.

Gross's work is especially good news to dairy farmers for one other reason—improved management.

After additional testing, the experimental procedure could help farmers induce calving without the recurring problems of placenta retention

The ability to induce birth is useful to farmers, says Gross, because often several cows are due to calve at the same time. And usually that time occurs naturally in the late evening or very early morning when a farmer is not present to lend assistance.

Before the procedure can be adopted industry-wide, it will require more testing. "It (the procedure) has some limitations right now," says Gross. "If the cow gets the injection of prostaglandin more than one hour after calving, it will still retain its placenta. And under those circumstances, a farmer would have to be very quick to see a birth and get an injection into a cow before an hour went by."

1985 Peach Crop Set Back By Frost

Maryland's utilized production of peaches at one million pounds was only six percent of the previous year's 18 million pounds. Extreme winter temperatures with a late frost set the peach crop back. The value of production for 1985's crop was $262,000 down $3.21 million from 1984.

U.S. peach production in 1985 totaled 2.15 billion pounds, of which 2.05 billion pounds were utilized. This was 17 percent below the previous year's utilized total and 17 percent more than 1983.

USDA To Delay Planting Report

The USDA Crop Reporting Service will release its prospective plantings report on March 18 at 3 p.m. EST, rather than February 18 as originally scheduled.

The report will be based on a survey of farmers' spring planting intentions that will be taken around March 1. The monthy delay will allow farmers time to interpret 1986 program provisions of the recently enacted farm bill before being surveyed.

Milk Production Up

The number of milk cows on Maryland farms during December, at 124,000 head, was up 3,000 head from a year ago but unchanged from last month. Milk per cow was up 110 pounds compared to a year ago. Total milk production for December was 144 million pounds, up 13 percent compared to last year.

Maryland dairy farmers fed, on the average, 15.4 pounds of grain and other concentrates per head to their cattle on January 1, up three percent from a year ago. The average cost per cwt. of concentrates declined 55 cents over the past year to $8.

In the United States during December, milk production totaled 12.0 billion pounds, a record high for December and nine percent above December 1984. Accumulated milk production for the year 1985 totaled 143 billion pounds, six percent more than produced in 1984.

Production per cow averaged 1071 pounds during December, 57 pounds above December 1984. The total number of milk cows in herds averaged 11.2 million head, three percent more than December 1984. Grain and other concentrates fed to milk cows on January 1 averaged 16.6 pounds, .7 pounds above January 1, 1985. The value of grain and other concentrates fed on January 1 averaged $7.23 per hundredweight.

A RESOLUTION of the County Commissioners of Garrett County, pursuant to Section 9-648 of the Health-Environmental Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1982 Volume), approving the proposed creation of a service area in Garrett County to be designated the "Shady Acres Sanitary District," and making certain legislative findings in connection therewith.

RECITALS

1. The Garrett County Sanitary Commission (the "Commission"), the governing body of the Garrett County Sanitary District, Inc., has heretofore passed and adopted a resolution (the "Commission Resolution") proposing to create a service area in Garrett County to be designated the "Shady Acres Sanitary District" for the purpose of constructing and operating water and sewerage systems to serve the area described in the Commission Resolution and shown on the plat attached thereto (copies of both of which are attached hereto and incorporated by reference herein), the Commission Resolution having been duly passed and adopted on December 17, 1985.

2. Sections 9-647 and 9-648 of the Health-Environmental Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1982 Volume) provide that the governing body of the County in which the proposed service area is located shall hold a public hearing to consider the proposed service area and may approve the creation of the proposed service area if it finds that the creation is necessary for the public health, safety and welfare of the residents of the proposed service area and is feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint.

3. The Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County (the "Board"), which is the governing body of County Commissioners of Garrett County (the "County"), held a public hearing on January 14, 1986 at 4:00 p.m. in the Commissioners' meeting room at the Garrett County Courthouse, 203 South Fourth Street, Oakland, Maryland, to consider the proposed creation of the Shady Acres Sanitary District, notice of the public hearing having been published on January 2nd and 9th, 1986 in The Republican, a newspaper of general circulation in the County.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF GARRETT COUNTY:

.1 The Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County finds that the creation of the Shady Acres Sanitary District is necessary for the public health, safety and welfare of the residents of that service area and is feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint, and concurs in the judgment of the Commission to create the Shady Acres Sanitary District as set forth in the Commission Resolution.

2. Based upon the legislative findings set forth in Section I of this Resolution and after considering the views expressed at the public hearing held on January 14, 1986, the Board of County Commissioners of Garrett County approves the creation of the Shady Acres Sanitary District.

3. This resolution shall be effective upon it adoption and the Clerk shall immediately file an executed copy of this Resolution with the Clerk of the Circuit Court for Garrett County and shall cause the title of this Resolution, which constitutes a fair summary thereof, to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in the County.

Adopted and certified this 10th day of February, 1986.

Rollman, Orr Join Garrettland

Robert Rollman

Richard Orr

Robert Rollman and Richard Orr recently joined Garrettland Realty as sales associates.

Rollman, a native of Garrett County, is a business school graduate and served as a computer specialist in the U.S. armed services. After returning to Garrett County, he was employed by a local bank as a manager for nine years. He is presently a member of the Garrett County Board of Realtors.

Rollman resides in Mtn. Lake Park with his wife, Nancy, and their two children.

Orr, also a Garrett County native, is a 1976 graduate of Southern High School and attended Frostburg State College for one year. He served as manager of the industrial uniform rental division of Nu-Way Cleaners, Oakland, from 1978-81 and then purchased that division of Nu-Way Cleaners in 1981. After the death of his parents, F. Robert and Mary Lee Orr, in 1983, Richard assumed management of Nu-Way Cleaners until November 1985, at which time his brother and sister-in-law took over the operation. Orr continues to oversee the management of Nu-Way.

Junior Woman's Civic Club Meets At Alpine Lake

The Junior Woman's Civic Club met last Thursday at Alpine Lake Resort, near Terra Alta.

Paula Briggs, physical education teacher at Southern Middle School, demonstrated various aerobic exercies done in the pool. Gary Glover then took the club on a tour of the Exercise Express at Alpine Lake. The door prize, a free one-day use of the pool, hot tub, and sauna, was won by Candy Parsons.

One new member, Ronni Digioia, was initiated into the club. There were also two guests present, Greta Strite and Peggy Jamison.

The club scheduled its annual Community Feud for April 10 at 7 p.m. at Southern High School. Pat Gregg will be master of ceremonies.

The club decided to sell hoagies on February 24. Persons wishing to purchase hoagies are asked to contact Cindy Parsons by February 16.

Donations were made to the following organizations: German Exchange Students, Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad, Oakland Volunteer Fire Department, House of Hope, Summer Recreation Program, Dennett Road Exceptional Children for a field trip, Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home, and Hospice of Garrett County.

The Dance Committee will meet February 18 at 7 p.m. at the home of Teresa Field.

The next regular meeting will be held at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland, at 6:15 p.m. on March 6. Each member is asked to bring a covered German dish for the dinner.

Men's Fellowship Dinner Scheduled

The full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship monthly meeting will be held this Saturday, February 15, at 7 p.m. at the Aurora Fire Hall.

A Valentine's Day sweetheart supper is planned. Reservations are $4.00 and may be made by calling: in Maryland (301) 334-2947 and in West Virginia (304) 735-5150.

Brad Shaffer, Eglon, will be the evening speaker. He and his wife are the owners of the Eglon Handi Mart Gas and Convenience Store, located on Route 24. There is also special music planned.

To Perform At Cherry Glade Church

The Gospel Echoes Harvest Team, Goshen, Ind., will present a musical program at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church this Saturday, February 15, at 7:30 p.m.

Glendon and Lorna Bender, along with daughter, Kristi, serve as team directors. Randy Martin and Delbert Yoder are also members of the team. Their music is accompanied by/with piano and guitars, and focuses on music with a message.

Gospel Echoes Prison Ministry has headquarters in Goshen, Ind., and Kitchener, Ontario.

The teams minister in over 600 services each year throughout the U.S. and Canada. A Bible Study Correspondence Course is a major part of the teams ministry to prisons which includes a network of volunteer graders.

Harvest Team will be sharing their experiences of prison ministry through personal testimonies, gospel music, and a multi-media presentation.

The Cherry Glade Mennonite Church is located on the Accident-Bittinger Road, approximately four miles from Accident. Pastor Elmer H. Maust extends a welcome to everyone to attend this program.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY from the staff of The Republican

Introducing Priazzo™ Verona Italian pie. A classic recipe with meatballs.

We know them as meatballs. But, for centuries, Italians have known them as "polpettas."

Whatever you call them, they're the meaty main ingredient in our delicious, new Priazzo™ Italian pie: Verona.

First, the juicy polpettas (meatballs) are sliced into tender pieces. Then we fill the pie with a flavorful sauce, slices of polpettas, mozzarella and cheddar cheeses, green peppers and onions.

Next, we cover it with a second layer of thin, tasty dough. Then top it with still more cheese. And, finally, bake it to perfection.

Try Priazzo™ Verona — and all our delicious Priazzo™ Italian pies. They're available after 4pm, Monday-Friday and all day Saturday and Sunday at participating Pizza Hut® restaurants. See coupons on reverse side.

© 1985 Pizza Hut, Inc. Priazzo is a trademark of Pizza Hut, Inc. for its brand of Italian Pie.

We finally found a way to improve our Pan Pizza. Top it with one of these coupons.

Since our famous Pan Pizza has always been thick and delicious, the only way we could think of to improve it was to make it cost less.
So cut out the coupon below and enjoy.
We thank you.
And your stomach thanks you.

A & A REALTY

Spring 1986

Volume 4

Published by A&A Realty in Oakland and Deep Creek Lake.
Serving Deep Creek Lake, Garrett County, and surrounding West Virginia.

Welcome to A&A Realty...

The A&A Review is prepared for both visitors and residents of the Deep Creek Lake and Garrett County region by the folks at A&A Realty. As you scan the pages, you'll find they're filled with both interesting information about the region and its many activities, and (of course) you'll get an excellent sampling of the many homes, farms and business locations A&A Realty has to offer.

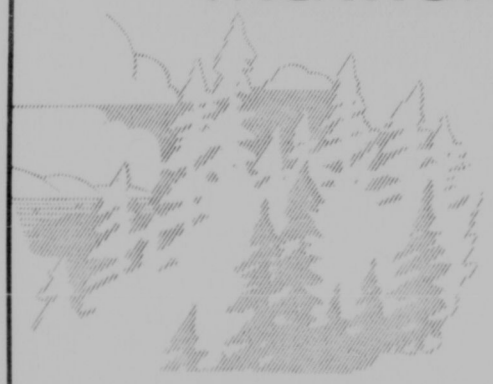
A publication such as this will help you better understand the extensive listings carried by A&A, and our strong commitment to helping provide and build the Deep Creek Lake/Garrett County region.

Further evidence of our commitment can be seen in the fact that we maintain two fully equipped sales offices — one at U.S. 219 north of Oakland, and a second facility along Route 219 at McHenry, in the heart of the Deep Creek recreational area. Our new, truly unique hexagon log structure at McHenry is now open.

If this is your first visit to our region, perhaps you will be most interested in the rental properties handled by A&A. Drop into either of our offices and talk over your needs. Our rental listings are extensive and varied — from a weekend to a long-term lease. You'll find the folks at A&A have the knowledge and experience necessary to help you "find your way" in the community and can help you avoid many of the complications which often accompany the "first visit."

Agents and staff members are pictured on this page. We encourage you to stop by either of our offices and talk with us about the listings you see in this paper. We have large maps of the region in our offices and can help you pinpoint the locations of each of these listings, and better help you understand where they are and what each listing has to offer. Our sales staff members know the listings well, can give you additional details, and will be happy to arrange for your personal visits to the properties which best fit your needs.

Feel free to take a copy of this paper along with you — compliments of A&A. We hope you enjoy reading the many articles about our region, and that you'll also spend some time looking over the many interesting (and downright exciting) homes we have to offer throughout the region. And as always, we encourage you to visit us either at our office on U.S. 219 north of Oakland, or at our new McHenry office. When you think of real estate in Garrett County, we're sure you'll think first of A&A — an acknowledged leader in Garrett County and Deep Creek Lake real estate sales.



Come! Visit us today.

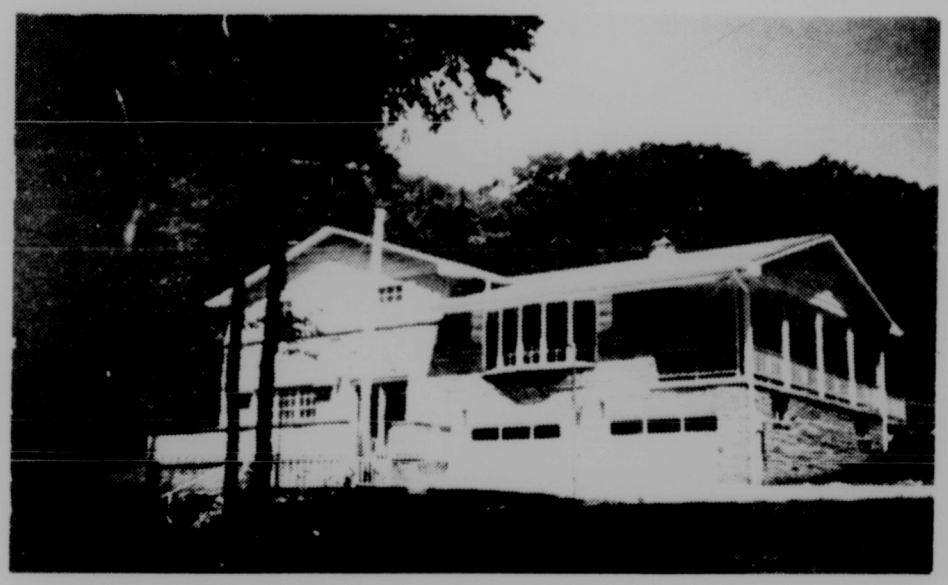
Lakefront

BECKMAN'S PENINSULA — 851409 — This contemporary home on a beautiful lakefront lot is custom built and is exquisitely decorated. Many, many extras such as central air conditioning, atrium, wall-to-wall carpeting, granite fireplace, and clerestory windows. If you're looking for a SUPERB lakefront home, you have got to see this.



LAKE SHORE DRIVE — 851071 — This Devlin-built, custom home on 1.6 acres with 200' lakefront offers the finest of accommodations in this area. It features a master bedroom suite, 2 bedrooms, 2½ baths, 2 stone fireplaces and a family room, and best of all, the kitchen must be seen to be appreciated. All of the best planning and products have gone into this kitchen and home. All rooms have a view of the lake except the laundry room, and other improvements include a carport, garage, lighted tennis court and an aluminum, no-maintenance dock. By appointment only to pre-qualified buyers.

THOUSAND ACRES — 851116 — Quietly situated on 1.3 acres (+ or -) with 168' of lake frontage, private dock, you will find luxury in every room of this magnificent new owner-built home. Most dramatic of all is the fieldstone wall with fireplace in the living room, rising from the sunken floor to a cathedral ceiling. The master bedroom has its own fireplace, bathroom and deck. The gourmet kitchen includes cherry cabinets, lots of counter space and overlooks the large living room for entertaining. 3 or 4 bedrooms, 3 full baths, 2 car garage all add up to comfort. For many other fine details, please call us $225,000.00

PENN COVE — 851282 — Designed to incorporate all of the advantages of solid log wall construction with contemporary styling, uses all of Mountaineer's new "Weather-Lok" corner system. The design specifically adapted many of the most popular features in new home construction — skylights, cathedral ceiling in the living room and master bedroom, exposed beams, 2½ baths (one with whirlpool), and a bonus room ideally suited for a 4th bedroom or play area. Brand new home still being completed. See now and choose your own carpetings. On a 169' lakefront site.

STATE PARK ROAD — 851020 — Spacious, modern, 7 room home fronting on one of the best ski coves on Deep Creek Lake. Large family room with wet bar, efficiency kitchen, and full bath. 3 large bedrooms, attached 2-car garage with concrete driveway. Boat dock is wolmanized and rail-mounted with power winch and just steps away from the cottage $199,000.00

Pete's Pinnacle

Development opportunity featuring lake frontage, spectacular lake views, acreage, and improvements.

Pete's Pinnacle—Planned development of land near and around Deep Creek Lake has been stymied over the years because the land simply was not available for purchase. Much of the undeveloped land on Deep Creek Lake has been family-held for generations.

We now have the opportunity for developers and architects to work with their imaginations to build a truly fine resort in a residential area on the property formerly known as "Pete's Pinnacle."

We are proud that the Smith family has selected our firm to market this 60+ acre property. We will be using our best efforts to cooperate with all potential purchasers in evaluating surveys, zoning, health department regulations, lake frontage, and Deep Creek Lake regulations to help ascertain that any project planned will be viable and profitable.

From atop the "Pinnacle," you may choose your view—the southern end of the lake with sailing regattas setting the scene or the northern portion of Deep Creek Lake as far as the Rt. 219 bridge.

The property is currently improved with two rental homes—one is ideal for sales offices during development and the other was built with the future in mind as a common-use facility on the 1,000+ feet of lakefront.

For complete property information and an in-depth discussion of this opportunity, please contact either broker at A&A Realty at (301) 387-4700.

Winterfest XIII set for March

Sponsored by the Deep Creek Lions Foundation, Inc., and Wisp Ski Resort, Winterfest is the excitement and fun of winter sports, good fellowship, & good food, all staged in a carnival-like atmosphere to mark the traditional end of the winter season. All proceeds benefit community projects, local charities, and the Lions' Blind Skiers program. Gate admission is $2.50 for adults; children under 12 admitted free.

Friday's schedule of events begins with an afternoon of scholastic ski contests and the Winterfest XIII kickoff party that same night. Saturday, March 15, features the slalom race, fun ski races which conclude the hilarious Yakapah Garbola (costume) Parade, outdoor volleyball tournament, tug o' war, and wrist wrestling. A fireworks display and torchlight parade Saturday night end the day's outdoor activities and set the stage for Las Vegas Nite in the McHenry House.

Fun ski races continue on Sunday with inner tubes, kayaks, and Yankee Jumpers, followed by the Garrett County Fireman's Association five-man team slalom race while wearing full fireman's gear and carrying fifty feet of firehose. Other contests include bubble gum blowing for children 6 to 12, horseshoe pitching, and Wisp mountain endurance foot race. The ever-popular snowmobile hill climb up the steep, moguled "Face" slope is the final event pitting drivers and machines against the mountain in a race for time and distance.

Throughout the weekend, outdoor food, beverage, and souvenir booths will be operating, as well as open sleigh rides and pony rides. Musical entertainment will be performed by "South Paw."

Snowmobile regulations

Maryland State Police are asking for cooperation from snowmobilers in obeying all Maryland laws concerning the operation of these vehicles. Snowmobiles are motor-driven off-road vehicles and are considered to be motor vehicles as defined in the traffic code when driven within any part of the right of way of a public highway.

It is illegal to operate a snowmobile on any portion of a public highway including the shoulders and any part of the right of way because they cannot be registered and normally cannot be covered under the State's liability insurance laws. The following two exceptions are written into the traffic laws: (1) In Garrett County certain portions of local highways have been designated for snowmobile travel when gaining access to Department of Natural Resources snowmobile trails; and (2) In Garrett County a snowmobile may cross any highway except controlled access highways (such as U.S. Rt. 48), at a right angle. Persons exercising this last exception must own the property on both sides of the highway being crossed or have in his possession written permission from the land owner. Drivers must also be licensed when crossing the highway.

Snowmobile operators and operators of all other off-road vehicles including four wheel drives are warned that they are subject to criminal charges and possible arrest if they operate those vehicles on private property without written permission of the property owner. The private land does not have to be posted against tresspass. Except as permitted by existing law, these vehicles may not be operated on any property owned or leased by the State of Maryland or any other of its political subdivisions.

When operating on D.N.R. approved trails a snowmobile must be registered with D.N.R. and display a valid permit costing $5.00 per vehicle. These permits are available through D.N.R. Headquarters, at most Maryland State Parks and some local businesses in Garrett County.

ARROWHEAD

• TOWNHOMES •

LOCATION: Convenient to year-round recreational facilities — Wisp Ski Area, State Parks, plus the lake is at your doorstep for the summer.

LOCATION: Convenient for vacation leisure — restaurants, both casual and elegant within ½ mile, convenience store and services are adjacent.

LOCATION: Easy to find—located just off U.S. Rt. 219 means driving time to Arrowhead is shorter, and the primary road access is especially important in winter.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT NEWSPAPER

Arrowhead is a twenty-six townhouse condominium neighborhood situated on the shores of beautiful Deep Creek Lake, Maryland. Amid tall pines, the development is carefully designed to offer a private and elegant living environment. The highlight of the development is its spectacular location on a crescent shaped peninsula, surrounded by the waters of one of western Maryland's most beautiful lakes. Year-round recreational opportunities are abundant in the nearby waters and mountains. Each townhome enjoys a panoramic view of the lake and its landscape.

We all know that location represents the true measuring stick by which to evaluate a potential real estate purchase — both for investment or private enjoyment.

Arrowhead Townhomes are the epitome of this maxim on Deep Creek Lake.

Arrowhead Townhomes are easy to buy—choose yoru down payment from as low as 5% — choose your interest rate from as low as 10% fixed. (Note: Interest rate varies with amount of down payment.)

Five units are complete and ready to move into as soon as you select your carpet color.

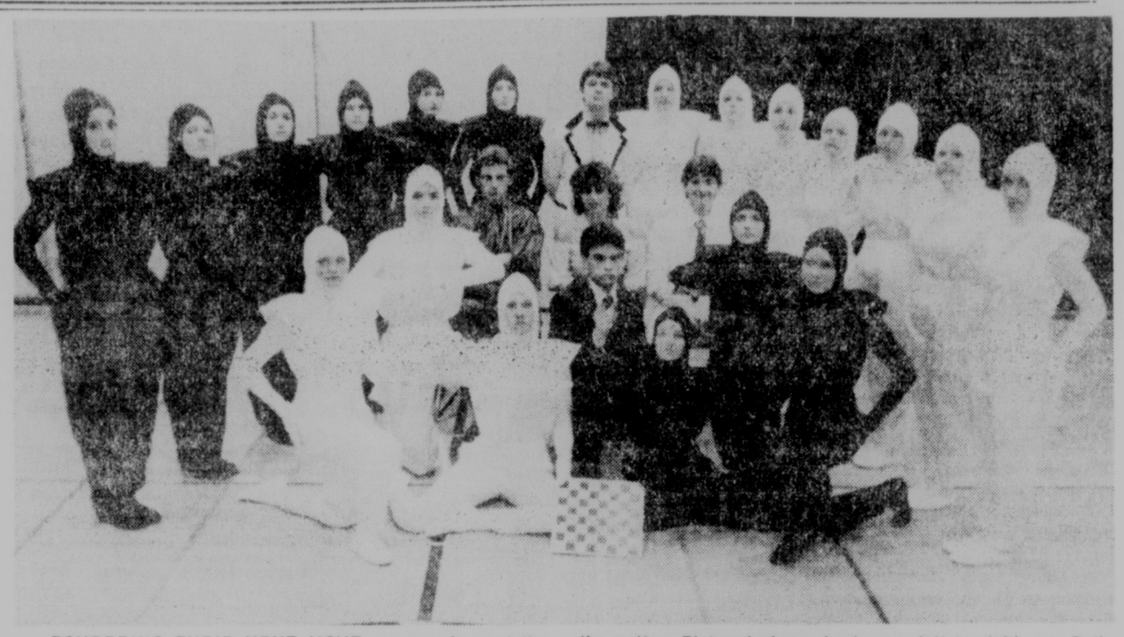
Mishap Claims Life Of Young Grantsville Man

A mishap involving a four-wheel vehicle claimed the life of a young Grantsville resident Friday.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police at McHenry, Stephen Ray Platter, 19, was operating the vehicle on private property behind the Hill Top Fruit Market, Grantsville.

Platter came in contact with a metal cable guide wire, which struck him in the throat. He was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James Feaster, Garrett County medical examiner.



Born April 14, 1966, in Meyersdale, Pa., he was the son of Melva Platter, also of Grantsville.

Mr. Platter was employed in the maintenance department of Yoder's Locker Plant, Grantsville.

Besides his mother, he is survived by one brother, Irvin G. Platter, and his grandfather, Irvin B. Platter, both of Grantsville.

Friends were received at the Newman Funeral Home, where a service was conducted Monday by the Rev. James Deremer.

Interment was in Durst Cemetery, near Grantsville.

PONDERING THEIR NEXT MOVE are members of the Southern Garrett Winterguard costumed for their performance of "Chess" which brought them a third place in the Winterguard International Championships. The competition was held in New Brighton, England last Friday. According to one of the chaperones who travelled with the guard to England, a writer from "Drum and Bugle" magazine said the Southern Winterguard was five years ahead of their time. "What these kids are doing now will be done by other guards years from now," said the writer. Pictured above, back row, left to right, are Beth Zimmerman, Debbie Riggs, Tracie Umstot, Diana Boyce, Lara Carlson, Tamra Kelley, Dave Savage, Ramona Selders, Debbie White, Stephanie Glotfelty, Linda Paugh, Anna Sisler, Dawn Warnick and Susie Arnold. Shown second row, left to right, are Shannon Sell, Debbie Irving, Scott Rolf, Laura Savage, Mark Weeks, Brenda Plessinger and Renee Helmick. Shown directly center, left to right, are Jodi Wilt, Brian Custer and Teresa Rivenbark, captain.

Census Tracts Drawn Up By Local Committee

As the nation gears up for the 1990 census, Garrett County, through the Garrett County Planning Office, is drafting a census statistics areas map.

A committee has been formed to coordinate the project and has held four meetings. Members of the committee include: John Morris, assistant superintendent of Garrett County Schools; Alice Hevner, Maryland Cooperative Extension Service; Pamela Nelson, Garrett County Community Action; Lois Meyers, Garrett County Board of Realtors; Margaret J. Jamison and John E. Nelson, both from the planning office.

Census tracts are currently being studied by the group. These tracts are geographic divisions of the county. Census tracts normally have between 2,500-8,000 residents and remain the same for a long period of time.

Jamison explained, "The program is a voluntary one. The main reason for doing this is to give more precise, detailed population information on certain areas of Garrett County. Deep Creek Lake is a perfect example of an area that we would want to determine the population."

The committee and field representatives will follow permanent visible boundaries which will include markings such as highways, roads, rivers and high-tension power lines in completing their study and turning it in to the United States Census Bureau.

A total of seven tracts have been established based upon the current Garrett County population. Listed below are the tracts and the areas they cover:

Tract 1, Friendsville and Accident areas.

Tract 2, Grantsville and Bittinger areas.

Tract 3, Finzel, Avilton and the Savage River State Forest areas.

Tract 4, Entire Deep Creek Lake area.

Tract 5, Sang Run, Oakland and Crellin areas.

Tract 6, Kitzmiller and Deer Park areas.

Tract 7, Mountain Lake Park and Red House areas.

Jamison stressed that these tracts would in no way change election district boundaries and that the tracts were simply implemented to simplify census counting.

Those desiring to review the proposed census tracts may do so by visiting the Garrett County Planning Office at the Court House during regular office hours.

GCC Board Of Trustees Meet To Discuss Variety Of Issues

The Garrett Community College Board of Trustees met Tuesday evening at the college for the regular monthly meeting to discuss various college matters which included a follow-up to a management letter by Rodeheaver and Associates.

Jim Murray, representing that firm which handled the college's internal audit this year, said he felt very comfortable at this time with the accounting system at GCC.

He noted that the inventory of the physical plant had been completed and that the inner-fund balance, bank statements and general ledger all had been reconciled through January 31 to the present time. "I was very pleased with the progress I observed during my visit," said Murray.

Search Committee

Pat Fischetti, chairman of the presidential search committee, reported that his committee had completed their work stating that out of 54 presidential candidates, they had selected five potential candidates for the Board of Trustee's consideration at a later date.

Joint Trustees Meeting

Chairman, Katharine Smith, reported on the joint community college trustees meeting which was held in Annapolis last Thursday.

Attending besides Smith were Pat Fischetti and Dr. David Puzzuoli, interim president.

Smith said every community college in the state was represented for the discussions on college by-laws and finances. She said that although it had been advertised that legislators would be on hand to discuss current issues, she felt there was "very little legislative input."

Fischetti said it was interesting to note that many of the colleges were dealing with the same problems they were, such as finances and lawsuits.

Financial Picture

Comptroller John Culp reported that 55% of the budget had been expended thus far this year which is 3.3% below projected spending.

He added that $315,014.10 was

Flood-Related Lawsuit Filed

A flood-related lawsuit has been filed by the widow of David S. Ake Jr., who was killed when a train derailed on November 4, 1985 allegedly due to a mud slide.

Lisa K. Ake has filed suit against the B & O Railroad which deals with the Federal Employers' Liability Act, a federal statute that allows railroad employees or its beneficiaries to sue the railroad when the railroad work results in the employees' death.

The train derailment occurred on November 4, 1985 at approximately 8:30 p.m. The deceased was riding in the third engine unit of the train, which left the side of the mountain near the Spring Lick Road in Bloomington.

The suit was originally filed in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia. However, by agreement of both parties, the case is being transferred to U.S. District Court in Baltimore.

The law firm representing Ake's estate is now working to establish an amount the lawsuit will involve upon evaluating Ake's potential future worth, as a father, husband and worker.

A court date has not been set.

County Receives Central In-House Phone System

After ten years of much discussion and even more study, Garrett County agencies now possess an in-house central phone system, according to Gary Mullich, director of General Services.

Nearly every county and state office housed in the Garrett County Court House and all offices of the Garrett County Board of Education and Garrett County Community Action are now on the central phone system.

Mullich said one of the main factors involved in going to the system came about two years ago with the break up of telephone operating companies. He noted that many of the agencies did not have long distance discount services. With the new system, any call placed within the central phone system will carry no charge as they did in the past.

The director said with so many inter-agency calls placed within the county, it would result in a substantial savings.

He also added that prior to installing the new phone system, 99% of all the agencies involved were leasing phone equipment. When the newly purchased phone equipment is paid off, the county will realize an even bigger savings.

The installer/dealer of the new phone system is Gray Communications with their home base located in Altoona, Pa.

With the initial shock of a new system and new phone numbers, county employees are now enjoying the ease of the system.

The Board of County Commissioners have placed an ad on page 6 with a phone book size listing of all the new county numbers which may be clipped and placed inside personal and business phone books.

DHMH Mandates New Perc Tests, Soil Evaluations

Due to new state mandated regulations, Dr. William W. Pope, Garrett County Health Officer, recently announced that new percolation tests and soil evaluation procedures will be implemented beginning March 1, 1986.

Dr. Pope noted that percolation tests, which measure the rate at which water drops in a two-foot deep hole, have been used for years by the Health Department to determine whether soils of potential building lots are adequate to properly dispose of sewage. He said the actual rate is also used to determine necessary minimum lot areas and septic system design parameters.

The Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene on November 19, 1985 revised and readopted the regulation which governs sewage disposal on individual lots not served by community systems (COMAR 10.17.02).

"This new regulation," Dr. Pope continued, "will make mandatory a requirement that the entire soil profile to a depth of at least six feet be examined before a permit for a sewage disposal system can be issued.

Due to this new requirement, anyone wishing to have a lot tested and approved for building purposes must dig three two-foot deep holes in a proposed sewage disposal area. This area is usually 10,000 square feet in size and the holes should be placed so that the entire area is represented.

Water must be provided so that the holes can be tested and an average percolation rate determined. In addition, it will be necessary to engage the services of a backhoe operator to prepare at least one six to seven-foot deep trench in the proposed area so that the entire soil profile can be evaluated by a sanatarian.

Pope said this information is necessary to judge the ability of the soil to properly act as a filter and to assure that the groundwater supply is properly protected. He noted that scheduling the tests should be done well in advance by individuals wishing to have their lots evaluated.

Local Man Injured, Six Cars Damaged During Mishap

A Deer Park man was hospitalized Saturday night after the vehicle he was operating struck six parked cars, causing extensive damage.

Clarence William Collins, 37, was later released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

According to reports filed by the Maryland State Police, Collins was operating a 1978 Jeep Cherokee eastbound on Route 135 when the vehicle crossed the center line and entered the parking lot of the Deer Park Veterans of Foreign Wars at approximately 8:40 p.m.

The Jeep then struck a 1986 Ford Crown Victoria, forcing it into a Plymouth station wagon and causing a chain reaction involving a total of six vehicles.

Cpl. Richard Graham, who investigated the mishap, said Collins' jeep then veered off the vehicles, hit a snow pile, and became airborne. The vehicle came to rest in a second snow pile on the westbound shoulder of Route 135.

Collins' jeep, as well as the first five cars, was heavily damaged. Graham said the jeep tore the trunk areas from the first two cars.

The damaged vehicles included the Crown Victoria, which still had the new car buyer's sticker in the window; the station wagon, a 1985 Buick Skylark, a Subaru Brat, and a 1973 Chevrolet Blazer, which had all the windows broken. The sixth car, a Ford Escort, was the only vehicle that could be driven from the lot.

Deer Park firemen and the Southern Rescue Squad responded to the scene.

Collins was charged with crossing the center line, driving while under the influence of alcohol, negligent driving, and failing to avoid a collision.

A two-vehicle accident occurred Friday on U.S. Route 219.

According to police reports, Danny K. Moats, 26, Aurora, W.Va., was southbound on Route 219 in a 1982 International S-Series, behind a 1977 International Scout II operated by Artie E. Lantz, 24, Oakland.

Lantz attempted to turn left onto Gortner Mountain Road and Moats struck the vehicle while trying to pass it.

Tfc. C.R. Smith, who investigated the mishap, reported that Moats claimed he saw a right turn signal. However, investigation revealed that the signal lever was down in a left signal position.

Smith charged Moats with passing in unsafe conditions.

Lantz was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Students Meet With Bd. Of Ed.

Six student council members from each county high school opened the monthly meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education last Thursday with a period of discussion.

The question-and-answer session, which lasted a little over an hour, was initiated to allow the concerns of high school students to be voiced to the board members.

One Northern High School student mentioned concern that students are being awarded credit for a six-week summer course, allowing them to pass the class they originally failed.

Other questions voiced by Northern High School students included the possibility of placing vending machines in the cafeteria, adding a Spanish course to the schedule, and the progress of renovation.

Michele Glotfelty, student council president for Northern, read a letter thanking the board for their decision for split-shifting during the renovation project.

Southern High School students mentioned concern about the small number of semester courses being offered, and the fact that students are automatically placed in a study hall after semester courses such as driver's education.

Other questions dealt with the curriculum for English classes from year to year and the possibility of having semester finals instead of a comprehensive final at the end of the year.

Six members of the Yoder School PTA were present to discuss the school with board members. They expressed concern that the board would close the school, and presented a letter requesting that communication lines be kept open.

The board mentioned that they had not yet discussed the closing of the school, but it was a possibility now that attendance re-districting was completed.

Dr. Ryscavage stated that the board's policy is to maintain equal education throughout the county, and, since Yoder School has no attendance districts, equality is questionable.

Other items of discussion throughout the meeting included values education, laboratory activities, computer instruction, and fine arts graduation requirements.

The fourth grade health curriculum, which was discussed at last month's meeting, was approved. The program will include information about the changes a girl can expect in her body, which will be taught by health nurses and only with paternal permission.

Other topics will include strategies for protection from abuse, which will be taught in conjunction with Community Action; drug education, first aid procedures, and good mental health.

John Morris, Assistant Superintendent of Administrative Services, reported on the progress of the renovation project of Northern High School.

According to Morris, the project is now nearly 30 percent completed. He mentioned that the percentages are based on how much money is being spent.

Rep. Byron, County Commissioners Meet, Mutual Concerns Discussed

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners hosted Sixth District Congresswoman Beverly B. Byron at a luncheon meeting last Thursday at Will O' the Wisp to discuss mutual concerns.

County officials present were Commissioners Ernest Gregg Jr. and Elwood Groves II, County Clerk Robert J. Fousek, and County Attorney W. Dwight Stover.

Accompanying Congresswoman Byron was Congressional Administrative Assistant Brent Ayer.

Among the topics discussed were Deep Creek Lake development, unemployment, the coal industry, federal revenue sharing, the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act and Byron's re-election bid.

On lake development, Byron commented, "I've had some people write to me who are concerned about what's happening. I think the state plays a part in the development because the Department of Natural Resources has some control up here."

She noted that she felt the community had gone out very aggressively to develop the two convention centers. "With that comes a influx of tourists, which is important to this community," she stated.

"I know there are some who want no change whatsoever, but if you've got a viable community for survival you're going to have to enhance your tourist dollar," said the congresswoman.

On the issue of unemployment, Byron stated, "The current unemployment figures have just come out for the state and I was pleased to see that some of the key areas where we've had extremely high unemployment, Garrett County being the highest in my congressional district, have experienced a decrease."

Byron then talked of ways to further reduce the jobless numbers in the county. "One of the things we've been talking about are the convention centers and bringing jobs into the community, which those projects will certainly do," she said. "We've talked about the development of an airport . . . an increase in transportation with the completion of the National Freeway, which will definitely affect Garrett County."

Speaking of the coal industry Byron talked about the competitiveness of Maryland coal.

"We see some local innovative marketing into West Virginia, which has a large amount of coal of its own. At the same time, to be competitive, we've got to address the transportation issue because costs are directly tied to coal production."

Concerning federal revenue sharing, Byron stated, "Federal revenue sharing this year will probably be cut about 20% and zeroed out next year. We knew the cuts were coming and we've been talking about them, so they should be no big sur-

Garrett County Men Nominated By Gov. Hughes

Three Garrett County residents were nominated by Governor Harry Hughes on his list of 1986 "Green Bag" appointments.

Wayne B. Hamilton of Red House has been nominated to the Garrett Community College Board of Trustees. The seven-member board of trustees oversee operations at the college. Trustees are appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. Hamilton will serve a six-year term.

Duane Yoder of Swanton was recommended as a member of the newly-created Rental Resources Corporation. The Rental Resources Corporation will oversee Hughes' plans to make available affordable housing for low and moderate income citizens.

Welton Lane of Mtn. Lake Park was nominated to serve on the Garrett County Liquor Board, with the support of the Republican State Central Committee and the concurrence of Del. George C. Edwards. The House of Delegates Rules Committee will vote on that nomination today and it is expected to go before the full House tomorrow or early next week.

Commissioners Note Decrease In Revenue Sharing

What may be the last of the federal revenue sharing funds were received recently by the Board of Garrett County Commissioners who said at a press conference Tuesday they would be allocating the funds to various agencies in the near future.

County Clerk Robert Fousek said there was a 13% decrease in the funds this year. They received approximately $649,000 this year and just over $740,000 last year.

He added that various county agencies had submitted requests for the revenue sharing money at budget time last summer for capital projects. The county traditionally used revenue sharing money for capital projects only, rather than depending on it for the formal operating budget.

Trustees Meeting

Also Tuesday the commissioners met with members of the Board of Trustees from Garrett Community College in an executive session.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. did verify, though, that the meeting dealt solely with a letter Fousek had written to the college administration in response to their requesting additional funding. He also said they discussed the Oakland branch of GCC and both boards considered convening a task force to evaluate the current facility and to determine the future of that branch of the college.

He added that he felt it was a very productive meeting.

In other county matters, the commissioners met Tuesday with Edgar Harman to discuss the State Health Department's mandate for percolation tests and soil evaluations. (See separate story.)

The commissioners also met with Garrett County Roads Administrator Paul R. Shockey to discuss roads matters. The Roads Department is now beginning to gear up for summer roads projects during lapses of winter weather.

EARN NATIONAL CERTIFICATION IN AEROBICS — Three local aerobics instructors recently attended an aerobic convention at the Omni International Hotel in Atlanta, Ga., where they became nationally certified instructors by the Aerobic Fitness Foundation of America. Gale Bosley, Tami Fike, and Brenda Brosnihan participated in several exercise classes, workshops, and lectures throughout the week and then passed a written and practical exam to become certified. The emphasis of the convention was safety, variety in aerobic exercise, and the newest, most effective aerobic methods. They also participated in the "Superclass" which was placed in the Guinness Book of World Records for the largest aerobic class ever held (3,000 participants). The "Superclass", which was hosted by Richard Simmons, Kathy Smith, and Bess Motta, was televised over satelite network FNN. The purpose of "Superclass" was to promote a drug free life, and proceeds were donated to the Nancy Reagan Drug Rehabilitation Fund. While attending the convention, the three local women met celebrities Kathy Rigby, Gilda Marx, Bess Motta, Dorothy Hamill, and Christine MacIntyre. In the photo, left to right, are Ms. Bosley, Ms. Fike, Marti Steele West, vice president of the Aerobic Fitness Foundation of America, and Ms. Brosnihan.

District Court Hearings Noted

In Garrett County District Court proceedings last week, a McHenry man was found to be guilty of a charge of assault.

Robert E. Frazee, 45, was sentenced to 89 days in jail and given a $50 fine. The judge then suspended the sentence.

The complainant was Jeffrey A. Corbell, McHenry, who filed the charge following a January 12 incident.

Probation before judgment was ordered for William A. Zang, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, for a charge of abandoning an animal. He was placed on 30 days unsupervised probation.

The charge was filed by humane officer Ron Beeghly, Swanton, following a January 6 incident at Fitzwater's Trailer Court involving a small gray dog.

Zang was ordered to repay Beeghly $20 and pick up the dog as soon as possible.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Adam W. Arnold, 22, Oakland, after the judge found him to be guilty of a breaking and entering charge.

The charge was filed by Dale E. Broadwater, Deer Park, following a December 22 incident at Dale's Body Shop, Deer Park.

Arnold was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

The judge ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Carl W. Noel, 22, Cumberland, after he found him to be guilty of a theft charge.

The charge was filed by Detective Richard Kutchman after a September 25 incident at Table Rock.

According to court documents, Noel stole the personal property of Ken Bosley, including firearms, food, and other merchandise.

Placed on the stet docket were charges of battery and malicious destruction of the property of another against Vernon W. Georg, 46, Accident.

The complainant was William H. Thomas, Canton, Ohio, following a December 3, 1985 incident.

Also placed on the stet docket was a battery charge filed by Rosemary Moreland against Glenvil A. Moreland, 67, Gormania, W.Va.

David Moe, Oakland, was found to be not guilty of a dog ordinance violation.

The charge was filed by Thomas A. Ashby, Oakland, following a January 2 incident involving two Doberman Pinschers.

Fundraising Drive Begun For Infant

A fundraising effort was begun in the county last week to help defray medical costs for Kassandra Lynn Moats, born February 11 at West Virginia University Medical Center.

Baby Kassandra was three months premature and weighed only one pound, 13 ounces and measured 13 inches in length at her birth. She is the first child of Albert and Elizabeth Moats, Oakland.

The infant is now in the neonatal intensive care unit of the hospital and as she continues to gain weight she will be transferred to a step-down unit and will likely be hospitalized for nearly three months, according to a close friend of the family. Neither parent has been able to hold the child yet.

The Moats family has no medical insurance and they were further plagued with bad luck this week when their car became disabled.

Those desiring to make contributions to Kassandra may do so by making checks payable to the baby and sending them to Tammie Wilt, 602 Allegany Drive, Mtn. Lake Park, Md. 21550. Donation cans have also been placed in many local stores and businesses throughout the Oakland area.

Dr. Ryscavage To Present School Budget Request

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Superintendent of Schools for Garrett County, will present his budget recommendations for the school year 1986-87 at a special hearing sponsored by the Garrett County Council of PTA's at the Red House Elementary School on Thursday, February 27 at 7 p.m.

The Garrett County Board of Education will consider any comments made at the hearing as they take final action on the budget at their next regularly scheduled meeting on March 13.

The Board of Education encourages all members of the general public to attend the special hearing, as well as the March 13 regular meeting, to learn more about Garrett County public schools.

Sheriff's Office Investigates Area Thefts, Incidents

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week reported several thefts and destruction of property incidents which occurred in the area.

The department is investigating a theft which occurred February 10 on a farm along the Pig's Ear Road, near U.S. Route 48.

Albert F. Richter, Grantsville, reported that, sometime during the night hours, someone stole a root rake which was chained to a tree near the barn. Loss was estimated at $1,000.

Anyone with information concerning this crime is asked to call either Crime Solvers or the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

A destruction of property incident and theft occurred February 2 on the Twin Churches Road near Grantsville.

Sometime during the night, someone shattered the windshield and driver's side windows of a vehicle belonging to the Garrett County Health Department. The culprit then removed a radio from the vehicle. Total losses reached $895.

Someone also cracked the windshield and shattered the driver's side window of the vehicle of Rodney Glotfelty, Grantsville, which was parked nearby.

A theft occurred during the night hours of February 9 at Arnold Brothers Equipment Corporation, Rt. 135 near Mtn. Lake Park.

According to reports, an unknown suspect removed a 40-channel Cobra CB radio from a truck belonging to the company. Total losses were valued at $59.

A destruction of property incident occurred during the night hours of February 8 in Mtn. Lake Park.

According to the sheriff's department, someone smashed and knocked down the mailboxes of Ronald Metz, Joseph Dumire, and Edwin Gaither. A small maple tree was also pulled out of the ground at the Metz residence.

A theft occurred February 8 at the parking lot of Heck's department store.

According to reports, someone entered the locked vehicle of Janet Glotfelty, Oakland, and removed a printing calculator, cold cream, shaving soap, and shampoo.

Mtn. Lake Park House Damaged By Fire Friday

A Mountain Lake Park house sustained moderate damage Friday afternoon after a burning piece of toast set fire to the kitchen of the two-story, wood frame dwelling, located at 408 K Street.

Oakland and Deer Park firefighters were called to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Landon at 3:01 p.m. and, upon their arrival, noticed smoke coming from the eaves of the kitchen area on the first floor. Mrs. Landon was attempting to extinguish the blaze at the time and, according to an Oakland VFD spokesman, her efforts probably greatly reduced the damage in the house.

Mrs. Landon was later taken to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad where she was treated and released for minor smoke inhalation.

The fire was confined to the cabinets and ceiling in the kitchen, although there was some smoke damage throughout the remainder of the house.

Firefighters remained on the scene until 3:46 p.m.

Accident Prepares For Election

Accident's annual Town Convention was held on Tuesday evening, February 4, at the town hall with only two citizens attending. The purpose of the convention was to receive nominations for the office of two councilmen. Nominated for two-year terms were Richard Carlson and Fred Kahl. Holdover councilmen in mid-term are Hobert Bowser and Charles Strauss. Mayor Wayne Fratz is also in mid-term.

The election, open to all registered voters, will be held on Tuesday, March 4, at the town hall. Polls will be open from 4 to 8 p.m.

Voter Registration

All registered voters will be eligible to vote in the March 4 election. Voters must be at least 18 years of age, a resident within the corporate limits of the town for 30 days preceding the election, and registered to vote in the town of Accident. Qualified persons not already registered may register to vote at the Main Street residence of Town Clerk Marjorie Fratz from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. during weekdays and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Residents who are already registered voters need not register again. The town wishes to clarify that voter registration with the Garrett County Board of Supervisors of Elections is separate from municipal registration.

Water Pumps

The town contracted with Quality Machining of Accident to rebuild the 16-stage water pump that had been used at the Accident-Bittinger Road water pumping station until it had to be removed about one year ago when it no longer would pump water from the well. To help prevent any disruption of water service, this pump will be kept on hand as backup for the town's two water pumping stations. By having the work done locally rather than sending the pump to the manufacturer in California or purchasing a new one, substantial savings were realized.

The council authorized the purchase of a new booster pump from Brenneman Well Drilling to be used at the South Street water pumping station for chlorination purposes. The booster pump at the Accident-Bittinger Road station was replaced with a new one about one year ago.

Hour gauges have been installed on the two water pumps as well as the blowers at the sewage treatment plant.

Municipal Building

The council received the written report on the results of the energy audit performed by the Potomac Edison Company. This audit was in conjunction with Accident's participation in the Small Town Energy Education Project (STEEP). Items in the report include suggestions for weatherization of the building and improvements for overhead lighting.

Council awarded the bid for installation of a coal furnace to Doerr Construction, Inc., of Accident. The furnace is 27-inches, fan forced air, with all new duct work designed to heat the garage and shop sections of the building. The town will continue to use the present wood burning stove to heat the town hall.

Champ's Electric has been engaged to rewire the interior of the garage and basement sections of the building. The town budgeted $10,000 in this year's operating budget to do interior renovations to the building. Major exterior renovations were done last year.

Seeking Assistant

For almost two years, the town's one fulltime employee has been responsible for daily operation of the treatment plant, including weekends. The state's Office of Environmental Programs has recommended that the town hire an additional employee due to the daily work load and scheduling of seven day a week coverage at the water and wastewater facilities. The town is currently seeking a person to fill this position.

PSI Ordered For Young Aurora Man

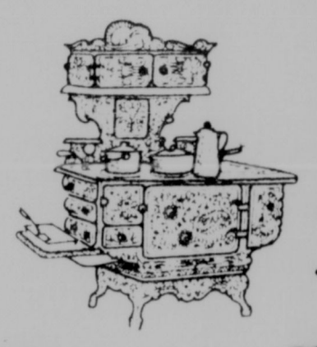
Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer ordered a pre-sentence investigation and revoked bail for a young Aurora, W.Va. man in Garrett County Circuit Court proceedings last Thursday.

Steven D. Dillsworth, 19, pled guilty to three counts of theft and a breaking and entering charge.

The charges were filed by Sgt. Roger Lewis, Oakland City Police Department, following various incidents between August 26 and October 2, 1985. Theft victims included Bell Brothers Auto Sales, Robert Cannon Jr., Fred E. Beachy Lumber Company, and Fitzwater's Garage, all of the Oakland area.

Three counts of breaking and entering, three counts of theft, five counts of destruction of property, and one charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle were not prosecuted by the court.

Dillsworth's attorney was Michael Morrissette, Oakland.



Bethel Methodist Will Host Next Lenten Service

The next in a series of Wednesday evening Lenten services will be held at Bethel United Methodist Church, Mtn. Lake Park, on February 26. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the service will feature the Rev. Martin Feild, of St. Peter's Catholic Church, as guest preacher. In keeping with the overall theme of Jesus' healing ministry, Fr. Feild's sermon will be on the healing of the crippled man.

This present series of Wednesday evening services has been organized by local area pastors and supported by their congregations. It continues an annual tradition of attention to special themes during the period of Lent. Since the present theme concerns the healing miracles of Jesus, the offerings received during the services will be used to support the Chaplaincy program at the Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Hospice Program.

The third service in the Lenten series will be held Wednesday evening, March 5, at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland.

PLOTTING THEIR STRATEGY and pinpointing coordinates of a mock disaster in the Swallow Falls area on Thursday were DNR officials and members of the three county winter rescue teams. The drill was coordinated by Mike Gregory, Tim Wilburn and Gerry Sword of the DNR; Fran Pope, a member of the Southern Rescue Squad, and the Herrington Manor State Park Advisory Board. Pictured left to right are Ken Meyers, of Herrington Manor State Park; Chuck Thomas, also of the DNR; Denny Shaffer, a member of one local winter rescue team; and Rick Wakefield, with the state forest division of DNR.

TO THE RESCUE! — Members of the three Garrett County winter rescue teams were tested last Thursday with a variety of mock accidents, including a downed plane in a rugged area of Swallow Falls State Forest. Above, Ed Lewis, a team member, and Ken Meyers, of the Herrington Manor State Park staff, coordinate their efforts upon receiving the call for help. Below, Chuck Thomas, of the DNR, Dale Fike, of Potomac State Forest, and informant Roslyn Rodeheaver prepare one victim, Annette Duncan, for transport out of the forest. The purpose of the exercise was to test the teams' response times, review search techniques, practice first aid skills and victim transport methods.

Winter Rescue Teams Respond To Mock Accidents In Training Exercise

The peaceful tranquility of the winter scene at Herrington Manor/Swallow Falls State Park and Garrett State Forest was interrupted last Thursday by a practice exercise conducted by the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Services' three winter rescue teams stationed in Garrett County.

The exercise was planned and coordinated by Mike Gregory, Tim Wilburn and Gerry Sword, of the DNR, and Fran Pope, a Herrington Manor State Park Advisory Board member and an active member of the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. The purpose of the exercise was to check the team response time, review search techniques, practice first aid skills and victim transport methods. According to Sword, the teams did "exceptionally well" in all areas of the exercise.

Assisting with the exercise were Charles Morris, Connie Morgan, Sue Duncan and Annett Duncan, who acted as victims; Kenneth Suski and Roslyn Rodeheaver, who acted as informants; and Fran Pope and Clara Fitzwater who prepared the victims, provided evaluations and did on-scene work.

The first call brought Dale Fike, Potomac State Forest, and Ken Meyers, Herrington Manor State Park, to the cross-country ski trails at Herrington Manor to locate and treat an injured skier. A short while later, the Deep Creek Lake and New Germany State Parks teams were activated to report to Herrington Manor as back-up units. They arrived just as Fike and Meyers brought Charles Morris, the 70-year-old victim with a shoulder injury, out of the woods, strapped to a specially constructed transport sled. This part of the exercise was reviewed and critiqued by Wilburn, Gregory and John Norbeck, MFPWS Chief of Law Enforcement, under whose authority the teams operate.

The second call brought news of a possible commuter plane crashing in the Swallow Falls area. As the rescue teams responded, the other volunteers took their places in a wooded area out Maple Glade Road. A command post was set up at the parking lot, under the direction of Meyers and Rick Wakefield, Potomac State Forest. Maps were reviewed and the search plans given out as team members dealt with Roslyn Rodeheaver and Ken Suski, two informants.

After an hour and a half of searching, the crash site was located in a deeply wooded area six tenths of a mile northwest of the park office, not far from Muddy Creek, by Terry Garlitz of the New Germany team. With this information, Wakefield and Meyers directed five additional snowmobiles to the area, along with three medical transport sleds. Victim assessments were made and radioed to the command post by Dave Baker of New Germany. Fike, soon had the most seriously injured victim, Annett Duncan, transported to the transfer point nearly a mile away.

This transport was followed by Rick Lewis and Rolland Schoch of Savage River State Forest who transported Sue Duncan and Connie Morgan to the transfer point. Also assisting at the crash scene was Ed Lewis, of the Mt. Nebo Wildlife Work Center. Dolls and full-size mannequins were used for additional victims and deceased.

After all the victims were properly treated, a short critique was conducted at the Swallow Falls park office. Refreshments were provided by Wilburn and Sword.

The winter rescue units are one of the many services area forest, park and wildlife employees provide to the residents of Garrett County and nearby counties of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. Last year the teams provided emergency rescue service to over a dozen county residents during snow storms. The team traveled to West Virginia during the November floods and operated in the Parsons and Harman areas.

"Like most area rescue and fire services, these teams operate much of the time as volunteers with only their equipment supplied by the State." Sword said.

The team's services are available through the Garrett County Emergency Management Office (911) to assist other area emergency services.

Total Of Rabid Animals In '85 Drops Slightly

Garrett County Environmental Health Department Official Rodney Glotfelty has announced the total number of animals submitted to the state lab for rabies testing in 1985, and the number of those which were reported positive.

Glotfelty reported that a total of 115 animals were submitted to the lab for rabies tests in 1985. Of that total only 17 proved positive. This compares to 1984 when 23 positive cases were reported out of 117 animals submitted.

In 1984, 20 of the positive cases were raccoons, there was one positive groundhog that year, and two rabid skunks. Last year, 1985, there were 16 positive raccoons and one positive groundhog.

Five persons required treatment in 1984, while six required treatment in 1985. Those six persons were treated as a result of four incidents; one incident accounted for three exposures.

State totals for the period from January 1984 through January 15, 1986, showed 1,100 rabid animals in 1984, Prince George's County leading with 239 cases; 760 rabid animals in 1985, Baltimore County leading with 244 cases; and 29 cases so far in 1986, Baltimore County leading again with seven rabid animals.

On a regional scale for the year 1985, besides the 760 cases of rabies in Maryland, Delaware totaled one case; Washington, D.C., had eight cases; Virginia had 179; West Virginia had 30; and Pennsylvania had 450.

A large variety of animals proved susceptible to rabies. Of the 769 rabid animals in Maryland in 1985, there were 34 bats, three cows, 11 cats, one dog, 21 foxes, seven groundhogs, 672 raccoons, two squirrels, six skunks, one opossum, and two horses.

In Delaware, one bat was the only case.

Washington, D.C., showed two bats, three cats, and three raccoons.

Virginia had 16 cases of rabies in bats, one cow, three cats, one dog, 11 foxes, one groundhog, 102 raccoons, 17 skunks, and one lamb.

West Virgina rabid animals included one cat, four foxes, 15 raccoons, eight skunks, one horse, and one lamb.

Pennsylvania showed 44 rabid bats, four cows, 10 cats, three dogs, nine foxes, seven groundhogs, 286 raccoons, one squirrel, 81 skunks, two goats, one horse, one opossum, and one rabbit.

Congress Files Gramm-Rudman Plea To Justices

"Gramm-Rudman is the most effective means" to curb the heavy federal deficit, the U.S. Senate told the U.S. Supreme Court Tuesday.

The U.S. House of Delegates and U.S. Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher likewise filed formal appeals defending the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act. A special U.S. District Court struck down that act just two weeks ago.

The justices are expected to review the appeals late this week and may announce Monday whether or not they will hear them. Lawyers on both sides are urging a hasty decision and want the two-hour hearing held on April 23.

The District Court ruling against Gramm-Rudman would nullify the automatic "trigger" which would make across-the-board cuts in the budget if the regular budget did not meet specific deficit ceilings designed to achieve a balanced budget by 1991.

The District Court found a core provision of the Gramm-Rudman Act unconstitutional saying that the act violates required separation of powers between the president and Congress.

Many congressional leaders said that as a result of the ruling, Congress will still be under tremendous political pressure to meet the Gramm-Rudman targets, even without the threat of automatic cutbacks.

The lower court said it is unconstitutional to hand the job of ordering those cuts over to the comptroller general, who is appointed by the president to a 15-year term and can only be removed by Congress.

The Senate's appeal said that "the comptroller general's knowledge of and experience with the financial accounts of the federal government and independence from political control of the president and the Congress make him ideally suited to implement neutrality in the hard political choices" which must be made under the Gramm-Rudman Act.

Democratic Club To Hold Meetings

The Executive Committee of the Garrett County Democratic Club will meet on Monday, February 24, at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Pat Zumpano.

The next evening, February 25, the club will hold its monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Starlite Restaurant in Oakland.

According to club president Spencer Schlosnagle, membership dues for the new year are $3 and all county Democrats are welcome to attend.

Free Concerts Slated At WVU Bands Festival

Three West Virginia University musical groups will present a free concert during the annual WVU Invitational High School Honor Bands Festival February 21 and 22 at the Creative Arts Center.

The groups are the Concert Band, the Jazz Ensemble and the Wind Ensemble, which will perform at 8:15 p.m. February 21 in the Concert Theatre.

About 250 high school musicians from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia will participate in two honor bands that will present free concerts at 2:30 p.m. February 22 in the Concert Theatre.

Conductors will be Jim Bennett, visiting director of bands at WVU, and Bruce Lauffer, assistant director of bands at Indiana State University. Both are WVU graduates.

Program selections will include Holst's "First Suite in E-flat for Military Band," Sousa's "George Washington Bicentennial March," Percy Grainger's "Irish Tune from County Derry" and Leonard Bernstein's "Overture to Candide."

At the concert featuring the WVU groups on February 21, the program will include Claude T. Smith's "Flight," Gustov Holst's "Second Suite for Military Band in F Major," and Dmitri Kabalevsky's "Overture to Colas Breugnon." The Jazz Ensemble will present music by John Coltrane, featuring saxophonist Curtis Johnson of Triadelphia, and works by Duke Ellington.

Management Of Stress Among Three Workshops

The Garrett County Cooperative Extension Service and Community Action Committee are offering a workshop on Stress Management as one portion of the one-half day program on "Management for Community Groups." The program will be February 26 at the Oakland Branch of Garrett Community College from 8:30 to 12:30 p.m. Other workshops offered will be Time Management and Volunteer Management.

The workshop on Stress Management will be taught by Dr. Lee Ross, professor in the Psychology Department at Frostburg State College. In the workshop participants will first assess their level of stress. Relaxation exercises will be demonstrated, and principles of utilizing group resources to reduce stress will be illustrated.

To obtain more information on "Management for Community Groups," persons may contact the Garrett County Extension Office, 202 S. Third Street, Oakland; telephone 334-2145.

What Must They Think? . .

It is not often that this writer's pride in Garrett County is shaken. Once in a while, though, something happens that causes us natives to feel truly ashamed.

Such an incident occurred recently in McHenry when three as yet unidentified criminals decided to make an unprovoked attack on a black student of Garrett Community College.

The student was in a telephone booth at an area motel when he noticed a pickup truck drive by and heard crude, racist comments emanating from the vehicle. The student simply turned his back and continued with his telephone conversation.

Moments later, the student was being beaten with two-by-fours by three assailants, who continued to strike him after he had fallen to the ground.

It must have been a horrible experience for the person on the other end of the phone. The student was talking to his mother.

According to GCC faculty and fellow GCC students, this young man is a quiet, polite, considerate person who gets along with everyone. He is a fine athlete and was a solid student at GCC. Note the past tense; for this student is, at this time, planning to leave GCC next week, at the request of his mother.

This student's girl friend, who is described as an outstanding student and another beautiful person, withdrew from GCC last week at the request of her parents.

What must these parents think of Garrett County and its people?

It is our sincere hope that these three gutless bigots will have someone read this column to them this week so they can see what at least one Garrett Countian thinks of them and their behavior. Their sick minds are probably making them feel real proud of what they did. It was, in reality, a cowardly, vicious act by persons who can't really think too much of themselves. If they have any normality about them, their consciences should be gnawing away at them right now for beating another human being with boards, simply because he was born with black instead of white skin. It is a fact that this young man is ten times the man of any of these three criminals.

To this young man, and his friend, we are so sorry for the actions of these persons, whom we assume reside in our county. The great majority of us have respect for all of God's children and welcome each into our county, to live, to visit, or to attend school. Unfortunately, on every beautiful pond there is always a little bit of scum.

We sincerely hope our law enforcement officials will keep abreast of this outrageous situation and do all they can, not only to bring these persons to justice, but to keep similar incidents from happening again.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I find it refreshing to see some positive articles on Garrett Community College students, rather than being bored with the "continuing saga" of the trials and tribulations of a community college.

Amid all the turmoil at GCC, which I see mainly as a power struggle between adults who should know better, it's heartening to know that most of the faculty do care about the students. That's what counts. Must we continue to dredge up old mistakes, rather than determining the best way to serve our students?

It appears as though the problem lies in who's in charge and who wants to be in charge.

It would be terribly nice if the legislators, the state community college board heads, the county commissioners, the trustees, the GCC administration and some of the troubleshooting faculty could quit pointing the finger of blame at each other and get down to brass tacks—educating the students and setting a better example for them.

Hopefully, the college won't be yet another Garrett County failure whose death came at the hands of some self-serving reporter, legislator, county commissioner or college-affiliated big wig who sacrificed integrity for greed.

I salute the students who believe in the fine (mostly) staff of GCC and are attempting, against great odds, to better themselves through higher education.

To those who find it necessary to injure the college which gave them a chance when other colleges might not have, and to those other assorted power-hungry, manipulative individuals who always want it their way or no way, I say wake up! You may be right this time, but you may just as well be wrong the next time. Work it out the best way you can without degrading someone else to make yourself look better.

A new generation looks to you for guidance and quality education. Don't disappoint them.

To the Editor:

Vietnam Veterans of America is a national membership organization devoted to the advancement of the Vietnam era veterans and the well-being of America.

We are concerned with insuring accurate public perceptions of Vietnam veterans and our service as well as being concerned with the removal of institutional and personal barriers to the progress of Vietnam veterans in our society.

We are men and women who are proud of our service and who understand that as Vietnam veterans we help ourselves. No one is going to help us.

We are organizing not only to deal with the problem of Vietnam veterans but to help provide leadership so needed in every sector of American society.

If you've been hearing about and seeing posters concerning the organization of the Vietnam Veterans of America you may have some unanswered questions concerning this group. If so, come to the next organizational meeting on Saturday, February 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Oakland Fire Hall. At this meeting, the goals and purposes of the organization will be explained further. If you have any questions you may contact Jim at 334-6330. Come out and support your brothers.

Could someone please tell me why our Garrett County lawyers do not return our phone calls?

I made phone calls to two different lawyers, one was on another line, the other at the Courthouse. I gave my name and number to return my call. That was over two weeks ago. I have yet to hear from them.

The ones who do not need our business should let the readers know so we would not disturb them.

To the Editor:

Once again it is that month of February when each of us send cards, flowers and candy to those we love and hold dear to our heart.

There is a group of men and women whom we of veterans' organizations hold dear. They are the veterans in hospitals and nursing homes all across our United States of America. During this time in February we ask you to remember them and pay them a visit; just a few words, a pat on the back and your smiling face will let the men like Dick Shaeffer, Chuck McCarthey and Frank Cignoni, along with many, many more, know that you remember, you care, and most of all, you can still find a few moments to say "thank you" to all of them for a job well done and for a country free and at peace.

Even though these veterans receive tender loving care by the administratration and staff of the nursing homes and hospitals and have "adopted" families from the Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary and are remembered by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Legion, it is from you, their fellow Americans they would love a visit and a smile.

Everytime we needed them to help us, they were there and now that all they need from us is to be remembered and visited, please, "Won't you visit a hospitalized veteran?

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

I hear laws being made about people not smoking in public; and trying to stop the advertising of smoking. Whatever happened to the laws about children buying cigarettes or selling cigarettes to a minor?

I see kids 10 and 12 years old standing around on street corners smoking on those cancerous things.

I just wonder how many concerned parents would be interested in stopping the distribution of this habit forming cancer to our children and smashing all those cigarette machines that are standing around in the United States.

A concerned parent

P.S.

If there would be any concerned citizen having the knowledge who would like to stop this child abuse, I would like to know.

Write to: Eugene Smith, 14 O'Brien Street, Mt. Lake Park, Md. 21550.

To the Editor:

Parents of America, decide for yourself what kind of a society your children will be reared in. Don't let the social planners in the Department of Education in Washington convert our society to a secular humanist society by the year 2000. In our state schools today we are rapidly approaching that goal.

You middle class, who have been discriminated against since the inception of the public schools, use your voting muscle in the '86 elections to bring about a revolution in the educational field. Vote out of office all those legislators both on the national and local levels who for years have been passionately committed to public education and have been the faithful pawns of the National Education Association and the social planners.

In a new day of education, insist that the state either eject itself from the field of education or distribute its tax funds equally to all students both in the private and public sectors on a per pupil basis. After the state, school authorities have set the standard of how much it costs to educate a child in a state school, all parents who have declared their intentions to educate their children in a private school would receive a per child standard allotment from the state for that use.

Since the state school facilities belong to all the people and not the state, the state would have to share these facilities with the private sector. This could be done in a series of steps involving depletion and consolidation. With this plan you could have a realinement of the school facilities to accommodate both sectors.

Sincerely yours,
Cornelius U. Morgan

Back To Normal?

by Mary I. Love

It's more than three months since the flood. Are things back to normal in Parsons?

No. Life has more or less assumed a routine, but too much has been lost, not only materially, but also in people's confidence to say that things are "back to normal". Some things will never be back, and what becomes "normal" may not be the same as it was before November.

Going to Parsons fairly often, I have watched the clean-up progress and am at least partly aware of how much has been done. But last week a friend went with me, someone who had not been there since before the flood. She found the devastation appalling.

Many of the large, well-kept old houses that had been knocked off their foundations have been burned in enormous bonfires. Others, that had remained structurally sound, are being repaired. Doors, windows, and porches have been replaced, and uprooted trees and other debris have been removed. Service stations, a couple of restaurants, and store or two are back in business. The main streets no longer look like mud roads, and heavy equipment continues to remove slabs of broken pavement.

The flood waters had flowed through the public library, taking books, magazines, and shelves out the floor-length windows, but with aid from Charleston and from private bake sales, the library is being repaired and restocked.

The distribution center for food and clothing is now open three days a week instead of six, but people are still usng it, and are also seeking repairs or replacements for stoves, toasters, sweepers, dishes, and the multitude of household items that we accumulate and take for granted. One woman happily picked up a somewhat tattered piece of carpeting, "for my floor is still damp and cold."

As for the people, the initial shock and mobilization to meet a crisis are wearing off. Fatigue from weeks of coping is setting in, and so is the realization of loss. Every so often someone remembers something else that is gone: a photograph album, a souvenir, a keepsake that cannot be replaced. People are carrying on, wearily, gallantly, or stolidly, doing what must be done. But life is not back to normal, and normal will never be what it was.

Did you ever wonder what the Noah family found when they left the Ark? And they had fair warning.

still unexpended of the total 1986 appropriations of $2,028,134.

Culp also outlined the audit report saying that measures were being taken or problem areas had already been corrected on the items for which they had been cited.

In other financial matters, the board approved Rodeheaver and Associates to do the external audit report for GCC this spring.

State Board Visit

Dr. Lillian Mitchell, dean of academic affairs, reported that the evaluation team from the State Board for Higher Education would be arriving in Garrett County on Sunday for a two and one-half day evaluation of the college.

She said they would be talking with the administration, staff and faculty and would be taking tours of the physical plant.

Dr. Mitchell also announced that the first five chapters of the Middle States Evaluation Report had been sent to that board and that the additional four chapters would be completed and sent by April 1, the deadline for reports to be mailed.

Middle States' evaluates the college by way of a visit to the college every ten years and requires a written report from the college every five years, according to Dr. Mitchell.

The dean also added that faculty evaluations were being completed and would be reviewed by faculty members in the near future so that they may "see exactly where they stand."

Student Government

Dr. Nancy Priselac, dean of student affairs, introduced Lily Jeffries from the student government association who reported on the recent student activities which included a Valentine's Dance, various fundraisers, the improvement of the student learning center, the pep club, and the yearbook name contest.

Dr. Priselac praised the members of the student body who have been working on various committees to promote student affairs at GCC. She also commended Manning Smith, director of student services, for "the fine job he has done in such a short period of time."

The dean noted that the work-study program involved 48 students this year and said the money earned toward college

"This isn't exactly what I had in mind when I asked for a larger pay check, sir."

Our Turn

Babyitis

by Pam Ashby

I'm convinced that women with strong maternal instincts who are too old to have any more of their own children and yet too young to have grandchildren should be protected from society.

Why, one may ask? Because I, and many of my friends, fall into that mid-life category. Trust me. We know. We could tell you stories. As a matter of fact, I'm going to tell you one now.

A dear friend of mine and I were at a large shopping mall recently when we spied a woman nursing a tiny infant. At the same instant, we looked at each other and burst into tears and began babbling about never feeling that warm and wonderful sensation again.

As we embraced each other for comfort, a crowd began forming around us and people began to stare and point at the two crazies. We escaped the mob in an embarrassed huff and ducked into the nearest shop. Unfortunately, it was (you guessed it) a maternity shop.

Once inside, my friend absent-mindedly began trying on the latest mother-to-be styles while I secretly caressed the soft terry sleepers and crib "blankies." The store reeked of baby lotion and soon we were a blubbering mess as we tried to convince the store clerk that we were not really pregnant. A crowd began to form again.

Blinded by tears and high on baby lotion, we stumbled out of the shop and found ourselves, of all places, in a toy store. Well . . . we did have older children who wanted us to look for some new computer game.

When my friend turned her back, though, I sneaked into the doll section to check out the new doll everyone was talking about which looked and felt uncannily like a real baby. As I stood there rocking the tiny baby doll and trying to decide on a name for her, I heard someone humming Brahm's "Lullaby."

So there we stood humming contentedly to our "new" babies when the manager asked us to leave quietly so as not to disturb the crowd that had gathered. Feeling emotionally drained, we solemnly sauntered to a nearby restaurant for lunch.

We began chatting about the advantages of having older children—no diapers, no bottles, no displaced hips from having babies slung over them, no safety gates at the top of the stairs, no spit-up stains on our shoulders, no playpen taking up the entire living room and the best plus of all, no 2 a.m. feedings. Yes, we were feeling pretty superior to those new, tied-down mothers until suddenly . . . no . . . it wasn't . . . it was . . . the clackety-clack of stroller wheels approaching.

prise to any of the counties."

She noted that Garrett County has been undergoing an assessment of what they will do without federal revenue sharing for the past several years.

Congresswoman Byron then stated that she agreed with the principle of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act to help put the federal government's budget back into balance.

Finally, Byron announced that she had filed for re-election before coming to Garrett County. She said she filed early because she saw no purpose in making people wonder what her decision was.

Commissioner Gregg commented this week at a press conference about Byron, "We've always had a good working relationship with Congresswoman Byron. She has always maintained a helpful attitude toward Garrett County. We certainly appreciate the efforts her office makes on behalf of our county."

Commissioner Groves then stated, "Congresswoman Byron has always gone the extra mile to maintain a good rapport with Sixth District officials. Her influence has many times made the difference between success or failure on many different issues since we've been in office."

Commissioner John Braskey was unable to attend the meeting with Byron as he was on vacation.

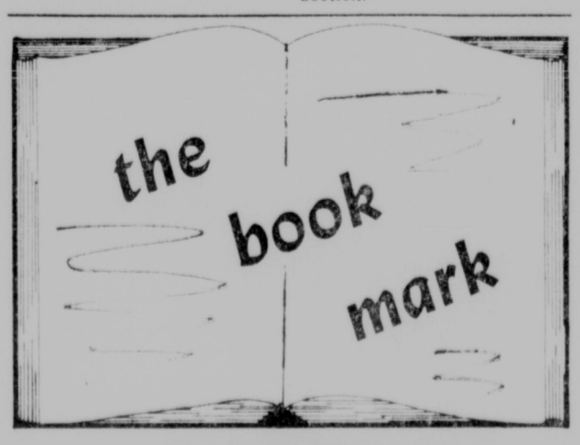
Dr. Priselac then spoke of recruitment activities which have been occurring since October.

She reminded the board that May 14 had been set aside as "Career Day" at GCC. She said one of the highlights of the event would be the visit from former students "who had made it" following their education at Southern, Northern and GCC.

Policies Approved

Also at Tuesday's meeting the board approved the New Board Member Policy and the articulation agreement with the Garrett County Board of Education.

The articulation agreement will allow for the trading of services and facilities between the two boards.



The next board of trustees meeting is scheduled for March 18.

Dr. Pope concluded that the Health Department would work with the public in making the transition in evaluating procedures brought about by the new regulation as smooth as possible.

Individuals desiring additional information on these new procedures should call 334-8111 and talk with one of the sanatarians in the Environmental Health section.

The first book I'd like to mention this edition is by the author of Overload and the book that the series Hotel is based on. The author is Author Hailey and the book is Strong Medicine. It is the story of two people: Dr. Andrew Jordan and his wife, Celia de Gray-Jordan. Andrew is in medicine, while Celia is in pharmaceuticals. Their lives are poignant and always dramatic, as they deal with crisis at the hospital, at Felding-Roth Pharmaceuticals, and at home. This novel has love, drama and plenty of romance. It lays out the world of drug creators; the creators and distributors of the drugs we take. A very good tale!

Have you ever sat back and thought about the town you grew up in? Have you ever wished you could capture all the warmth and vivid people who have enriched your life immensely? Helen Hooven Santmyer has done just that in Ohio Town. By the author of ". . . And Ladies of the Club" comes a warm, humorous look at the town she has resided in for well over eighty years; Xenia, Ohio. In this book you'll find real people. People as real as the ones you and I know and love. And you'll find the warmth, humor, and true American spirit of Miss Santmyer. This book is truly a classic, and something we all, at one time, have dreamt about doing; capturing our home town in writing . . . forever.

Next time, I will review Organized Crimes by Nicholas Von Hoffman; and a book about a summer—and many years of living—you'll never forget.

Correction Noted

In last week's Republican, the front-page article listing the results of the Friendsville municipal election reported that Joseph E. Sisler was elected to serve on the town council. The correct name of the newly elected councilman is Joseph E. Sessa.

The 1-800-492-7122 number also may be used to obtain the status of bills and resolutions. Callers must have a bill or resolution number when inquiring about legislation.

Top Ecologist To Speak About Local Peat Bogs

A world renowned ecologist whose scientific work has taken him not only across North America but also into Great Britain and New Zealand will be a guest lecturer on the Frostburg State College campus next Thursday, February 27, at 7 p.m. in Tawes Hall.

Ian A. Worley, a University of Vermont biology professor whose expertise is in peat bog ecology and other fields has earned him numerous consulting positions, including those for the National Geographic Society, Time-Life books, the US Department of the Interior and the National Science Foundation, will address environmental issues related to Garrett County's Glades peat bog.

His special talk, "The Glades: Preservation in a Global Perspective," is sponsored by Frostburg's biology department and the University of Maryland's Appalachian Environmental Laboratory on campus.

The 450-acre swamp and peat bog, located off Rock Lodge Road in Bittinger, has generated considerable attention in recent months as various environmental groups, including the Nature Conservancy and the Sierra Club, have expressed interest in preserving the bog, while the private owners of the Garrett Processing and Packaging Corporation have resisted most groups ever since the company outbid the Nature Conservancy in 1983 for an adjacent land parcel also containing bog land.

Since then, various environmental groups have attempted to acquire the bog, against the wishes of the business owners.

"Dr. Worley's presence on our campus is in keeping with a college goal of providing objective information by experts to the community," said Dr. William J. Vail, head of the college's biology department. "Many persons, from local environmentalists to state forest, park and wildlife personnel should find the presentation of interest."

Worley is the author of over 100 reports and papers and over 20 special publications, including a 1982 report to the Nature Conservancy on Garrett County's Cherry Creek Glades.

He has also been the recipient of numerous research grants, including one for the National Geographic Society for peatland studies in Alaska and one for the National Park Service on the Glacier Bay National Monument.

The scientist holds a Ph.D. in botany from the University of British Columbia, a master of science with distinction from the University of Canterbury, New Zealand, and two bachelor's degrees earned simultaneously with high honors in mathematics and physics from Youngstown University.

Worley has also studied and conducted research under several National Science Foundation fellowships as well as Fulbright-Hayes and Killam fellowships. He holds memberships in 15 professional and honorary organizations, including Phi Beta Kappa and the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Born in Athens, Ga., he now resides in Middlebury, Vermont.

INTERNATIONAL CHAMPS RETURN TO AMERICA — Members of the Southern Garrett Winterguard returned from New Brighton, England Monday night victorious. They placed third out of 48 international guards competing in the championships. The Avant Courir Drum and Bugle Corps from Holland took first place while the other United States team from Indio High School, Palm Springs, Calif. placed second. The competition for first place was extremely tight as the Southern Winterguard missed first place by only nine-tenths of one percent. A spokesman from the group said the guard was at a slight disadvantage because the rules and floor space in England were different from America's. "We know the kids did an outstanding job and Garrett County as well as the state can be very proud of them for their most honorable representation," said one parent. The students said they were treated "like royalty" by their host families in England. One English housemother said she was hoping for a nice girl to stay with her, but what she got was perfection. A feature on the Winterguard's experiences in England will appear in next week's edition of The Republican.

Scout Candy Sale Continuing

A spokesman for Cub Scout Pack 31, Oakland, reminded residents this week that the Pack's annual Easter Candy Sale is now underway, featuring hand-dipped chocolates, nuts, bunnies, and eggs. Persons wishing to place an order and who are not contacted by a member of the Pack may call 334-2722. The deadline to place an order is Wednesday, February 26.

Proceeds from the sale are used to support the Scout programs and activities.

Vietnam Vets Slate Meeting

An organizational meeting of the Vietnam Veterans of America will be held Saturday, February 22 at 7:30 p.m. at the Oakland Fire Hall.

"If you served in the U.S. military during the Vietnam War, your attendance at this meeting is greatly needed," said a spokesman from the group.

Those desiring additional information may contact Jim at 334-8330.

Dinner Cancelled

The spaghetti dinner which was to be held by St. Pauls United Methodist Church in Oakland this Saturday for the benefit of the House of Hope has been cancelled until a later date in March, according to a spokesman from the church.

Those reading the announcement of the dinner elsewhere in The Republican are asked to disregard it.

O.C.P.D. Arrests Swanton Juvenile

A 16-year old Swanton juvenile was arrested Monday evening and charged with the theft of a vehicle and the unsafe operation of a vehicle.

According to reports filed by the Oakland City Police Department, the youth had taken the 1973 Dodge pickup from his father without permission.

Area State Police Investigate Thefts

Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment this week are investigating several thefts which occurred in the area.

Ralph W. Hinebaugh, Friendsville, reported a theft at his residence February 4.

According to police reports, someone stole a hydraulic grapple used for loading logs and six hydraulic hoses for the grapple.

Total losses were valued at $2,700.

Tfc. C.R. Smith is investigating the incident.

Two snowmobiles were stolen from the porch of a cabin on the Gravelly Run Road owned by Vincent S. Curl, Bowie, sometime between February 9 and February 13.

The snowmobiles were described as 1981 Arctic Cat Panteras, both brown with an orange stripe.

The police reported that one snowmobile had been recovered. Total value of the other snowmobile reached $1,600.

A ski theft was reported at the Wisp Ski Lodge Saturday by Jessica J. Donnelly, Pittsburgh.

According to police reports, the skis were Head Edge skis, silver with red stripes, with Tyrolia bindings. Total loss reached $250.

Another ski theft was reported last Tuesday at the Wisp by Melanie K. Thomas, Oakland.

According to police reports, the skis are Hexel, with blue and white letters. The bindings are of an unknown type.

Total loss reached $100.

Foxes Named To Positions With Preston News

Robert Teets, publisher/editor of the Preston County News, has named a Mountain Lake Park couple to management positions with the newspaper.

Teets appointed Carol L. Fox to the post of managing editor, while Harry M. Fox will serve as the News' general manager.

Mrs. Fox, a Uniontown, Pa., native, is a former freelance writer. In 1980 she joined The Republican newspaper as staff writer. She was also an editorial columnist and feature writer.

She is affiliated with the National Association of Female Executives and is a member of the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women.

Fox, a native of Baltimore, began his newspaper career in 1974 in the circulation department of the Montgomery County Sentinel in Rockville. In 1977 he joined The Republican, where he served as advertising manager and was also an editorial columnist.

He is a lay worship leader for the Western Pennsylvania-West Virginia synod of the Lutheran Church in America, and is presently serving Holy Trinity church in Newburg and other congregations.

Since 1983, Mr. and Mrs. Fox have been publishers of The Citizen Record weekly newspaper. In 1984 they received Maryland-Delaware-D.C. Press Association's first place award for community service advertising, and second place in the editorial cartoon in division V.

4-H Club News

YOUGH VALLEY INDIANS
by William Nedrow, reporter

The February 10 meeting of the Yough Valley Indians was called to order by Becky Meyers, president. Roll call was answered by eight members and four leaders.

Jeff Lowdermilk gave the treasurer's report. Pat Bowser, co-leader, talked about how to get a Social Security number. She also explained that for some of the project books, the members would have to pay anywhere from .50 to $1.50.

The club decided to sell candy bars to purchase either sweatshirts or T-shirts to wear to the fair.

Demonstrations were given by Tammy Wakefield on how to make peanut butter-marshmallow candy, on her automobile project, on rabbits and on babysitting.

Barbie Umbel gave a demonstration on canning and food preservation and on her dog, Daisy Mae.

NORTH STAR
by Melissa Thomas, reporter

The February meeting was called to order by Jodi Rush, president. The attendance was taken and minutes were read by Melissa Thomas, secretary, and the treasurer's report was read by Dana Friend.

The speech contest was discussed under old business and it was decided our club speeches would be held at Nancy Friend's house on February 22.

It was decided to hold an Easter Egg Hunt for our club on March 22.

A demonstration on nutrition was given for the club by Melissa Thomas. Several different items were prepared by Melissa and served to the club for lunch.

SHEPHERDS CLUB
by Teresa Wright, reporter

The Shepherds 4-H Club met January 17, at Barbara Leininger's home. This meeting replaced the January 13 meeting which was cancelled due to weather conditions.

Officers were elected as follows: president, Barbara Leininger; vice president, John Wright; secretary, David Jones; treasurer, Sam Wright; reporter, Teresa Wright; and refreshments, Chris Jones.

David Jones and John Wright, junior members; Barbara Leininger and Sam Wright, intermediate members, will represent the club in the area speech contest. Chris Jones, pre-junior, also gave a speech.

Alice Hevner showed the members how to assemble their record books.

The Garrett County Shepherds 4-H Club met Monday, February 10, at the home of Barbara Leininger.

The meeting was opened with the pledges led by Sam Wright. President Barbara Leininger conducted the business meeting.

Sheep Field Day, Achievement Night, County Council, the broiler contest and speech contest were discussed.

Ted Sprangel, Extension Agent, presented a program on giving demonstrations.

Barbara Leininger, John Wright and Sam Wright will each give a demonstration at the March 10 meeting.

GRANTSVILLE CLUB
by Tom Durst, secretary

Our meeting took place on February 3, with 20 members present.

The exchange trip to Worcester County was discussed. New 4-H membership cards were handed out for 1986. We also discussed fund raising events for our summer trip.

Library Corner

Dial-A-Story for the Ruth Enlow Library in the Oakland area is back in operation and may be called anytime for a three or four minute story. The number is 334-3250.

"Alice Adventures in Wonderland", "Hayburners", and "The Tender Tale of Cinderella Penquin" will be shown Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at the Oakland branch of the Ruth Enlow Library.

Aurora VFD Purchases New Pumper-Tanker

After eight years of work, planning, and anticipation, the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department took delivery last week on a 1986 Ford C-800, 1,800 gallon per minute tanker/pumper. The unit replaces a 1961 International 1,050 gpm tanker.

The cab and chassis of the new vehicle was purchased through Ashby Fire Equipment Company, Oakland from Beamer Ford, Inc., Somerset, Pa. Four Guys, Inc., Meyersdale, Pa., installed the tanker/pumper unit.

The major function of the new vehicle, which is equipped with a ten-inch dumb valve, is to supply water to the Aurora VFD's 750 gpm Class A pumper, or any other pumper of a neighboring department, and it can also serve as an attack unit since it is equipped with a 400 gpm Midship pump.

According to a spokesman for the Aurora VFD, the department is planning a major fund-raising campaign for June of this year, which will include an open house to show the public the department's firefighting capabilities. It was necessary for the department to borrow money to complete payment on the vehicle and the spokesman reminds local citizens that all contributions to the Aurora VFD are tax deductible. Persons may send donations to the Aurora VFD, P.O. Box 28, Aurora, WV 26705. Ernest Shaffer is the treasurer.

The spokesman also noted that the area served by the Aurora VFD has a Class 9 insurance rating and this updating of equipment serves to maintain that rating, which means lower property owner insurance premiums.

CAC Accepting Applications For Food Distribution

The Garrett County Community Action Committee, Inc. has announced it is now accepting applications for the Surplus Commodity Distribution in March. Persons interested in applying may do so at the Community Action Office in Oakland. Deadline for receipt of application is March 5. Eligibility is based upon household size and total household income.

Households that received Commodity Cards for the distribution held in December do not need to reapply. Also, households that have received Energy Assistance this winter do not need to apply separately for the commodities. They will automatically be sent a Commodity Card in the mail. Persons having questions may call 334-9431.

On Dean's List

The Western Maryland College dean's list has been announced for the 1985 fall semester. Inclusion on the list requires a minimum 3.4 grade point average on a 4.0 scale. Highest honors are earned for a 3.8-4.0 average, high honors for a 3.6-3.79 average, and honor for a 3.4-3.59 average.

Students from Garrett County included on the fall '85 dean's list are: Scott Victor Watkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert V. Watkins, Grantsville; and Sara Lynn Roberson, highest honors, daughter of Mr. Douglas L. Roberson, Kitzmiller.

Western Maryland College, situated in the heart of Carroll County, was the first private, coeducational institution south of the Mason-Dixon Line.

Former Resident Is Honor Graduate

Pamela K. Bittinger, a former Garrett County resident, was presented the "Outstanding Student" award at her graduation from Anderson Memorial Hospital School of Medical Technology, Anderson, S.C. Along with her pin and diploma, she received the award for her leadership skills, scholarship and technical capabilities.

Before entering her 12-month hospital internship, she had completed 90 semester hours toward a college degree in medical technology at Thiel College in Greenville, Pa.

After spending Christmas with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Bittinger, Mtn. Lake Park, she returned to Anderson Memorial Hospital where she is employed as medical technologist in the chemistry lab.

Guest Missionaries Slated To Speak

Rev. and Mrs. Ken Blish will be the guest speakers for a service at the Oakland Church of the Nazarene tonight at 7 p.m. The church is located at Eighth and Alder streets and the public is welcome to attend, according to a spokesman from the church.

Rev. and Mrs. Blish recently returned to the United States for furlough after serving as missionaries in Ecuador for the past five years.

Rev. Blish received his bachelor of arts degree from the State University of New York at Fredonia and his master of divinity degree from Nazarene Theological Seminary in Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Blish received her bachelor of science degree in elementary education from the State University of New York and also did graduate studies there and at the seminary.

Both Rev. and Mrs. Blish said they felt God's call to missionary service while studying at Fredonia. After graduation, Rev. Blish worked as a psychiatric social worker in New York, while Mrs. Blish taught school.

Following seminary, the Blishes pastored in Florida for four years.

They are the parents of three children, Rebecca, Andrew and Deborah.

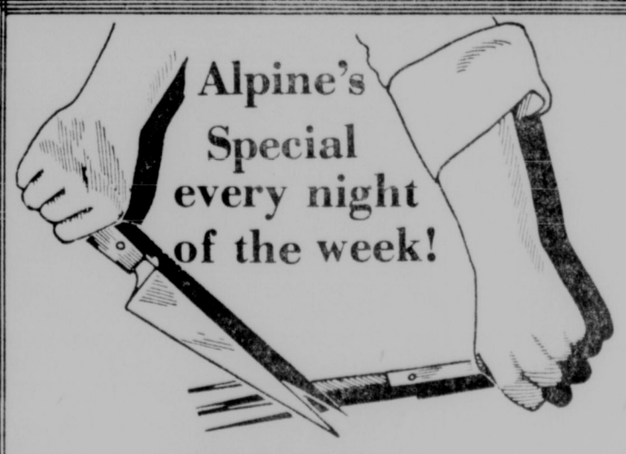
PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the comprehensive preschool registration program which began nine years ago as a joint venture with the Garrett County Health Department will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September, 1986.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during April and May, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Parents must register any child who will be six years old before January 1, 1987, and may register any child who will be five years old before January 1, 1987.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out the registration blank at the end of this article and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a letter notifying them of the date, time and place of their appointment for the preschool registration program.



Parents are requested to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization record and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. In addition, each child registering for school will be screened in the areas of vision, hearing, and motor development. Additional services will include height, weight, and health appraisal and dental screening.

If you have a child who is not already enrolled in school, but is ready and/or required to attend school during the 1986-87 school year, please fill in the following information and mail it to the Garrett County Public Schools. Upon receipt of the following form, the office of Pupil Services will contact you to schedule an appointment for you and your child.

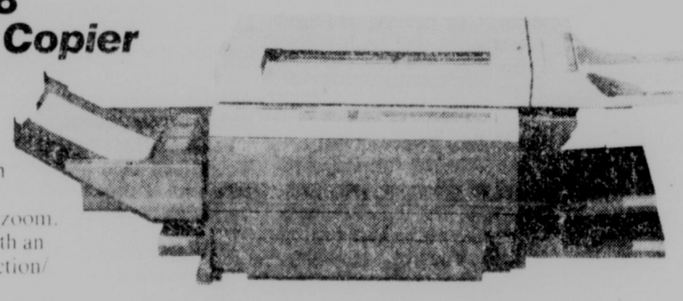
Now Xerox products hit home!



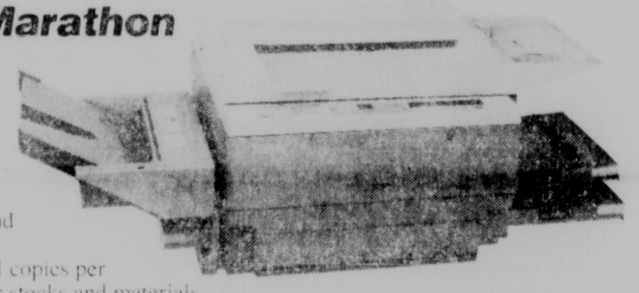
We're your local Authorized Xerox Sales Agent.

Doctor, lawyer, merchant, chief . . . no matter what your business or profession, we have the Xerox products to help increase your office productivity.

You don't have to search for Xerox products . . . or Xerox supplies, any more. Your fingers don't have to stroll through a phone book. Just come in and we'll demonstrate the newest machines for 1986.

Like these . . .

Xerox 1038 Marathon Copier

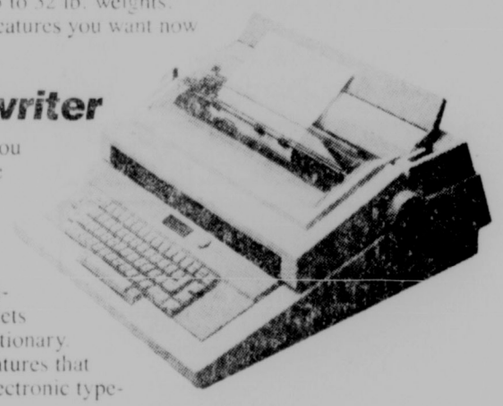


In just 60 seconds, the compact 1038 will zip out 25 standard 8½" x 11" copies. Or, thirteen 11" x 17" copies.

Beyond zip, you get zoom. From 64% to 156% with an optional variable reduction/enlargement feature.

The 1038 is modular, too. You can add a high-capacity feeder, three-tray paper supply, color copying and more . . . to meet your growing productivity needs.

And the reproduction quality? Excellent!

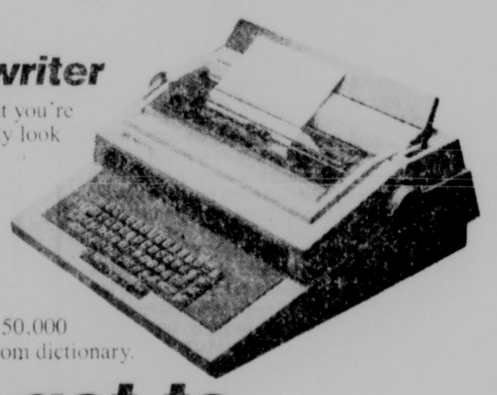


Xerox 1025 Marathon Copier

The 1025 is the smallest desktop copier anywhere, with a stationary platen . . . you can copy from almost any original, including books and computer printouts.

The 1025 delivers up to 21 copies per minute on a variety of paper stocks and materials, in sizes from 4⅛ x 5⅞ up to 11 x 17, and in 13 to 32 lb. weights. Its 16 modular combinations let you buy the features you want now and add more as you grow.

Xerox 6015 Memorywriter



The 6015 has a 15 character display that lets you see what you've typed and catch errors before they appear on paper.

It also lets you correct an entire previous line . . . up to 250 characters automatically without any manual changing.

A new option on the 6015 checks your documents against a 50,000 word dictionary, and lets you create an additional 500 custom-word dictionary.

Plus, the 6015 gives you all the standard features that have made Memorywriter the number one electronic typewriter brand in America.

Xerox 6010 Memorywriter

New sloping design lets you instantly see what you're typing no matter how infrequently you actually look at the page.

Touching the End Key returns you instantly to where you left off after making a correction . . . no manual changing.

The 6010 has a memory that protects what you've typed . . . even if you accidentally backspace past the correction memory.

And the 6010 also lets you add the optional 50,000 word dictionary and additional 500 word custom dictionary.

We'd like to get to know you.

Lakers Edged By Powerful Hawks; Preparing For JUCO Tournament

The Garrett Community College Lakers wrapped up their regular season Saturday evening with a 72-64 loss to powerful Hagerstown Junior College on the Hawks' floor. The defeat dropped the Lakers' record to 18-10, while Hagerstown finished with a 21-6 mark.

The Hawks held Garrett at arm's length throughout most of the first half, taking a 34-24 advantage into the locker room at halftime. The Lakers attempted to rally in the second half and pulled to within five points, 67-62, with just 40 seconds remaining in the contest on a slam dunk by Sean Hazel. They could get no closer, however.

Jim Feagins, the Lakers' leading scorer, once again paced Garrett with a game-high 27 points and five assists. Jerry Monroe added 16 points for the Lakers, while Hazel finished with ten.

The Hawks were led offensively by Jeff Reynolds with 17 points. Steve Huff netted 14 and Reggie Truitt, 11.

The Lakers, who finished with a 7-7 mark in the American Division of the Maryland JUCO Conference, will begin postseason play this Friday in the second round of the 12-team JUCO tournament at Hagerstown.

Seeded fourth in the tournament and finishing in third place in the American Division standings, the Lakers will face the winner of the Prince Georges CC-Essex game on Friday at 2 p.m.

Three other teams—Allegany CC, Charles CC, and Hagerstown, seeded one, two, and three, respectively—also drew byes in the opening round of the tourney.

The semi-finals of the tournament are slated for 6 and 8 p.m. on Saturday and the championship contest will be at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Rams Record Wins Over Stags, Golden Tornado

The Southern Rams improved their record to 7-11 this past week by edging Elk Garden Friday evening, 57-51, on the Stags' floor and then topping Keyser in overtime, 54-48, Saturday night in Oakland in a make-up contest.

Coach Oren Yoder's squad will entertain Bishop Walsh this Friday evening and then wrap up the regular season with games against Beall and Bruce, both in Oakland.

Behind a 16-point performance by Max Hill on Friday evening, the Rams broke a 29-29 halftime tie to outscore the Stags 17-10 in the third stanza and then hold on for the win. Southern had been on top 13-6 in the first quarter before a second-period rally by the Stags.

Also reaching double figures for Southern were Danny Jackson and Jim Liller, who netted 13 and 11 points, respectively.

Pacing Elk Garden was Frank Shillingburg with 14 points, while teammates Greg Moreland and Joe Nelson each finished with ten.

Six free throws in the last two minutes by Max Hill secured the Rams' win over Keyser on Saturday.

The Golden Tornado moved out to a 15-11 advantage by the end of the first quarter and were on top 27-22 at halftime. But the Rams' defense came back to hold Keyser scoreless throughout the entire third period, giving Southern a 32-27 lead as the final stanza of regulation time opened.

The Tornado came back in the fourth period to knot the score at 42 each when the buzzer sounded, sending the game into overtime.

Behind Hill's free throws, Southern then outscored the visitors, 12-6, in the overtime period. It was the 12th loss of the campaign for Keyser, against just two wins.

Jon Reneslacis was the top scorer for the Rams with a game-high 18 points, followed by Hill with 12, Jackson with 11, and Jeff Sweitzer with ten. Jackson also grabbed ten rounds.

Mike Smith was the only Keyser player in double figures with 13 points.

The Rams won the contest at the foul line, as they were outgunned by the floor by a 16-15 margin. Southern made good on 24 of 33 free tosses, compared to a 16-for-21 effort by Keyser.

Dribblers Night Slated At SHS

Dave Bender, director of the Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club youth basketball league, stated that this Friday evening will be Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club Night at Southern High School.

All members of the league who wear their team jerseys, or identify themselves as members of the league, will be admitted free to the Southern-Bishop Walsh basketball game.

Bender also noted that the club's regular Saturday games were cancelled this past week because of inclement weather.

Southern Girls Lose To Bulldogs And Mountaineers

It was a disappointing week for the Southern girls varsity basketball team, as the Lady Rams saw two games slip away from them by narrow margins. Coach Don Stemple's squad dropped a 40-35 decision to visiting Beall on Friday and then were edged by Bruce on Monday, 46-42, also in Oakland.

The 10-7 Rams will complete their regular season next week with a game against Fort Hill on Tuesday and a return contest at Bruce on Thursday before post-season district competition begins the first week of March.

Beall's Janeen Spence was the only player to reach double figures on Friday, finishing with ten points, while Kendra Stemple and Trisha Heatherman each netted eight points for Southern.

The Rams were on top 8-6 by the end of the first quarter, 16-15 at the half, and 27-26 after three quarters, but were then outscored in the final stanza, 14-8. It was Beall's 11th win in 17 starts.

The Southern girls jayvee squad was nipped in the preliminary contest, 28-26.

Although Kendra Stemple finished with a game-high 17 points against Bruce on Monday, it was not enough, as the Bruce girls recorded their 11th win in 19 games behind a 13-point effort by Stacy Nash.

Jennifer Hurd added ten points for the Bulldogs, who led at the quarters, 15-10, 27-22, and 35-34.

The evening was not a total loss for Southern fans, however, as the girls jayvee team edged the Bruce jayvees in the preliminary, 31-27, behind a 15-point performance by Southern's Marci Stemple.

Huskies Defeat Meyersdale Before Losing To Bruce

An 18-point, ten-rebound, five-assist performance by Mike Robeson highlighted a 54-51 Northern High School victory over Meyersdale Friday evening on the Pennsylvanians floor, however the Huskies then dropped a 61-51 decision to visiting Bruce Tuesday night, which lowered their season record to 8-12.

The Huskies will attempt to get back on track this Friday evening against Beall at Frostburg State College.

Matt Eggleston and Bill Torres also finished in double figures against Meyersdale, netting 12 and 11 points, respectively, as the Huskies led throughout the contest. Northern was on top 20-13 at the end of the first quarter, stretched that advantage to 37-29 at halftime, and maintained an eight-point lead at the conclusion of the third stanza, 45-37.

Both teams finished with 19 buckets, but the Huskies outshot the host team at the foul line, sinking 16 of 30, compared to a 13-for-19 effort by Meyersdale.

Torres also grabbed 13 rebounds for Northern and Eggleston pulled down 12.

John Harmke netted 18 points for the Northern jayvees in the preliminary contest, however the junior Huskies lost, 52-34, against their Meyersdale counterparts.

The Huskies led after the first quarter on Tuesday evening against Bruce, 13-11, but the Bulldogs came back to take a 26-24 advantage at the half, a 44-38 lead by the end of the third period, and then held off a Husky rally late in the game. Northern was down by only one with about three minutes remaining, but a pair of Husky turnovers were converted by the Bulldogs, who also hit nine of ten free throws down the stretch when Northern was forced to foul.

Scott Costilow scored 15 points in pacing four Bulldogs who finished in double figures. R.L. Fisher sunk 13 points, Alex Taylor netted 12, and Troy Raines finished with ten points. John Brobst led the Huskies with 15 points, while Torres and Eggleston contributed 12 and ten, respectively.

The Huskies out-gunned the Bulldog from the floor, 25-22, but made good on only two of seven free throw opportunities, while Bruce sunk 17 of 21.

It was the ninth win of the campaign for Bruce against eight defeats.

The Northern jayvees were also victims of their Bruce counterparts, losing 48-38, despite a 20-point effort by John Harmke.

Blackwater Youth Ski Club Sets Kickoff Festival

Blackwater Falls State Park and White Grass Ski Touring Center are sponsoring a cross-country ski club for local youth age 13 and under. The club is a part of the Bill Koch Ski League and a kickoff festival is set for Sunday, February 23, at 1 p.m. at Blackwater Falls State Park.

The purpose of the festival is to introduce area youth to cross-country skiing. Activities will include films, instruction, games and a spaghetti dinner. Annual membership dues for the club are five dollars, which provides a membership card, newsletters, wall poster, Bill Koch Ski League sticker and calender for each member.

Every youth participating in the festival will also receive a festival patch.

All eligible local youth and their families are invited to attend the festival activities. For more information, persons may contact John Northeimer at (304) 259-5511.

CELEBRATE FITNESS DURING POTATO LOVER'S MONTH

Now that the new year is a month old, how are you doing with your resolution to shed those extra pounds? Are you still looking for new ways to eat well, without all the fat and calories? Then celebrate America's favorite vegetable during Potato Lover's Month.

Potato Lover's Month, held each February, salutes the nation's commitment to better health by reminding Americans that potatoes are a delicious, nutritious and economical addition to an active lifestyle.

Once thought to be a dieter's foe, a potato actually contains no fat or cholesterol for only 110 calories per medium potato (½ pound). Plus a medium potato provides 50 percent of the U.S. RDA of vitamin C, 15 percent of vitamin B6 and iodine, 10 percent of niacin, and 8 percent of thiamin, iron, folacin, phosphorus, magnesium and copper. A potato also has more potassium, 750 mg., than most commonly eaten foods and provides 2,710 mg. of dietary fiber.

Potatoes are a great way to eat on a budget. Since this year's potato harvest was outstanding, you can take advantage of exceptionally low prices while providing your family with a delicious, nutritious entree.

You will be amazed at their versatility since potatoes are one of the few vegetables that are perfect any time of day. You can serve them as hash browns at breakfast, in a salad for lunch or baked for dinner. Plus potato snacks, like potato skins or french fries, are a fun, nutritious appetizer for family and friends.

To participate in Potato Lover's Month, just enjoy your favorite "plain" potato—baked, mashed, boiled and French fried. Or, if you are looking for something a little different, try the following recipe during the February celebration.

CRISP POTATO SKINS

6 medium potatoes (about 2 pounds)
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 teaspoon soy sauce

Preheat oven to 400° F. Scrub potatoes thoroughly and pierce each with a fork. Bake until potatoes are tender, about 45 minutes to 1 hour. Cool, then cut in quarters lengthwise and then in half crosswise to form 8 sections. Scoop flesh from skins leaving 1/8-inch shell. Reserve flesh for use in another recipe. Increase oven temperature to 500° F. Mix together melted butter and soy sauce and brush on both sides of skins. Place skins on baking sheet and bake until crisp, about 10 to 12 minutes. These can be made ahead and reheated in 400° F. oven for about 8 minutes. Serve sprinkled with coarse salt, and if you wish, with one of your favorite dips.

EXTENSION HAPPENINGS

The "Leadership Workshop" scheduled for February 27 at the Bittinger Fire Hall has been cancelled due to the illness of the instructor. IN LOVING MEMORY OF OUR FATHER, EVERETT GREEN, WHO PASSED AWAY FEBRUARY 18, 1984

God, please deliver a message to a very dear friend of mine. You called him from earth two years ago, although he left many loved ones behind. Tell him how much we all miss him, and that he is thought about every day. Thank him for being so special, which he was in so many ways.

A father who could never be forgotten, or even the little things he used to do. Fathers are wonderful aren't they, Lord? But then, you already know that don't you?

Church News

Lenten services were held at Emmanuel on Ash Wednesday and will be continued during the Lenten season. This Wednesday, worship service will be held at St. John's, beginning at 8 p.m.

Harry Fox will conduct services all during Lent, and the theme of his meditations will be "Great Words of Our Faith."

Lectors on Sunday were Marvin Beckman, St. John's; Dennis Buckel, Emmanuel; and Nellie Yommer, Zion.

Parish year books have been completed and were distributed on Sunday. There are enough for one for each family.

Emmanuel's LCW meeting was cancelled last week because of the stormy weather.

St. John's LCW will meet on Thursday at 7 p.m. at the church. There will be a hymn practice preceding the LCW meeting.

On Sunday there was a Valentine Day celebration and discussions on Love at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church. In the evening, the youth group of the church had a carry-in supper celebration and a Valentine party. On Tuesday evening of this week, the young adults of the church will also have a carry-in Valentine party for their own group.

There will be a planning meeting for World Day of Prayer Service at the United Methodist Church in McHenry on Friday, February 21 at 2 p.m. Any person who cares to help in the planning is urged to attend.

Marketing Western Maryland Coal Main Topic Of Annapolis Meeting

Marketing western Maryland coal, particularly Garrett County coal, was the purpose of a meeting between Garrett County officials, Maryland Coal Association heads and representatives from Maryland's Department of Economic and Community Development last Wednesday in Annapolis.

Garrett County officials attending were Commissioner Elwood Groves II, County Clerk Robert Fousek, Development Corporation Director Thomas Jones and Planning and Zoning Director John Nelson. Attending from the Maryland Coal Association were John Carey, president, and Jim Oberhaus. Tim Torba and James Pfeiffer represented the Business and Industrial Development Office, a branch of DECD, and Harold R. Zassenhaus, represented DECD's Office of International Trade.

Al Whitehouse of Buffalo Coal Corporation and Thomas Gearhart of Mettiki Coal Corporation also attended the Annapolis meeting.

One of the main topics of discussion was marketing coal through DECD's international office in Brussels, Belgium.

"We're hoping that office can find an effective way to market our coal in Europe," said Groves.

"There was also a good discussion on what the state could do to market its own coal," Groves continued. "It is my understanding that a significant amount of West Virginia and Pennsylvania coal is burned in Maryland facilities and power plants. We need to see how we can sell coal within our state. There is a market for it."

Groves cited one of the problems as the lack of competitive prices due to the high cost of rail shipment. "The coal industry is convinced their cost is higher than it should be because of the Chessie System monopoly in this region," he stated.

"With no competition, they are boxed in no matter what the cost of the coal," Groves concluded. "Due to that situation, there is approximately a four dollar per ton differential to ship coal out of Western Maryland."

The commissioner also noted that we are at a disadvantage because West Virginia and Pennsylvania can ship coal down the river on barges which is a much cheaper mode of transportation.

A source from the state legislature said this week that the Maryland Association of Counties (MACo) sent a letter to the house committee for House Bill No. 1354 testifying against it for "general principles."

The bill which was introduced by Delegate George C. Edwards would require buildings and facilities constructed after July 1, 1986 with at least 50% of state funding to use coal or coal products in its heating system and to require the use of coal or coal products mined in the state.

MACo contends they are not against the intent of the bill, rather the general concensus was that it was too cumbersome and would be an added expense for various state agencies.

Senate Reviews Unemployment Benefit Extension

The Senate Finance Committee reviewed, but has not voted yet, on extending unemployment insurance benefits for 13 weeks for those whose unemployment insurance has run out and have been unable to find employment. The bill was introduced by Senator John N. Bambacus, who testified before the committee in favor of it.

In his testimony Bambacus said, "This is a troublesome period. While the statewide unemployment insurance levels are 4.5 percent and most Marylanders are experiencing a prolonged period of prosperity, we must not, indeed cannot, forget those men and women, who, through no fault of their own are without jobs."

He told the committee that with the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund at $360 million, his was really a minimal proposal directed toward restoring "the dignity and worthiness of a lot of hard working people."

He reported that the year just ended was not a good one for factory workers in Maryland. The state lost over 5,400 manufacturing jobs, even though 1985 was a period of strong economic growth. "Unfortunately," he said, "this is not a new trend. Maryland's industrial base has been eroding for some time. Since 1980, the state has lost about 24,000 factory jobs."

Bambacus said that the state's economy is continuing to change from that of an old industrial state to a dynamic service oriented state with high skill jobs in such areas as communications, engineering, finance, defense contracting and health care. However, there are those displaced men and women who have never made their way back into the work force.

SB-634 would extend benefits by 13 weeks for those who have exhausted their benefits.

The senator told the committee that under his proposal, the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund will be charged—not individual employers—and that the additional benefits program should not require a further increase in the payroll tax for employers or more changes in the taxable wage base.

The bill also includes provisions for an additional benefits program that would "trigger on" when the total unemployment rate equals or exceeds four percent.

Bambacus concluded by asking the committee to "remember, these men and women who would receive these additional benefits are no different than you and I. They have mortgages to pay, food to buy, and children to clothe. They have the same aspirations as we do."

Malpractice Ins. Is Studied By State Senate

Several accident victims, all disfigured or paralyzed, and their attorneys pleaded with members of the Senate Judicial Proceedings Commmittee last week not to limit what juries can award victims for their pain and suffering.

Their testimony was part of an organized effort by trial lawyers against a proposal by Governor Harry R. Hughes to limit non-economic losses, or "pain and suffering" judgments, in injury cases. The governor has sought a $250,000 limit to help make liability insurance, especially medical malpractice insurance, cheaper and more readily available.

A number of bills have been introduced on the subject. One of those bills, as proposed by Gov. Hughes, would limit an award for pain and suffering to $250,000; allow juries to learn of insurance payments—or so-called collateral source payments—to victims seeking damages; provide that a victim's future medical costs be paid as they occur, rather than in a lump sum immediately upon a jury verdict; and require both sides in a lawsuit to produce expert opinions about whether a malpractice complaint has merit.

Although the focus of the hearing was medical malpractice, the attorneys conceded that none of their clients who testified was a victim of negligent doctors. But one lawyer said that if his client had been a victim of malpractice, she certainly would have deserved "a reasonable verdict" without legally imposed limits.

Trial lawyers and consumer advocates, who oppose the governor's legislation, engaged in an emotional debate over whether changes in the legal system actually would reduce the cost of malpractice insurance.

Urging lawmakers not to be swayed by any particular interest group if meaningful legislation is to be enacted this year, Senate President Melvin A. Steinberg (D-Baltimore) said, "We must all be willing to compromise—doctors, lawyers, insurers and plaintiffs." He added that "finger pointing is only counterproductive and wastes energy and resources."

President of the Medical Mutual Liability Insurance Society of Maryland, J. John Spinella, predicted that the Hughes administration bills would have, at best, only a "modest" impact on insurance costs.

"We doubt that there will be any discernible change in insurance costs," said George W. Shadoan of the Maryland Trial Lawyers Association. He and other lawyers and consumers characterized the governor's bills as damaging "victims' rights."

However, last month a Baltimore doctor, obstetrician Barry M. Wolk, had protested the high insurance premiums he must pay by threatening publicly to stop delivering the babies of poor women.

Another of the malpractice bills would strengthen the state's 10-year-old Health Claims Arbitration Office and streamline its review of malpractice complaints.

A third would change Maryland's system of medical discipline, including a requirement that hospitals develop continuing reviews of physician credentials.

The Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee chairman, Thomas V. Mike Miller Jr. (D-P.G. Co.) announced that he supports an amendment to narrow the scope of the proposed cap on judgments solely to medical malpractice.

Several committee members said that chances of passage in the House are poor even if the bill passes the Judicial Committee and the full Senate.

Coal Bill Hearing In House Draws Local Testimony

Tom Jones, Garrett County Development Corporation Director, and Al Whitehouse of Buffalo Coal traveled to Annapolis Tuesday to testify in favor of Delegate George C. Edwards' bill requiring buildings constructed with state funding to use coal or coal products in their heating systems.

Edwards' bill (HB-1354) points out that new technologies involved in the burning of coal, including fluidized beds, coal-water mixtures, and coal-oil mixtures have proven to be cost effective and environmentally workable.

Also present to testify were Jay Swartz, lobbiest for the Maryland Coal Association, and Robin Zee of the General Services Administration.

As a result of the hearing, an amendment was made to the bill which would let coal from other states be used, with a preference made to Maryland coal. However, the heating plants in the buildings must be designed to accept Maryland coal, if cost effective.

Edwards feels that the hearing went well overall, but is concerned that the committee may feel that it is an unnecessary bill. Although Robin Zee of General Services spoke in favor of the bill, he told the committee that they are doing now what the bill would require them to do. Edwards says he doesn't know what impact that comment will have on the committee, but that the bill is needed to make Maryland's low-volatile coal more acceptable, and because not all state construction is under General Services.

"It's not more costly," he said, "especially with fluidized bed which can burn any kind of coal including sulfur and meet air quality standards."

In other House action this week, Edwards' rescue squad bill, which would provide two cents per hundred to county squads, passed its third reader in the House and is on its way to the Senate.

His bill increasing Garrett County attorney's fees from $7.50 to $150 for services in connection with tax sales of property in the county passed its second reader in the House Wednesday.

Land Acquisition Bill Progresses In State Senate

Senator John N. Bambacus reported from Annapolis last evening that SB-362, prohibiting the DNR from using any funds after June 30 to acquire land in Garrett County, passed its second reader in the Senate on Wednesday and will face its final vote in the Senate on Friday.

Another of Bambacus's bills, SB-320, passed out of committee on Wednesday. This bill would provide a referendum vote to the people in Allegany County in the next general election to see if they are in favor of Allegany County wholesale and retail establishments open for business on Sundays. Bambacus emphasized that the bill has a lot of built-in protections for employers and employees as well. A state "blue law" bill has been introduced in the past, however, Bambacus says that he is not in favor of a state law. "Community values should prevail," he said. "Each of Maryland's 24 subdivisions have their own feelings about tradition and religion, and each should be able to make their own decision about Sunday sales."

Sen. Bambacus voted against a mandatory seat belt bill which still cleared the Senate by a 27-16 vote. Bill supporters say that 57 percent of the state's 526 vehicle fatalities last year could have been prevented if seat belts had been used. Bambacus as well as other opponents said wearing a seat belt is a personal choice. Sixteen states and the District of Columbia have enacted such laws.

The senator is a co-sponsor of a $10 million bond bill to purchase larger and more powerful State Police Medevac helicopters. The action seems to be supported by Gov. Harry Hughes, who told reporters at his February 13 news conference that "we certainly are going to give it careful consideration because we will make sure that whatever is necessary to improve the safety of these people who are in the Medevac Unit, we'll do." The action follows a tragic mishap in which two state police aviators died in a helicopter crash.

Bill Will Exempt Ski Lifts From Amusement Rides Law

District I Senator John N. Bambacus has gone to bat for the Garrett County Ski industry by introducting Senate Bill 793 which will be heard by the Senate Finance Committee tomorrow. The bill would exclude chair lifts, rope tows, T-bars, J-bars and other devices used to transport skiers uphill from being defined as "amusement rides." Bambacus, who met with the assistant attorney general to get more clarification on the existing law, said that as the law stands it is apparently very unclear. He added that under the existing interpretation, liability insurance rates would be very, very high.

The Senate bill, co-sponsored by Sen. John A. Pica Jr. (D-Balt. City), would not subject ski equipment to insurance requirements relating to amusement rides.

The need for this bill came about after State Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs had a cease and desist order ready to close down the Wisp Ski Area the week after Christmas. After intervention by Bambacus, the order was not served due to the fact that the attorney general's office could find no record of any unsafe incidents or infractions of the law at the Wisp in the last 10 years.

In speaking with the governor's Commissioner of Labor and Industry, Bambacus was told that the state agency had become concerned after a recent ski lift accident in Colorado.

TERRA ALTA NEWS

Rotarian Ladies' Night

Ladies' night was held by the Terra Alta Rotary Club on January 30. Program guests for the evening were Charles Amos and his wife, Mary. Mr. Amos is an artist who paints pictures of railroad locomotives, in addition to landscapes and still life. His works are in charcoal, pastel and oil, and they have been critically acclaimed for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Everly were guests from Kingwood. A special guest was honorary Rotary Ann, Mrs. Nell Whittaker.

Tim Peters was chairman for the program on February 6. He invited Conrad Arnold who talked about what has been done to assist the flood victims in Preston County. Arnold, from the 4-H organization, has been involved with the flood rehabilitation program since day one of that disaster in November. One of the most successful means of assistance was realized during Christmas when all the flood victims and their families were well provided with food, gifts, and entertainment.

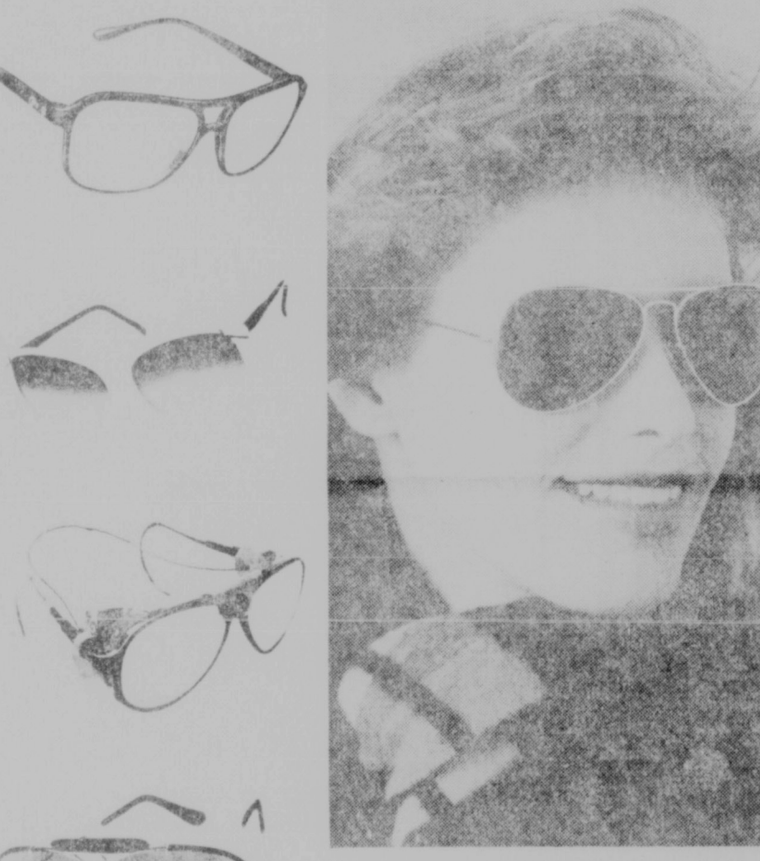
Ray-Ban Sunglasses Receive Prestigious Award From Council Of Fashion Designers Of America

Each lens is heated in a special furnace and then air hardened by DONALD CALCAMP. Afterward the product is drop ball tested to insure the heat treating's efficiency.

JANET TASKER audits our product with a vertometer to insure the highest level of quality.

All lenses must be hand loaded by JOSEPHINE LIVENGOOD and RUSSELL CLAY for an Ultrasonic cleaning prior to inspection.

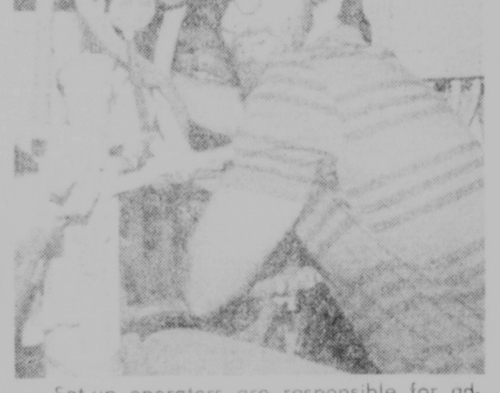


All finished sunglasses are packed with a case and sealed to further protect them from damage as demonstrated by VESTA GANK.

ELLANORAH MAYLE visually checks all of the facility's plastic lenses for tinting defects.

DEBBIE TAYLOR and ROGER TIMMERMAN are assembling some Expressions and Traditional products which are one of the company's plastic fashion sunglass products.

Ray-Ban Sunglasses Receive Prestigious Award From Council Of Fashion Designers Of America



Ray-Ban sunglasses by Bausch & Lomb has been given an award for outstanding contribution to fashion in 1985 by The Council of Fashion Designers of America (CFDA). The award was presented on January 19, 1986, at the annual CFDA gala affair at the New York Public Library.

"We are truly honored by the fashion world's recognition and acceptance of the Ray-Ban classic Aviator design," said Norman D. Salik, director of marketing services of Bausch & Lomb's Sunglass Division. "It is a testament to the longevity of this design, which will be celebrating its 50th anniversary next year."

Awards also will be presented to the television series Miami Vice and designers Liz Claiborne, Donna Karan, Geoffrey Beene, Robert Lee Morris and Norma Kamali. Lifetime achievement awards will be presented to Katharine Hepburn and Alexander Liberman. The CFDA will also salute the memory of Rudi Gernreich.

Ray-Ban Classic Large Metal Aviators came into being in the 1920's when the U.S. Army Corps commissioned Bausch & Lomb to develop advanced protective eyewear. The style was adapted and introduced to the civilian market in 1936. It has since become the status symbol of the famous, beginning with General Douglas MacArthur and extending through to stars of films, music, sports and, of course, fashion designers everywhere.

The Council of Fashion Designers of America, founded in 1963, is a not-for-profit organization whose exclusive membership consists of over one hundred of America's foremost fashion designers. The voting committee this year includes such notables as Fashion Writers Bernadine Morris and Carrie Donovan of the New York Times, Reporter Edie Lock of Lifetime Network, Fashion Director Nonnie Moore of Gentlemen's Quarterly, Editor-in-Chief Grace Mirabella of Vogue, Fashion Director Ellen Saltzman of Saks Fifth Avenue and more. Nancy Reagan will be Honorary Chairman. The awards dinner is made possible by a generous grant from the Wool Bureau.

Set-up operators are responsible for adjusting the equipment so that the product's surfaces are of precision quality. DONALD BEAN is adjusting one such machine here.

The entire operation is supported by an internal maintenance operation. FRANK McDONALD, one of the facility's electricians is troubleshooting a motor.

Some lenses are manufactured three at a time as demonstrated by PAULA SPEAR who is loading a 3-On polishing machine.

Congratulations Oakland Bausch & Lomb employees!
You're the ones who made this award possible.

Status Of Children In Maryland Improving, According To State Report

The status of children in Maryland is improving significantly, with a greater quality of services now available, a broader array of governmental programs in place and a state better prepared to address child abuse and other problems that children have historically faced.

These and other findings, as well as the latest statistics on the present situation of the 1.3 million youngsters 19 and younger in Maryland, are contained in a new report, Building For the Future: The Status of Children and Children's Programs in Maryland, presented last week to Governor Harry Hughes by the State's Office for Children and Youth.

According to John E. Kyle, director of the office, the report marks the first time such statistics and analysis concerning youth has been prepared in state history. The document, compiled over the past half year by staff members of the Office for Children and Youth, was researched and written at the request of Governor Hughes.

Building For the Future addresses the major issues affecting children with county-by-county background data, describes State efforts that are currently underway, and suggests actions for the future.

"This report will help concerned citizens and policymakers alike to achieve the goals we have for our children and, through them, for our future," declared Hughes in receiving the report.

Among findings of the report:

•Children under the age of 19 represent over 25 percent of the population, "a significant part of the populace."

•65,000 children are in regulated child care settings.

•60% of mothers with children under 18 (350,000) are working women.

The new resource also examines such topics as child abuse, child care, teen pregnancy, substance abuse, health and education. It indicates:

•child abuse reports totaled 9,119 for fiscal 1985 and are continuing at the same rate in 1986, "but the numbers reflect only a small percentage of children in the State."

•legislative efforts to combat abuse are increasing with "widespread prevention the tool most needed."

•child care demand is growing, and both the private and public sectors must recognize the economic necessity of making child care more widely available.

•high quality educational programs are vital to providing equitable opportunities to Maryland's children since a high quality education can enhance employment skills, reduce welfare dependency and be a deterrent to teen pregnancy and to juvenile crime.

"These issue areas have received significant legislative and budget support from Governor Hughes in the past. His interest has helped generate model legislation for Maryland," said Kyle. "In 1986, under the Governor's leadership, we will continue our efforts to prevent child abuse, reform the Juvenile Services Administration, enhance equity in education and reduce teen pregnancy."

In receiving the report, Hughes stated, "The status of children and youth must continue to improve, and it is up to all of us to see that it does. I pledge to continue this administration's strong support of programs in behalf of our young."

The report not only addresses issues, but also provides information on 75 of the organizations across the State which work on behalf of children.

The report is available free of charge from the Office for Children and Youth, 301 West Preston Street, Suite 1502, Baltimore, MD 21201. Copies can also be ordered by calling 225-1290.

Certified As Specialist In Family Practice

Dr. Donald Ray Richter, Oakland, a member of the Garrett Medical Group, has been named a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. The physician is now certified in the medical specialty of family practice.

The intensive written examination is designed to prove the candidates ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics and gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have successfully completed three years of residency training in family practice. There are some 378 such training programs in teaching hospitals and university medical centers across the United States.

ABFP diplomates also must continue to show proof of competence in the field of comprehensive, continuing care of the family by being recertified every six years. Family practice was the first medical speciality to require diplomates to prove competence on a continuning basis.

The latest group of diplomates brings the total number certified to more than 30,000. Most are members of the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy was the first national medical group to require members to take continuing medical study, and was chiefly responsible for securing specialty status for family practice.

Johnson Explains New Automated Benefits System

Cost efficiency, error reduction and more timely service are the expected benefits of the new Maryland Automated Benefits System (MABS).

According to Brent Johnson, Maryland Secretary of Employment and Training, the new system will be implemented by the end of March on a pilot basis in five local offices of the Maryland Department of Employment and Training. The pilot offices are Bel Air, Chestertown/Grasonville, College Park, Frederick and Glen Burnie. Funding for MABS has been provided by a $2.5 million grant from the U.S. Department of Labor. According to Secretary Johnson, Maryland's grant is the largest of 26 similar grants awarded nationally.

As a result of the automation, the manual review of weekly claims required to determine Unemployment Insurance benefit eligibility and benefit check amount will be eliminated enabling claims examiners to have more time for claims investigations regarding job separation and work research. The new system will also eliminate much of the recordkeeping and filing tasks now performed manually.

In addition, Johnson said the Unemployment Insurance program's administrative cost will be reduced by approximately $1.7 million per year after the system has been fully implemented. Also, significant reductions in errors are expected which will benefit the State's employers by reducing the number of improperly paid claims thus keeping their Unemployment Insurance claims taxes to a minimum, he noted. "The most impressive feature of the new system will be the reduction in the time required to process claims and to issue unemployment insurance checks," Johnson said.

For claimants, the most noticeable difference will be the change from weekly to bi-weekly payment of benefits. After the first check for the first week of unemployment, claimants will file claims and receive benefits every other week. This change, while new for Maryland, will make the payment system similar to 32 other jurisdictions throughout the country.

MABS will be implemented statewide by the middle of May, 1986, according to Johnson. "This is a major step in improving the quality of our programs and the services provided to the people of Maryland through the Department of Employment and Training," he said.

Spaghetti Dinner Planned To Benefit The House Of Hope

A spaghetti dinner will be served in the Fellowship Hall at St. Paul's United Methodist Church on Saturday, February 22, from 4 to 7:30 p.m.

The dinner is a benefit for The House of Hope and all proceeds from the dinner and the sale of baked goods will go to that organization.

The cost of tickets for adults will be $3.50 and for children, $2.

Something To Think About

By Mark Durst

DIRECTOR

SHOULD THE BODY BE VIEWED?

Some people have strong views on this question and these should be respected. Others have no firm commitment one way or the other, and would answer such a question on the basis of circumstances. For these people, we would offer the following advice, based on many years of experience.

If the body can be made viewable, it should be viewed. It serves a number of very helpful and constructive purposes. In cases where the decedent has been living away from home, or confined to a distant medical institution, viewing can provide the confirmation that death has occurred.

It provides a way to recall the loved one as he or she should be remembered—free of the evidence of pain, wasting, or injury. Viewing is likewise considered therapeutic for people. It is especially helpful for a child who has experienced the death of one loved. Instead of relying on imagination, the child can begin to comprehend the real meaning of death.

Insight Into Education

This article was written by Patrick R. Delaney, principal of the Route 40 Elementary school.

ROUTE 40 SCHOOL "SOME PLACE SPECIAL"

The Route 40 Elementary School is located five miles west of Frostburg on old Route 40 and serves the communities of Finzel, Avilton, and Long Stretch. The Route 40 School opened in 1957 as a result of the consolidation of a number of smaller one room schools serving the eastern most area of Garrett County. A portable addition was added in 1978 and now houses the school media center and computer lab. The school originally served students in grades K-8 and had an enrollment of over 225 students. The school became a K-5 curriculum when the Northern Middle School opened in 1978 and now serves approximately 160 elementary students.

The school staff utilizes a total team approach to instruct students in reading, mathematics and English. Pupils exchange classes for these top priority subjects and are taught on their instructional level. Students who are capable of performing above grade level, attend classes which best fit their instructional needs. The curriculum utilizes the Houghton Mifflin program for reading, and the MacMillian program for mathematics and English. Emphasis is placed on the development of a positive self-concept and solid work ethic in all children. Route 40 students have consistently scored well above the national norm in all curricular areas as assessed by the California Achievement Tests.

The Route 40 instructional staff, comprised of six teachers and two aides, has been recognized as an innovative and progressive team. The staff has developed a close working relationship with students and the professional faculty at Frostburg State College. Since all teachers have attained their master's degree in education, student teachers and student aides are commonplace at Route 40 School. In addition to the traditional subject areas, students receive specialized classes in the areas of art, music, physical education and gifted and talented. The supportive staff consists of two full-time and two parttime personnel. Their positions in food service and maintenance provide for a comfortable atmosphere for children to work.

The local parent-teacher association is a strong, active, successful and supportive organization which is an integral part of the school program. This group, which not only provides 1600 hours of volunteer service yearly, but enhances the local budget by contributing over $2,000 annually to the school program. Its strong leadership is evident in the formulation of a special library club whose uniqueness and originality have been recognized as an exemplary program throughout the state. The Route 40 PTA is also responsible for revitalizing the spelling bee by first sponsoring this event in 1980. The PTA also sponsors field trips, talent shows and significant cultural events for the children of this school. The community of this area recognizes its responsibility to secure for all children and youth the highest advantages in physical, mental, social and spiritual education.

The Route 40 staff and students are also very proud of their achievements in many instructional areas. The Route 40 School played a key role in the development of a new citizenship program for all of Garrett County Schools. The faculty, with the financial assistance of the parents, have developed one of the first computer labs in the area, and continues to develop a modern computer program for Garrett County Schools. In recent years, teachers have focused on the importance of functional and creative writing as a necessary skill in our modern society. Students annually show off their talents in a number of programs including: a Christmas program, a talent show, an art exhibit and a newly planned science fair. Parents and staff are also treated to a class play during the annual awards assembly held at the end of the school year.

Garrett County Schools have continually demonstrated that biggest does not always mean best. The Route 40 School is no exception. A strong school-community relationship has provided the residents of this area with a program that will ensure their children will receive an education that is both progressive, caring and will properly prepare them for modern society. And like many other Garrett County communities, the people of eastern Garrett have provided their children with "some place special" to learn and grow.

Aurora Firemen Complete Class

Fourteen members of the Aurora Volunteer Fire Department have completed the new Firemanship I Class, held at the Aurora Fire Hall. The class was conducted by Ernest Shaffer, West Virginia University Fire Service Extension instructor, who is certified by the West Virginia State Board of Education.

Firemanship I is a 30-hour course designed for the new firefighter and as a refresher course for other firemen. The class consists of: Fire Department Organizaion; Protective Clothing; Fire Concepts and Behavior; Protective Breathing Apparatus and Rescue; Forcible Entry, Ropes, Utilities, and Fire Dept.-Apparatus; Ladders; Nozzles, Fire Streams, and Hose Skills; Interior Attacks; Salvage and Overhaul; Fire Alarm and Communication; Safety on the Fire Ground; and Portable Fire Extinguishers.

New firemen awho completed the course were: Eric Alexander, Hayward Baker, Randall Green, Junior Moats, Brian Watts, and Ralph Watring. Experienced firemen that completed the course were, Dayton Alexander, Phillip Fike, Harlen Kemphfer, Adam Shaffer, John Shaffer, Walter Shaffer, Edward Utterback and Albert Wiles.

A Firemanship II class is planned for in the near future. To be eligible a fireman must have successfully completed a Section I, or a Firemanship I class. Neighboring firemen are welcome to attend. Those interested should contact Dayton Alexander, chief, or Ernest Shaffer, instructor. It is necessary to pre-regester.

Catherine Mary stays fit by dancing, dieting

By Renee Ross

Forget the mellow, low-key life for Catherine Mary Stewart. She'd rather be busy — very busy.

"I work great under pressure," laughs Miss Stewart, 26, who recently starred in the CBS miniseries "Sins."

Catherine Mary Stewart

"When I'm given too much time to lay back, that's when things go wrong. I'm much more efficient with lots and lots to do. It's not that tension and stress don't build up — they certainly do. I especially carry tension in my neck and shoulders."

To get rid of the knotty annoyance, Miss Stewart relies on exercise. "I'll work out, or practice meditation involving total body relaxation," she explains.

"I started my career as a dancer and know it's important to stay in shape. If a dancer lets her body become less than flexible and solid, you just don't feel right," adds the 5-foot-6 actress.

"When I'm not working I'll take one or two dance classes a day. I'm not saying that much exercise is good for everyone, but it works for me," she cautions.

"And if I can't get to the gym, I'll exercise at home to music or while watching TV. I've figured out a routine that seems best for me."

Miss Stewart, who lives in the Los Angeles area with her husband, photographer John Findlater, says she thrives on legendary California sun worship.

"I'm originally from Canada," says Miss Stewart, "and one thing I love about California is that you can be outside whenever you want. Some people here insist they miss the changing seasons, but I have no desire to go through a Canadian winter!" she says with a laugh.

The actress says being active also serves as a diet aid in keeping her at a trim 115 pounds. "Exercise is a wonderful appetite suppressant," the actress explains. "Contrary to popular belief, I find I eat more when I don't exercise. If I work out at 11 a.m., I won't get hungry till 2 that afternoon."

Eating wisely is also important, claims Miss Stewart. "My husband and I aren't vegetarian, but we eat a balanced diet," she says. "My theory is that too much of anything can be bad.

"Food is fun for me because I really love to cook. To me it's a good challenge to make a meal both as delicious and nutritious as possible."

CINDY SAYS

Ellen's TV pilot; Pacino's sheepskin

By Cindy Adams

Ellen Burstyn, star of stage, screen and the Actors Studio, wants to be on TV. She'll get her chance when she plays a Baltimore college professor who teaches a post-grad course called "American Ideas." Although not specifically named, the college prototype is Johns Hopkins. The writer is David Frankel. The series is for ABC. The working title — mostly because they don't yet have another — is "The Ellen Burstyn Show." Shooting starts soon.

Ellen Burstyn

"The show will deal with four generations of 'my' family," the Oscar winner and Tony winner says. What's Ellen's on-air marital status? Explains the actress: "I've done it twice. I've been divorced once and widowed once." And the character of her character? "As much like me as possible." That cryptogram means she'll be intellectual, spirited, committed, caring, humorous and offbeat. The rest isn't exactly typecasting. In real life, Ellen flunked out of high school, has a son and was discovered three times. The pilot will be made in Los Angeles. The Baltimore-based series will be shot in Manhattan.

Al Pacino

Al Pacino, who dropped out of New York's High School of Performing Arts, gets an honorary diploma from the prestigious institution in June. ... Tiny Tim has become so beefy that he's earned a new nickname: Tubby Tim. ... Actor-turned-director Ron Howard tapped Grammy nominee Stevie Ray Vaughan to do the music for his upcoming comedy, "Gung Ho."

Leapin' lizards! Little Orphan Annie promises to steal your heart in "Annie," the 1982 film version of the Broadway smash, airing Monday, Feb. 24 on NBC. Sandy keeps the carrot-topped waif company.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

My wife and I are having an argument concerning the "Hill Street Blues" character Officer Bobby Hill. She insists the same actor is playing the role, but I'm positive it's a different thespian. Well, Val, do we get a divorce? — R.A.S., Midway, Ark.

Michael Warren

Don't split up, R.A.S., even though your wife is right. Michael Warren is the only actor who has played the character. The reason he looks different this season is because Warren has grown a moustache.

I'm a big fan of Phil Collins, who's been nominated for several Grammys this year. My friend told me the singer's sister is Joan Collins. Is this true? If it is, can we expect Phil to make an appearance on "Dynasty"? — T.K., Engelwood Cliffs, N.J.

This question takes the cake! Sorry to burst your bubble, T.K., but the two Collinses are not related. Joan's best-known sibling is Jackie Collins, author of such trashy classics as "The Stud" and "Hollywood Wives."

Phil Collins

I just caught a rerun of Agatha Christie's "Murder With Mirrors." Who played the character of Edgar Lawson? — A.A.M., Yonkers, N.Y.

Tim Roth is the actor's name. By the way, the film, which starred Helen Hayes and Bette Davis, was entirely filmed in England.

Boo! Miss Taylor has scared her soap fans

By Kimberly Redmond

My friends don't believe me when I tell them that Lauren-Marie Taylor, who portrays Stacey Donovan on "Loving," has appeared in a horror movie. Help! — D.N., Burlington City, N.J.

Miss Taylor appeared in two fright flicks, "Friday the 13th — Part II" and "Neighbors." She also had a brief stint on "Ryan's Hope" before landing "Loving."

Lauren-Marie Taylor

I have a question about A Martinez, the actor who portrays Cruz Castillo on "Santa Barbara." Several years ago he played a character named Paco on another soap, but I can't remember which one. Can you help? — V.L., Idaho Falls, Idaho

Martinez appeared on "Ryan's Hope" several years ago. There is no record of his character's name, but some suggest it was Paco. He has also been in the nighttime TV series "Storefront Lawyers," "Born to the Wind," "Cassie & Company" and "Whiz Kids." In addition, you might have seen him in the miniseries "Centennial."

A Martinez

Please tell me the name of the blond actress who portrays Savannah Wilder on "Days of Our Lives." I think I've seen her somewhere before. — A.H., Denver, Colo.

Her name is Shannon Tweed, and she once posed for a Playboy centerfold. She's also been frequently seen on the arm of her beau, rock star Gene Simmons.

COMING ATTRACTIONS

Is the world ready for another Michael Fox?

By Marc Minnelli

He has an infectious smile, gregarious personality and a cherubic countenance. No wonder Zach Galligan has been described as the quintessential boy next door.

"I guess," he says with a shy grin, "somebody's got to be the boy next door. I'm just happy that people don't call me the world's worst actor."

Zach Galligan

Galligan needn't worry. He may be only 22, and his friends may include former co-stars Molly Ringwald ("Surviving") and Phoebe Cates ("Gremlins"), but he's not a member of any transient Brat Pack club — even if he auditioned for (and lost) a role in last year's pubescent pageant "St. Elmo's Fire." No, this is a serious actor — "I deal with craft intelligently" — and he's proved it already with several critically hailed performances.

In 1984, Galligan starred in Steven Spielberg's "Gremlins." Last year, he starred as a suicidal teenager in the highly acclaimed made-for-TV movie "Surviving." Galligan recently replaced Matthew Broderick in "Biloxi Blues," Neil Simon's autobiographical comedy about life in World War II barracks, and critics have lauded his performance.

This week, Galligan makes his miniseries debut in "Crossings," the six-hour international soapy saga based on Danielle Steel's best-selling novel. The actor plays Robert DeVilliers, the free-spirited son of Liane DeVilliers, played by angelic Cheryl Ladd.

"When I first read the script," Galligan recalls, "I thought 'Crossings' was only going to be OK. I knew the miniseries would pay me well, and it offered me a chance to go to Paris and San Francisco. But when I saw the rushes, I realized it was some of the best acting I'd ever done." In fact, the actor says, Miss Steel was so pleased with his performance that she sent him flowers and a congratulatory note — "which I keep in my box of treasured things."

And though he's reluctant to admit it, Galligan hopes "Crossings" will help him break out of his "boy-next-door" image.

"I grew up in New York, and always thought I was street-smart. I was never as naive as someone from Minnesota. But — and this could be because of my looks — I have a tendency to come across as this 'Aw, shucks!' kind of guy. And that's not so bad because stars my age alway seem to be brooding. I like to think I don't carry the weight of the world on my shoulders; my idea of being a star is to have the appeal of Michael J. Fox."

BEHIND THE SCENES

Brolin is reserved about acting on TV

By Frank Lovece

Pigeons. James Brolin wanted a burst of them to open an outdoor cafe scene. And though he'd already directed enough episodes of "Hotel" to know what he wanted, the show's crew wouldn't budge.

James Brolin

"TV crews fight you all the way," maintains the soft-spoken Brolin. "Movies are different; you're expected to comb for new ideas and subtleties. But TV people don't put out that extra little bit. In this case," he recalls, "they said, 'It's a pain to find pigeons. They'll make noises and ruin the shots.' Finally, I had to say, 'Damn it! I want some pigeons and I want them by two o'clock!'" Brolin sighs. "So then," he adds, "you're one of those irate actor-directors."

Brolin's frustration stems partly from the fact that despite starring in "Hotel" and several B-movies and having won a 1970 Emmy for "Marcus Welby, M.D.," he has always preferred the other side of the camera. "The only reason I became an actor," he claims, "was to get into the studio." First he wanted to be a cameraperson, but after signing as a contract player at 20th Century Fox in 1960, Brolin found himself more interested in directing and editing.

Almost as soon as he landed "Welby" in 1969, Brolin tried to crack the circle. But, "they kept putting me off and putting me off, telling me I needed a couple hundred hours in editing before they'd let me direct. I got my two hundred hours in," he remembers, "and they put me off again.

"I was full of a lot of anger at that point. I wanted to progress; I wanted to get out of 'Welby' that last year. It turned out the show ended about the same time we got a court date."

The 45-year-old Brolin finally got to direct an episode of "Hotel" last season. So far this year, he has directed four episodes, including the upcoming episodes "Hidden Talents" and "Triangles." He also started his own production company last summer with partner Gary Messenger, and has already sold HBO on a movie.

"I never considered myself a natural actor," Brolin reflects. "Every time I was in a shot, I would imagine what it looked like through the camera. This probably interrupted my performance somewhat, but it developed my ability to work in front of and behind the camera at the same time. I just hope it helps the show. I'll tell you, it feels like we're driving a Rolls Royce with no insurance and putting in cheap gas!"

Lee Horsley stars as dapper steel magnate Nick Burnham and Cheryl Ladd portrays his lover Liane DeVilliers in "Crossings," the six-hour miniseries based on Danielle Steel's best-selling romantic novel. The soapy saga airs Sunday, Feb. 23; Monday, Feb. 24; and Tuesday, Feb. 25 on ABC.

Justine ties up her future rather nicely

By Gillian George

As all "Family Ties" fans know and as her brother Alex (Michael J. Fox) constantly reminds her, Mallory Keaton is not exactly Albert Einstein.

It's precisely this factor that makes playing Mallory such a relief, says Justine Bateman. In real life, the 19-year-old actress has brains. She graduated from high school in 1984 with honors, and was accepted by a several top Eastern colleges before recently deciding to attend New York University.

Justine Bateman

However, Miss Bateman's determination to acquire a first-class education is causing a dilemma. "It seems certain that 'Family Ties' will continue for at least two more seasons and maybe even longer," she says, "but I don't want to end up being a 36-year-old freshman. But I'd be really disappointed in myself if I dropped my education at this point. I love the process of learning and I love writing. If for some reasons I don't stay in acting, I'd like to get into the magazine-publishing field. In fact, one of my goals in to publish my own magazine by the time I'm 30."

The willowy brunette already owns her own Hollywood Hills house. (The three-bedroom split-level house has even been featured in "Architectural Digest.") Then there's the shiny new BMW in her garage and the nifty motorcycle she recently bought for her current boyfriend, sound mixer Bobby Anderson.

"I almost bought a Picasso a while ago," she muses, "but then I changed my mind and bought a swimming pool instead. After all, in my position, you have a choice. Give up half of your hard-earned money to the government or buy property. So I really don't regard any of my possessions as luxuries."

Although this sounds more like it came out of Alex's mouth, Miss Bateman is serious about living up to her wealth in a responsible manner. She's interested in travel, an enthusiasm she inherited from her mother, a former flight attendant. "Our whole family got an incredible education because of my mother's airline travel benefits," she recalls. "We've been together all over the world, learning how to accept other people's ways of living and cultural outlooks.

"I wouldn't trade my experiences in Europe, South America and the Orient for anything," the actress adds. "I consider myself lucky for having had that as I do for being in the right place at the right time to land my role on 'Family Ties.'"

Cross-Lites says

"Jesus the Christ died, was buried and raised by God himself from the dead. Think about it; act on it."

Integrity

Who knows how much is riding on this handshake? Only the two men who have just made a commitment. Later, documents will be drawn up, details noted, the formal contract signed. That's good business—and it's the law. But right now, at this very moment, men who believe in each other's integrity have an agreement both will honor.

Nowhere in high school or college have we heard of a course in Integrity. Does that mean that something so important to our economic system isn't taught? Not in formal curricula.

Rather, it is taught in the home by parents who are people of integrity. Its teaching is reinforced at Church where religious beliefs mold the character of the children and adults. And its practice is encouraged daily in the marketplace by the example of those whose fundamental convictions make their handshake a bond of truth.

WHO HAS HEARD FROM THE GOOD TOOTH FAIRY?

What is the going "rate" these days for the "good tooth fairy" to leave under the pillow for a baby tooth? Nobody seems to have a definite answer to this question. We have heard as high as a dollar for a first tooth and down to as low as a nickel for a third or fourth.

While we are not sure of the worth of that old tooth we do know that the new permanent tooth is really priceless and should be treated accordingly. It has to last an ever-increasing lifetime. We carry many products that your dentist recommends for good dental care.

"A GREAT MANY PEOPLE ENTRUST US with their prescriptions, health needs and other pharmacy products. We consider this trust a privilege and a duty. May we be your personal family pharmacy?"

POWER

February 23, 1986

Background Scripture: Mark 8: 34-35; 9:33-37; 10:34-35.
Devotional Reading: Hebrews 12:1, 2.

In the second-to-last decade of the 19th century, two men were born in Italian hill towns in the most humble of homes. One of these men enjoyed a meteoric rise in political power, becoming, perhaps, the most powerful Italian political leader since the days of Roman emperors. The other became a Capuchin friar and spent practically his whole life in the obscure mountain village of San Giovanni Rotondo.

During the five decades during which these two men pursued their concurrent vocations, their courses led in two different directions. The one man, Benito Mussolini, became the absolute dictator of Italy and for 23 years he held the fate of millions of people in his hands. At the time of his ignoble execution, April 28, 1945, the other man, Francesco Forgione, known as Padre Pio, was just beginning to be known in Italy and elsewhere as "the Monk with the Wounds of Christ," a miracle healer and holy man.

TO BE GREAT

What a contrast between these two men. Benito Mussolini was an arrogant man who seized power and was prodigal in his use of it. Padre Pio, on the other hand, was a humble, unassuming man who took upon himself the suffering of others. By our common cultural standards today, despite his fall, Mussolini was the epitome of power and Padre Pio the antithesis of it. Yet, today, most Italians want to forget the man they once hailed as "Il Duce" (the Leader), and thousands of people are making the pilgrimmage to San Giovanni Rotondo where Padre Pio lived most of his life and died.

In September we made our own pilgrimmage to San Giovanni Rotondo and found that, although Padre Pio died 17 years ago, his power continues to grow. While he was living, great throngs of people came to this town to see "the Monk with the Wounds." But, since his death, they still come and more than ever before—to experience his spiritual power. Father Joseph, an American who serves in San Giovanni Rotondo, told us." Padre Pio never told a lie, but his death is the greatest of all lies."

BEAR YOUR CROSS

There is no doubt in my mind which of these two men, Benito Mussolini or Padre Pio, was the most powerful. But neither do I have any illusions that my perception is shared by the world in which we live. Although Jesus demonstrated the true nature of power, we still haven't bought it. We still are pretty much where James and John were when they said to him, "Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left in glory" (Mark 10:37). We still haven't accepted the answer he gave them: "...whoever would be great among you must be your servant and whoever would be first among you must be slave of all" (10:43, 44). Nor have we yet accepted that the true power in this world is the power of the cross.

ARMED SERVICES REVIEW

Specialist Four Rodney T. Frazee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilcox, Luke, and Mr. Terrell Frazee, Friendsville, has successfully completed the U.S. Army Airborne Course at Ft. Benning, Ga.

During the course, the soldiers were taught the techniques of exiting the two Air Force Aircrafts (C130 and C141), the landing procedures, and the actions which are taken in the unlikely event of a malfunction. They also learned the different types of jumps (combat, water and Hollywood), the way to prepare for these different jumps, and how to land when approaching tall trees, power lines, and deep water.

Frazee is assigned to the 5th Special Forces Group, Service Co. at Ft. Bragg, N.C.

He is a 1984 graduate of Bruce High School.

Navy Fireman Stancie E. Esenwein, son of Frederick L. and Pat A. Paugh, Deer Park, recently returned from a four month deployment to the Western Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Stationed aboard the guided missile cruiser USS Fox, homeported in San Diego, Esenwein participated in two major exercises which resulted in a high state of readiness.

Merlion was a simulated attack on the ship by aircraft and patrol craft of the Republic of Singapore Navy and Air Force.

Esenwein also participated in Valiant Usher, an exercise conducted off the coast of Somalia.

Crewmembers also donated money to sponsor 16 students at the New Cabalan High School in Olongapo City, Republic of the Philippines.

Port visits were made in Subic Bay, Republic of the Philippines; Mombasa, Kenya; Columbo, Sri Lanka; and Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

He joined the Navy in February 1979.

Army Spec. 5 Curtis A. Springman, son of Diane M. Springman, Tarentum, Pa., and Charles H. Springman, Route 2, Accident, was involved in a NATO-sponsored exercise by participating in the Army's return of forces to Germany (REFORGER) and the Air Force's Crested Cap exercises.

The exercises are designed to develop uniformity of doctrine, standardize procedures for rapid response to a crisis and demonstrate solidarity in commitment to NATO goals and objectives.

Springman is a supply specialist with the 1st Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kan.

He received an associate degree in 1983 from Triangle Technological College, Pittsburgh.

Catherine P. Fash, daughter of Frank J. and Joana Fash, Rural Route 2, Grantsville, has completed basic training at Fort McClellan, Ala.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

She is a 1981 graduate of Wheaton High School.

Navy Seaman Recruit J. Scott E. Tasker, son of Michael C. and Sheila C. O'Neill, Mountain Lake Park, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During Tasker's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.

Tasker's studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

He is a 1985 graduate of Southern High School.

Army Spec. 4 Gregory Fisher, son of David A. and Sue Fisher, Oakland, has arrived for duty with the 557th Maintenance Company, West Germany.

Fisher, a stock control specialist, is a 1985 graduate of Fairmont State University, W.Va.

Airman 1st Class Ronald J. Whittaker, son of James B. Whittaker, Rockville, and Linda A. Dobos, Star Route, Grantsville, has been named outstanding airman of the Month for the 832nd Transportation Squadron, Luke Air Force Base, Ariz.

The competition was based on job knowledge, significant self-improvement, leadership qualities, ability to be an articulate and positive spokesman for the Air Force and other accomplishments.

Whittaker, a vehicle mechanic, is a 1982 graduate of T.S. Wootton High School, Rockville.

Airman Lynn M. Lough, son of Fern L. DeBerry, Mount Storm, W.Va., has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, the airman studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

The airman will now receive specialized instruction in the aircraft maintenance field.

He is a 1985 graduate of Franklin High School, W.Va.

Sgt. Roy D. Rexrode, son of Henry J. and Flora M. Rexrode, Route 2, Swanton, has been decorated with the Army Achievement Medal at Fort Hood, Texas.

The Achievement Medal is awarded to soldiers for meritorious service, acts of courage, or other accomplishments.

Rexrode is a heavy construction equipment operator with the 6th Cavalry Brigade.

He is a 1973 graduate of Southern High School.

IS YOUR CHILD'S SAFETY SEAT INSTALLED CORRECTLY?

Your child's safety depends on your willingness to use the safety seat correctly . . . following the manufacturer's instructions . . . and to use it every time your child rides in a car.

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY TO INSTALL A SAFETY SEAT. CORRECTLY.

YOUR Child's LIFE IS IN YOUR HANDS

2 U.S. Department of Transportation - National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week Scheduled

On February 4 near Elkton, Regina Webb's car skidded on ice and collided head-on with a school bus. Regina and her four-year-old son, Ryan, were harnessed and buckled in the front seat, and two-year-old Lindsay was buckled in her child car seat, in the back. Although all three were sent to the hospital, they are not seriously injured. The combination of safety belts and a properly installed car safety seat clearly saved the Webb family from tragedy.

On Monday, February 24, at 10 a.m., at the Rayburn House Office Building in Washington, D.C., an awards ceremony will honor five families like Regina Webb's, whose children escaped serious injury or death because their parents properly secured them in child safety seats. The ceremony marks the official opening of National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week from February 23 to March 1.

"The Maryland Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week has been organized to boost community awareness of this important health concern," said Dana Meyers, health educator, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. "Educational materials regarding child passenger safety will be available in public libraries, health departments, hospitals, AAA offices, MVA offices and Maryland State Police barracks."

"Since the passage of Maryland's law in 1983, child passenger safety programs have been expanded to include children of all ages," said Ms. Meyers. "Convincing older children and teenagers to use safety belts presents a real challenge."

Recent observational studies indicated that 55 percent of infants and young children in Maryland are riding in car safety seats. However, the parents of the remaining 45 percent need to be educated about the "crucial need" to protect their children in a vehicle, according to Ms. Meyers. "The greatest problems associated with car seats are misuse of tether straps, seat belt attachment and seat placement," she said. "Only one of every three car safety seats used in Maryland is used properly."

Although 50 states and the District of Columbia have mandatory child passenger protection laws, Ms. Meyers said, misuse of safety seats is a growing problem. Research shows that a properly installed safety seat can be 80 percent effective in reducing death or injury.

Potomac Edison Notes Results Of Customer Survey

Customer attitudes toward the Potomac Edison Company have improved measurably over the past two years, according to the results of the electric utility's 1985 Customer Opinion Survey.

Ninety-two percent of the company's residential customers rated their overall impression of the company as satisfactory to excellent, compared to 90 percent in 1983. The survey is conducted every two years and draws from a random sample of the company's 246,000 residential customers. Survey forms were mailed to a sample of 3,560 customers. The 41.3 percent response rate statistically qualified the results as 95 percent accurate plus or minus two percentage points.

Customers received a survey containing 30 questions, soliciting responses about the value of electricity, energy conservation, type of appliances used in the home, in what ways does Potomac Edison do a good or poor job of providing service, the main fuel used to heat the home and government regulation of utilities.

Ninety-five percent of the residential customers rated service provided by the company as satisfactory to excellent compared to 90 percent in 1983. Most customers agree (82 percent) that the company should maintain reliability and dependability as opposed to cutting maintenance expenses in order to keep rates down.

Residential customers rated electricity as the best value compared to eight other products and services including: clothing, food, telephone, gasoline, postage, prescription drugs, taxes and natural gas. Sixty percent of those surveyed replied that their electric bill is reasonable or low, while 38 percent felt it was too high.

Ninety percent of PE customers said the company's promotion of energy conservation was satisfactory to excellent.

Sixty-five percent favored legislation that would require minimum standards for insulation in new homes. Yet, most customers opposed government legislation that would require higher electric rates to subsidize weatherization programs to disadvantaged low-income customers. Seventy-seven percent of PE's residential customers opposed programs for low-income customers if it would mean these programs would be subsidized through their electric and gas bills. Seventy-seven percent also said residential electric customers should not be charged higher rates so that low income users can be charged lower rates.

The survey indicates these other findings about PE residential customers:

*82 percent live in a single family house;

*33 percent use electricity as the main fuel to heat their homes, up from 27 percent in 1983 survey;

*73 percent said their main source of information about Potomac Edison was through bill inserts; 27 percent said their main source of information about the company was through newspapers; 11 percent through television; seven percent got their information from other PE employees; six percent through radio; and two percent responded "other."

*51 percent of PE customers live in residences that are 20 years old or less, while 49 percent live in dwellings 21 years and older.

*70 percent of those customers who purchased a major appliance in 1985 bought one with a high energy-efficiency rating compared to 60 percent in 1983, 51 percent in 1981, and 37 percent in 1979.

*The first-time question, "Do You Have A Home Computer?" revealed the following response: 87 percent, no; 11 percent, yes; no response, two percent.

*85 percent of the respondents rate PE satisfactory to excellent in providing emergency repair service when the power is out.

The Potomac Edison Company serves a 7,200 square-mile territory in portions of Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia. The percentage breakdown of responses by service area is as follows: Frederick, 14 percent; Hagerstown, 16 percent; Cumberland/Oakland, 13 percent; Luray, 13 percent; Winchester, 14 percent; Martinsburg, 13 percent and Romney, 17 percent.

Distilled Spirits Tax Revenues Down In January

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says distilled spirits tax revenue declined 1.6% in January, 1986, compared with the same month a year ago, but notes the trend is improving after declines of 31.8% in November, 1985, 10.7% in December, 1985.

"Sales of distilled spirits are recovering from unusual purchasing patterns that resulted when consumers rushed to purchase distilled spirits before the federal tax increased from $10.50 per gallon to $12.50 per gallon on October 1, 1985, Goldstein said.

As a result, Maryland's distilled spirits tax revenue for October, 1985, which reflected consumer purchases in advance of the federal tax increase, increased by 52.4%. "The falloff in tax collections during November, December and January reflects the slower pace of consumer purchases following the federal tax hike," he said.

The comptroller noted that the January, 1986, revenue represents consumer purchases around the December holidays, normally one of the heaviest months for distilled spirits sales.

For the first seven months of fiscal year 1986, distilled spirits tax revenue totals $8.3 million, a decline of seven-tenths of one percent from the amount collected during the same period the previous year. Wine tax revenue totals $2.2 million, slightly less than the comparable period of fiscal year 1985, while beer tax receipts total $4.7 million, almost exactly the same as last year at this time. Cigarette tax revenue amounts to $36.2 million, reflecting a three-tenths of one percent increase.

Total alcohol and tobacco tax revenue for the first seven months of fiscal year 1986 amounts to $51,429,941, about three-tenths of one percent more than the $51,333,777 collected during the identical period of fiscal year 1985.

White Flowering Dogwoods Available

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free white flowering dogwood trees to people who become Foundation members during February, 1986.

The free trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's efforts to encourage tree planting for beautification and community improvement throughout America.

"White flowering dogwoods were selected for this campaign because of the year-round beauty they add to our homes and neighborhoods," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director, said. "Dogwoods have showy spring flowers, scarlet autumn foliage, and red berries which attract songbirds all winter."

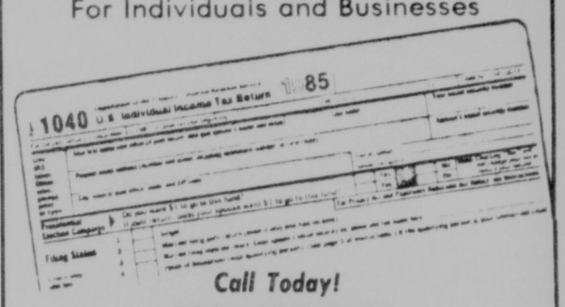
The ten free white flowering dogwoods will be shipped postpaid at the right time for planting this spring, between February 1 and May 31, with enclosed planting instructions. The six to twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow or they will be replaced free of charge. The Foundation will give the 10 free dogwoods to members contributing $10 during February.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to Ten Dogwoods, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by February 28, 1986.

Goldstein Notes Spending Shifts On Entertainment

Marylanders spent slightly less on taxable entertainment during October, November and December, 1985, than during the same three months of the previous year, according to State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein. There were some dramatic differences in the way the money was spent, however.

Statewide, spending in amusement parks increased from less than $200,000 to nearly $1.2 million, while spending for admission to athletic events climbed from $5.5 million to $6.4 million. Marylanders spent $2.2 million for live theatre and concerts, compared with $1.4 million during the same period of the previous year.



Spending for admission to night clubs dropped from $2.5 million to $2.0 million and spending at the movie box office dropped from $10.9 million to $10.2 million.

"All of this spending for entertainment generates admissions and amusement tax revenue which our office collects for Maryland's counties, cities and towns," Goldstein said. The comptroller noted that checks totaling $4,274,333 are on their way to local governments as their share of the admissions and amusement tax receipts.

"This distribution is about six-tenths of one percent less than the $4,304,233 we returned to the local governments for the October-December period of 1984," Goldstein said. "We collect this revenue at rates set by local officials and return the money to local governments each quarter."

Garrett County received $14,816 for the second quarter of fiscal year 1986, nearly a 30% increase over the $11,420 received during the same quarter of fiscal 1985.

4-H Scholarship Fund Will Honor Astronaut Onizuka

Maryland volunteer youth leaders and families of 4-H members are being asked to join their counterparts throughout the nation in honoring Lt. Col. Ellison S. Onizuka, one of the astronauts killed in the tragic explosion of the space shuttle Challenger shortly after its launching on January 28 at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

The Onizuka 4-H Fund for Excellence has been established as a national tribute to honor a man who was a 4-H member during his boyhood days in Hawaii and who continued during recent years as a loyal supporter and advisor to the national 4-H aerospace program.

In fact, Col. Onizuka was to have been in the Washington, D.C., area on February 11 for the initial showing of a new 4-H educational television series, "Blue Sky Beneath My Feet—Adventures in Space Technology." He had participated in the film's production.

On his first space mission in January 1985, Col. Onizuka took three 4-H flags aboard the shuttle. One of these flags was presented to state 4-H program leaders in his native Hawaii; another was presented to the Texas 4-H program. The third flag was to have been presented to national 4-H leaders this month in Washington, D.C.

The fund which has been established in his memory will be used to provide science and technology scholarships to 4-H members, as well as to support 4-H leadership initiatives in the states. It has support from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, as well as national and state administrators of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Cooperative Extension Service.

Donations to the fund are tax deductible. They may be sent directly to Grant A. Shrum, president, National 4-H Council, 7100 Conn. Ave., Chevy Chase, Maryland 20815.

The 790 Maryland teenagers enrolled in 4-H aerospace projects feel a special kinship with Lt. Onizuka because of his enthusiastic support at the national level, but they also are keenly aware that two other U.S. astronauts killed in the tragic space shuttle explosion had Maryland connections.

Christa McAuliffe, the school teacher from New Hampshire, had formerly taught for several years in Prince Georges County, and Judith A. Resnick held a Ph.D. in electrical engineering from the University of Maryland at College Park.

A memorial fellowship in honor of Dr. Resnick has been established by the College of Engineering at the University of Maryland. The first Resnick Fellowship is expected to be awarded in the fall of 1987.

Similarly, the National Education Association has established a memorial fund to honor Mrs. McAuliffe.

College and university educators across the nation are hoping that the tragic deaths of the seven U.S. astronauts might help to reverse a trend in the nation's high schools. That trend indicates more than half of U.S. high school students discontinue studies in mathematics and science after the tenth grade. This threatens a serious shortage of highly trained, educated scientists in the foreseeable future.

On Dean's List

The Office of Academic and Related Affairs at Alderson-Broaddus College has announced that Robin Lynn Frazee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Frazee, Friendsville, has been named to the Dean's List for scholarly achievement during the fall semester.

Miss Frazee is a junior, majoring in nursing.

To be eligible for inclusion to the Dean's List, students at the end of each semester must have attained a semester average of 3.6 or above, based on a four-point grading scale.

Alderson-Broaddus is a four-year, fully accredited liberal arts and sciences college in Philippi, W.Va.

STUDENTS VISIT MUSEUM — Fourth and fifth grade students of Donald Mitchell and Rosanne Sherwood at Accident Elementary School recently toured the museums of Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh. Above, Shelly Oester poses inside the replica of an igloo, located in Polar World, Wyckoff Hall of Arctic Life. The Museum of Natural History at the institute is the sixth largest natural museum in the nation. Other special areas toured by the students were Fossil Mammal Hall, Hillman Hall of Minerals and Gems, and the North American Indian Hall. Matthew W. Parker, a student at the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, served as the group's tour guide and interpreter. Assisting Ms. Sherwood and Mitchell as chaperones were Mrs. Alice Deal, Mrs. Sandy Oester, Mrs. Rhoda Buckel, Don Sealing, and Joe Serbia, all either parents or grandparents, and George Wassel, parent and bus driver.

Maryland Receives Funds For Fire Safety Programs

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has announced that three counties, as well as the State Fire Marshal's Office, have received federal funds to develop fire safety education programs. Fire Marshal Gabriele advised that the State of Maryland has been selected in 1985 as one of 10 states to participate in the National Community Volunteer Fire Prevention Program.

The National Community Volunteer Fire Prevention Program (NCVFPP) is a federally subsidized program directed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, in cooperation with the National Governors Association through the National Criminal Justice Association and the International Association of Fire Service Instructors. The goal of the NCVFPP is to help reduce fire deaths and burn injuries through a cooperative effort of the federal, state, and local government leaders, the fire service and community service organizations.

Governor Harry Hughes had previously designated Gabriele as the project coordinator for the NCVFPP in Maryland. Additionally, the Fire Marshal's Office was selected to receive a grant of $10,000 to aid in the coordination and management of fire safety activities in the state in conjunction with this program.

The NCVFPP is a three-year project that is anticipated to bring approximately $150,000 in federal funds to the state in an effort to build three workable community based volunteer fire prevention programs. It is anticipated that upon conclusion of the third year of the grant the three community volunteer fire safety programs would be self-sufficient, and could be easily replicated in other counties in the state.

In addition to the grant received by the State Fire Marshal's Office, Fire Marshal Gabriele selected three counties and community civic organizations to receive federal funds and participate in the NCVFPP. Of the approximately $70,000 that the State of Maryland will receive in 1986 to begin this special project, the funds will be distributed as follows:

—$10,000 to the State Fire Marshal's Office for the administration and development of the NCVFPP in Maryland.

—$25,000 to the Maryland Association for the Education of Young Children at the University of Maryland in Prince George's County for the development and production of programs in fire safety education of pre-school age children.

—$25,000 to the Optimist Club of Hollywood in St. Mary's County for the implementation of the fire safety and burn prevention program entitled "Learn Not to Burn" in the elementary school system of St. Mary's County.

—$10,000 to the Soroptimist International of Frederick County. This grant will assist the Soroptimist in the production of fire safety awareness programs targeted at the elderly. Included in this project will be a smoke detector awareness and distribution campaign.

In 1984, residential fires accounted for three out of every four fire deaths, five out of six fire injuries, and almost half of all direct fire property losses in the United States. The National Community Volunteer Fire Prevention Program is aimed directly at cutting the losses from these home fires.

As the NCVFPP begins in Maryland, Gabriele remarked, "With the assistance of the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the U.S. Fire Administration, our state has one of the best opportunities in its history to educate the citizens, both young and old, as to proper fire safety behaviors and better fire protection. One of my goals as State Fire Marshal is to help reduce the number of fire deaths in our state below 100 by the year 1988. With programs such as the NCVFPP, we stand a much better chance of obtaining this goal.

WVU Theatrical Productions Noted

Two productions are scheduled by the West Virginia University division of theatre this semester.

They are "Master Harold and the Boys" by Athol Fugard and Anton Chekhov's "The Seagull."

"Master Harold," to be directed by Doug Grisson, replaces two short classics by Eugene Ionesco originally scheduled for March 6-8 and March 18-22.

"The Seagull" will be performed April 17-19 and April 22-26 under the direction of Angela D'Ambrosia. Both plays will be presented at 8:15 p.m. in the Studio Theatre.

Tickets for $5 ($3 for students and senior citizens) may be reserved by calling the box office at (304) 293-3020 from 11:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays.

Republican State Committee Meets

Members of the Republican State Central Committee met Tuesday, February 4, at the Holiday Inn, Grantsville.

The topic of discussion was the upcoming Lincoln Day Dinner, which will be held April 19 at the Deer Park Fire Hall.

Members in attendance were William Crawford, chairman; Wayne Wilt, vice chairman; Paul Frantz, secretary; and Cora Bowser, treasurer.

Helping Women Become Assertive, More Informed Goal Of Conference

Helping women to become more informed and more assertive about their health needs is an integral goal of the Conference on Women's Health, set for February 22, at Frostburg State College's Lane Center.

Two of the conference's 16 speakers, Cynthia Brown, M.D. and E. Joy Mappes, R.N., in presenting topics on breast cancer and women's rights in a medical context, have planned informative useful sessions including some "good news" and practical advice.

Fewer women would die of breast cancer, says Dr. Brown, if they underwent a screening procedure called mammography. The technique helps to identify more palpable cancers which have a 95 percent cure rate when identified at this early stage of cancer. Dr. Brown views mammograms as "screening conservative therapy for early breast cancer and mastectomy." An alternative to mastectomy, which Dr. Brown will discuss, are lumpectomy and radiation procedures, both giving women in early breast cancer stages an equally successful survival rate.

Showing women how to become more responsible for their own health care will be the focus of Mappes' presentation. "One of the problems that people see in seeking medical care is that they do not know what they are entitled and what kinds of questions to ask," said Mappes. Utilizing the American Hospital Association's list of patients' rights, she will explain such rights within a medical context, particularly as they pertain to hospital care.

Not wishing to convey the idea that the medical profession is uncaring and inattentive to patients' needs, Mappes said women should simply learn to become more assertive and not adhere to the "anything you say, doctor" attitude. She said doctors and nurses are trying to recognize that patients are more self-determining and able to make decisions about their own health care.

The day-long conference, co-sponsored by Allegany Community College and Frostburg State College, has been organized to present information on a variety of women's health issues and to increase awareness of women's physical and psychological health.

Dr. Peg Kaiser, of the Garrett County Memorial Hospital Medical Staff, is also one of the scheduled speakers.

Registration (February 14 is the deadline) includes a luncheon and is $10 for general admission and $2 for students. For more information, persons may contact Dr. Lee Cohen at 689-4234 or Donna Walbert at 724-7700, ext. 285.

MARYLAND DEPARTMENT NEWSPAPER

Spotlight On Students
Of Garrett Community College

Dove Wassell DeBerry

A Garrett Community College student who has worn many hats during her high school and college years is Dove Wassell DeBerry, daughter of George and Wanda Wassell of Bittinger.

In addition to her academic work, her participation in athletics, and her many responsibilities with Future Farmers of America and 4-H, this busy young woman has added a new dimension to her life with her recent marriage to Thomas DeBerry of Deer Park.

The DeBerrys now live on a farm in Deer Park where they plan to raise beef cattle.

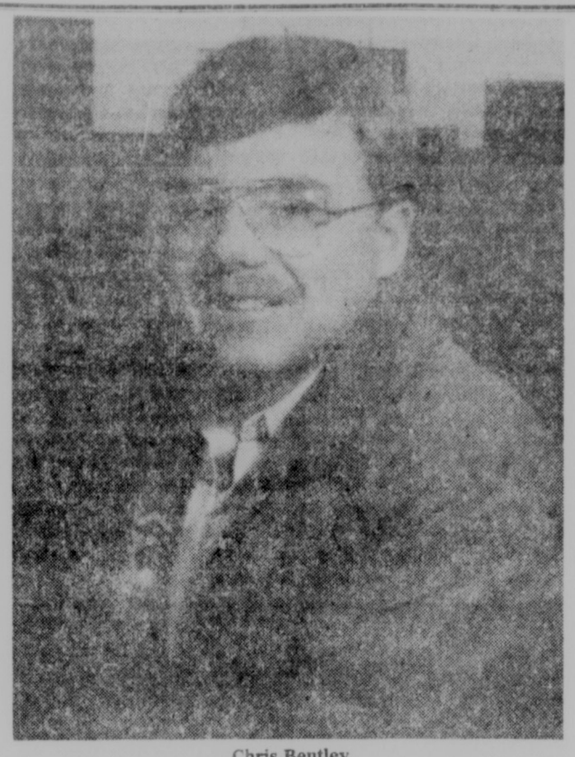
DeBerry, who is now a sophomore majoring in psychology, plans to continue her education at Frostburg State College after graduation in May. She hopes to then return to Garrett County and work as a school psychologist.

A 1984 graduate of Northern High School, DeBerry says she came to GCC because it was small and she would get to know the professors and other students personally.

"When I first enrolled, I was a pre-law major," she said. But after taking one psychology course I changed my mind and my major. I have found that all the instructors at Garrett care about the students and support them. The smaller classes and friendly atmosphere have helped me to learn better."

While in high school, DeBerry was a member of the softball and basketball teams, business manager of the school paper, The Viking, a member of the Quill and Scroll Society, the national journalism honorary society, and was listed in Who's Who in American High Schools in 1983 and 1984. Since the ninth grade, she has been active in Future Farmers of America, having served as chapter secretary and state vice president for Region I.

Through FFA, she competed in the Farm Business Management test at the Eastern Shore Exposition in Springfield, Mass. in September, 1984, in which her team won gold recognition. She also competed in the state-wide FFA chapter Livestock and Soil Judging contests. In 1984, she was the Maryland FFA representative for American Royal Queen in Kansas City, Mo.



As a member of 4-H, DeBerry won the Garrett County public speaking contest in 1985 and competed in the district contest in Allegany County.

She also served on the State Board of Directors and the State 4-H council from 1980-84. Currently she is serving on the County Extension Advisory Council.

She was also first runner-up for Garrett County Farm Queen in 1983 and 1984 and participated in the preliminaries of the Miss America contest held in Allegany County in 1984.

Deberry says she is looking forward to receiving her associate in arts degree in May, though she will be sorry to leave Garrett.

"I would definitely recommend GCC to other students," she said. "The quality of education is excellent and it is a good school for students who are looking for a personal college."

Chris Bentley

A young man who has definite ideas about his future career is Chris Bentley, a sophomore student at Garrett Community College and son of Helton and Pamela Bentley of Oakland.

Bentley graduated from Southern High School in 1984 and is now enrolled in the General Studies program with a humanities emphasis, taking courses that will lead to a career in radio broadcasting via the U.S. Army and its communications training.

After receiving his associate of arts degree in May, Bentley plans to enlist in the Army where he hopes to get into communications training and become a part of the Armed Forces Radio Network. He says the college credits he is earning will enable him to enter the military service at two pay ranks above the base rate and will give him an advantage for promotion.

His enlistment will be following a family tradition since both his father and grandfather served in the Army.

Because of his interest in all sports, Bentley hopes to do network sportscasting some day, and eventually become general manager of a radio station. He is presently employed part-time at WXIE/WMSG radio station.

Concerning his education at Garrett, Bentley says, "On the whole, the instructors here do a fine job, but I have no way of comparing Garrett with other institutions. I don't think I could do as well academically at a larger institution. I feel that any graduate of Northern or Southern high schools would be well advised to consider Garrett Community College for the first two years of their education."

A Growing Community College — Interesting Facts About GCC

Note: The following article was provided by several members of a promotional committee at Garrett Community College in observance of National Community College Month and local Community College Week.

Garrett Community College was officially organized through the efforts of many public-spirited citizens in September of 1966 and has experienced an incredible growth since its inception.

The following time line gives an overview of the history of the emergence of the local community college.

1968—Board of Trustees acquired a site in McHenry and appointed an architect to develop building plans.

1970—Dr. Luther Shaw was appointed as GCC's first president.

1971—First classes were offered at the new McHenry campus, adjacent to Deep Creek Lake.

1976—Vocational Technical Building completed and GCC extends off-campus to the Oakland Center.

1978—Coal Mining Technology Building completed for fall classes.

1979—Expanded athletic offerings to include intercollegiate volleyball and baseball in addition to basketball.

1982—Completion of the Student Center which houses various student activities including food services.

Growth of GCC

Garrett Community College has grown from 144 students in 1971 to 560 students in 1985 of those enrolled in credit programs.

The college now employs 17 full-time and 37 part-time members.

GCC now offers some 359 courses in 34 different degree and certificate programs.

Community Commitment

Garrett's commitment to the community can be seen in its Continuing Education program, according to Dr. George Dailey, chairman of promotional efforts of GCC for National Community College Month.

He says the Oakland Center offers many Continuing Education non-credit courses and programs in which some 1,000 persons enroll annually.

The various activities of the Oakland Center include: non-credit courses, senior citizens programs, Adult Basic Education and GED preparation.

Tuition

GCC's tuition for Garrett County residents is $26 per credit hour with a maximum tuition of $390 per semester. Maryland residents outside Garrett County is $46 per credit hour with a maximum tuition of $690 per semester. Tuition for an out-of-state resident is $98 per credit hour.

Garrett also enjoys a reciprocity agreement with West Virginia to enroll students in certain vocational programs at resident rates.

Rank and File

As appointed by Governor Harry Hughes, the GCC Board of Trustees members are: Katharine L. Smith, chairman; William B. Grant, vice chairman; Charles Bender, Richard Browning, Pat Fischetti, Gary Fratz and Dr. Raymond McCullough.

The interim president at the college is Dr. David A. Puzzuoli and acting dean of academic affairs is Dr. Lillian R. Mitchell. Other members of the administration include: Dr. Nancy J. Priselac, dean of student affairs; John F. Culp, comptroller; Manning L. Smith, director of student services; Lowell E. Bender, director of continuing education; Carol Smith, director of the learning resources center; Robert W. Crone, academic director/arts and humanities; Michael L. Logsdon, academic director/mathematics and sciences; Donald Storck, academic director/business and technologies.

Facts About Two-Year Colleges

Note: February is National Community College Month. The following fact sheet about community colleges was prepared by James R. Mahoney, a staff member of the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges.

Economics:

1. Community, technical and junior colleges offered more than 1,400 different technical programs that enrolled more than 3.2 million credit students in the fall of 1984. Thousands of local business persons, public leaders and citizens serve on the advisory committees of these technical programs and provide both a close tie to the communities and expert direction for college instruction.

2. Colleges have estimated that for every $1 of tax support provided, they return $4 to the economy.

3. For every $1 awarded by the federal government in support of vocational/technical education, state and local governments spend $10 or more.

4. On the average, the colleges participate in 15 or more partnerships with local business and industry annually, providing special training programs, research and other resources designed to improve business effectiveness. The most training programs given through these partnerships are: electronics, data processing, office occupations, computer science and engineering.

5. The colleges work directly with thousands of local organized labor unions offering the academic preparation portion of apprenticeship training.

6. State support for public community, technical and junior colleges amounted to 53 percent of total budgets in 1984, and federal support was approximately 2.6%.

7. Median fulltime equivalent expenditures in 1984 in public two-year colleges was $2,559, with a range from $1,830 to $4,352.

8. According to one report, every student who completes a community college program can expect to pay to society six to ten times more than a person who does not matriculate.

Student Characteristics:

1. Approximately 75 percent of all parttime and fulltime credit students hold down jobs while they are attending two-year colleges. Many of these students are seeking to upgrade their skills for their current jobs, preparing for job changes or investigating the possibilities available in new fields.

2. More than half of the credit students are female.

3. Studies show that many students persist in their efforts to complete degree programs. According to one recent study, even after 11 years from the date they entered college, students were still graduating.

4. More than two-thirds of credit students are enrolled in occupational/technical courses; the greatest majority of these students are enrolled in business and engineering related programs.

5. Approximately 16 percent of credit students receive federal Pell grants.

6. More than 65 percent of credit students are parttime.

7. The average age of community, technical and junior college students is between 27 and 29 years old, with the trend continuing for an increasingly older student population.

Contributions to Higher Education:

1. Nearly 40 percent of all postsecondary students in the U.S. are enrolled in community, technical and junior colleges, making the colleges the single largest component of all higher education.

2. Close to 55 percent of all first-time freshmen in credit programs in American colleges enrolled in two-year colleges in 1983.

3. Minority students represented 20 percent of all community college students in 1982. Of this number, 55.5 percent were black, 29.9 percent were Hispanic and 14.6 percent were Asian. In all of higher education in 1980, two-year colleges enrolled 42.7 percent of black students, 54.1 percent of Hispanic students and 43.4 percent of Asian students, or 45.7 percent of all minority students in postsecondary institutions.

4. The 1,221 institutions listed in the most recent AACJC Directory make up about one-third of all postsecondary institutions in the U.S. Public two-year colleges number 1,666 and private colleges number 155.

5. Community colleges enroll approximately 50 percent of all handicapped college students, 50 percent who are mobility impaired, 44 percent who are visually impaired and 57 percent who are acoustically impaired.

6. Close to 40 percent of all degrees (baccalaureate and below) awarded by U.S. postsecondary institutions are awarded by two-year colleges.

7. Nearly one-half of community, technical and junior colleges rank themselves as small/rural. Many serve communities that have no other convenient postsecondary institution within reach.

8. Almost one-third of the colleges provide on-campus housing for students.

GCC HOSTS DNR OFFICERS — DNR Officer Walter May and Cpl. John Williams met with the students in Principles of Wildlife Management on February 5 at Garrett Community College. Professor James Mullan invited the representative of the DNR to speak to his class. Their topics included job opportunities, the recent bear killings, turkey season and the responsibilities of the DNR. The students were then given the opportunity to ask questions. Shown in the photo, left to right, are Officers May and Williams, Rob Balantine and Randy Meyers, GCC students.

National Community College Month
Garrett Community College Highlight: Transfer Opportunities

One of the missions of a comprehensive community college is to offer students the opportunity to enroll in courses which will transfer to other colleges and universities. Although Garrett Community College is a small institution in terms of student numbers, its carefully planned course offerings combined with an effective program of advising enable students to transfer to many different four-year colleges and universities. How adaptable or restrictive is the GCC curriculum in meeting the educational needs of transfer students? Where do transfer students go after GCC? Where can they go?

An answer to these important questions can be found in the list of collegiate institutions to which GCC students have transferred. For a small community college the list below seems impressive, as GCC students have transferred to ninety different colleges and universities in twenty-eight states from Maine to California, and the list grows yearly.

What's so special about the number 22?

Well, I started working here at Gregg's Pharmacy 22 years ago this month. I think the "stock-boy" to owner story is a little overdone, but that's just what happened.

I still work with Mr. Gregg, who's been here "forever" and Freda Pennington who started here shortly after I did. This team of over 20 years-to-life sentenced inmates comprises the management team of Gregg's Pharmacy.

What's so special about the number 22? Anyone who has over 20 years of experience in one job location has acquired a lot of prideful feelings. This pride shows in our work and in our reputation. We have a lot of patrons who show they are proud of us, also.

Maryland Income Tax Assistance Offered Locally

Experts from the Maryland Income Tax Division will be visiting Oakland soon to help taxpayers working on their 1985 Maryland income tax returns, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein announced.

The tax officials will offer a variety of free taxpayer services on Thursday, February 27, at the Garrett County Couthouse from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

"Our tax experts will be happy to answer questions, provide all the necessary forms, and even complete your Maryland income tax return free of charge," Goldstein said. "Please be sure to bring along a completed copy of your federal returns and all W-2 statements.

"It's also important to bring along the yellow address label from your state tax packet and all other necessary documents," Goldstein said. "Using the label speeds up your refund check by three to five days."

The comptroller reminded taxpayers that they can also call or visit any of the 15 Maryland income tax offices listed on the back of the state tax packet and in local telephone directories for free state income tax assistance.

Masons To Meet

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, will have a regular communication on Tuesday, February 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple, 3 South Wilson Street. The Second Degree will be conferred on all prepared Entered Apprentice Masons.

Worshipful Master Robert R. Bray invites all Master Masons to attend.

Retired Railroad Employee From Crellin Now Occupied With Painting

Editor's note: The following article appeared in the January 30 issue of The Cumberland Times/News. Permission has been granted for its reprint in this issue of The Republican.

by Donald K. Spangler

When entering the home of William (Bill) Knotts and his wife, Edna (Smith) Knotts in Bowling Green, a visitor's eyes are drawn to a collection of beautifully-done oil paintings.

Some are mounted in antique frames, others in present-day frames. They are appealing and transmit to the viewer a feeling of tranquility and satisfaction.

It is the same air of calmness that seems to come from Bill, the creator of those works of art.

During his youth in Crellin, Bill was a cartoonist for his Oakland High School paper. He also did some art work for the school yearbook. He was graduted in the class of 1926.

Little did that youngster know his high school hobby would develop into a second career following retirement.

Now, Bill says, "People make a mistake when they retire without having a hobby."

Since retirement in 1973, he has sold 51 of his paintings. They have gone to art lovers in 12 states, District of Columbia, . . . South America and Canada.

During pre-retirement years, when he was chief clerk to the master mechanic at the Western Maryland Railway, he studied art in a variety of classes and also by correspondence.

Bristling with talent that is transformed through brush to canvas, Bill's love of the rural areas is revealed in many of his paintings.

But the awesome beauty of nature is also revealed in his work.

He and Edna have traveled and his brush and easel have captured the beauty of the Adirondack Mountains and streams.

Autumn streams reveal the colorful, but detailed, beauty of the tapestry nature folds over the trees during that season. This is close, talent-revealing work. Blue Ridge Mountain scenes can be viewed as well as farm scenes in Vermont.

An old grist mill is done in such perfect detail that the water of the mill pond carries the reflection of the building.

The wooden boards covering the outside of the mill give one the urge to touch them and see if they are splintered.

That fast-disappearing link to travel in an unruffled part of our American history, the covered bridge, can be found in the display.

People living on mountain farms are seen going about their chores.

One work in this category is a depiction of the artist's father's home in the West Virginia mountains, near Rowlesburg.

It has been created from memories Mr. Knotts has of his late father's description of the place. To add a little more interest, the artist has painted in a tumbling brook near the house.

Still life is also seen among his works. A vase that is a family heirloom is shown filled with cut flowers.

Some of West Virginia's famous rock formations are placed on canvas by Bill's brush. Baker Rock, in Hardy County, and Seneca Rocks, in Pendleton County, are there in all their awesome majesty.

Evidence of some extended travel off the beaten path should carry a canvas viewer back to the peaceful days spent in quiet areas communing with nature.

The trees of the forest reveal the weathering process and its scars.

More history from as far back as the early 1800's springs to a colorful return to present day viewers.

These have been copied from prints in very old books belonging to Knotts. He then makes them more interesting by adding roads and streams to the scenes.

Running through all these beautiful oils is the unspoken, persistent message, "Don't stagnate during retirement. Keep sharply alert, occupy yourself with a hobby."

We all have God-given talents of some kind. Bill Knotts makes good use of his.

After quiet reverie we hear advice again, "If you have a second career while in retirement, control that career to control you. Hang loose, be leisurely."

What else does Bill Knotts enjoy? He loves to read tall tales, but art is his first love.

Real Estate

Deep Creek Realty

THE BACKUP OFFER

On Monday, you receive an offer to purchase your home. You are satisfied and sign the acceptance.

On Tuesday, another buyer offers to purchase the same property for a greater amount of money. The second buyer is willing to do anything to own your particular house and is willing to wait around in hopes that your first buyer's transaction somehow falls through. What can you do?

In rare situations, it is possible to accept a backup offer on your property. You can accept an offer from the second buyer "subject to the nonperformance of the existing contract with the first buyer." Of course the initial buyer has a firm contract with you, and will probably be the next owner. However, if anything goes wrong with that transaction, you can then obtain a release from number one to sell to number two, with the price and the terms already agreed upon in your backup contract. You are in the enviable position of having both a belt and suspenders.

Farming In Maryland.....

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Ag-Education In Md. Comes Before General Assembly

National FFA Week seems like a good time to report on two efforts being made by the Maryland General Assembly to upgrade the agricultural education system in the state.

A House joint resolution (HJ-51) is requesting the governor to establish a Committee on Education in Agriculture to study existing programs and policies concerning education in agriculture, and to emphasize just what agriculture means to Maryland. The resolution introduced by Delegates George H. Littrell Jr. (D-Frederick) and Ellen R. Sauerbrey (R-Balt.Co.), would require the committee to report by January 1, 1987, and make recommendations for the improvement and enhancement of vocational agricultural education programs.

In the Senate, Sen. Joseph S. Bonvegna (D-Balt. City), has submitted SB-646 in an attempt to get more state funding for vocational education. The bill would try to match state fund requirements to federal vocational education assistance for which counties are eligible.

This week HB-16 will be heard by the Ways and Means Committee. This is the bill that would provide a state income tax deduction for conservation tillage equipment, defined as a no-till planter or drill. Maryland Farm Bureau's Jack Miller feels the bill has a 50-50 chance of passing out of committee. "The bill's passage will hinge on any potential savings down the road," Miller said, and added that the purpose of the bill, of course, is to encourage the use of such equipment by the state's farmers.

Today the House Ways and Means Committee will hear HB-822 on a fuel tax reduction on alcohol blended motor fuels. This bill, introduced by Delegate Gerard F. Devlin (D-P.G. Co.), would continue the reduction of the fuel tax on alcohol blended motor fuel (gasohol) at three cents per gallon less than other motor vehicle fuels, provided the mixture contains 10 percent or more ethyl alcohol. Although there are rumors of a gasohol production plant coming into the state, the actual need for gasohol will not be that important unless another shortage of gasoline occurs. However, a gasohol plant would open a market for Maryland farm products, and another important use of gasohol would come into play with the phasing out of leaded gasoline. Gasohol's present main use is as an octane enhancer for unleaded gasoline.

Wheat, Feed Grain Program Signup Begins March 3

"We will begin accepting applications for the 1986 wheat and feed grain programs on March 3," Harry W. Hummel, chairperson, Garrett County ASC Committee said. Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block recently announced a 25 percent acreage reduction program for wheat and a 20 percent reduction for feed grains.

In addition to price support loans and deficiency payments, Hummel said farmers who sign up and comply with the acreage reduction program requirements will be eligible for land diversion payments on an acreage equal to two and one-half percent of the crop acreage bases. "Farmers may request 100 percent of their land diversion payments and 40 percent of their projected deficiency payments when they sign up."

Land diversion payment rates are $1.10 per bushel for wheat, 73 cents for corn, 65 cents for sorghum, 57 cents for barley and 36 cents per bushel for oats. The 10 percent additional paid diversion option for wheat producers is $2.00 per bushel.

Humunel said program participants will be eligible to earn deficiency payments on the acres planted within the permitted allotment. "Those who plant at least 50 percent of the permitted acreage to the program crop, and plant the remaining permitted acreage to a non-program crop, other than soybeans, will be eligible to receive deficiency payments on 92 percent of the permitted acreage."

Estimated per bushel deficiency payment rates are: wheat, $1.83; corn, $1.03; sorghum, $.93; barley, $.95 and oat, $.45.

He said winter wheat producers who reduce the acreage planted to wheat so that it does not exceed 65 percent of the farm's wheat base will be eligible to receive diversion payments of $2.00 per bushel on an acreage equivalent to 10 percent of the wheat base.

According to Hummel, 75 percent of the advance deficiency payments will be paid in cash during signup, and the remaining 25 percent will be paid as payment-in-kind (PIK) beginning April 30. "Farmers will have from April 30 through September 30 to request the PIK portion of their advance deficiency and/or diversion payments."

Farmers with commodity loans outstanding after signup closes must redeem their loan with their PIK. Farmers who do not have commodity loans, or whose commodity loans are insufficient to meet their PIK entitlements, will be issued negotiable certificates in the net remaining monetary amount due them.

"A farmer who accepts an advance payment, and who later does not comply with program provisions must refund the amount of the advance payment with interest."

The ASCS official said contracts signed by program participants will be considered binding and will provide for liquidated damages for failure to comply with program regulations.

Further clarification of the 1986 acreage reduction programs may be obtained by contacting the Garrett County ASCS Office at 334-1901. Program signup ends April 11.

No-Till Makes A Difference

Does it make a difference which cropping technique is used for corn? Researchers at the University of Maryland answer a resounding "yes."

In one study, researchers found that converting from conventionally-tilled corn to a no-till cultivation system reduced the total volume of runoff by 45 percent.

That is because no-till systems leave behind a mulch on the soil surface that slows the process of erosion during rainfall, according to Dr. J. Scott Angle, assistant professor of agronomy.

Runoff from agricultural lands have been blamed, in part, for the decline of marine and plant life in the Chesapeake Bay. "During one year of our study, the loss of sediment from conventional-tilled fields was 11 times greater than that from no-till fields," Angle says. Other researchers have found that conventional-tilled fields are as much as 22 times as prone to sediment loss as no-till fields.

Grain Stocks Up

Maryland corn stocks held in all positions January 1 totaled 45.7 million bushels, up six percent from 1985. Stocks of corn held off farms at 24.6 million made up 54 percent of the total and was 10 percent above last year's 22.4 million bushels stored off farms.

On-farm storage of corn totaled 21.1 million bushels on January 1, 46 percent of the total and one percent above last year's 20.9 million bushels on farms.

Oats stocks in all positions totaled 397,000 bushels, two percent above that stored a year earlier. On-farm storage of oats totaled 297,000 bushels and off-farm 100,000 bushels. On-farm oats storage was 16 percent above 1985 with off-farm down 24 percent from a year ago.

Corn stored in all positions on January 1 across the United States is estimated at 7.68 billion bushels, 34 percent more than the January 1, 1985 total of 5.68 billion bushels. Of the total corn stocks on hand January, 70 percent, or 5.53 billion bushels was stored on farms. This is 23 percent more than the January 1 farm stocks a year ago. Off-farm stocks, at 2.35 billion bushels are 51 percent above January 1, 1985.

Oats stocks in all storage positions on January 1, across the country totaled 379 million bushels, up six percent from January 1, 1985. Farm stocks, at 310 million bushels are three percent more than January 1 a year ago. Off-farm holdings, at 68.4 million bushels are up 18 percent from a year earlier.

FFA Alumni Assist In High School Programs

"They are my right hand, my sounding board, my public relations; they're my former students and other community people who desire to assist the high school agriculture/FFA program . . . No matter what I need, someone in the group will be qualified to do the job as well as I, maybe even better," is how one agriculture teacher described the local FFA alumni members with whom he works.

Jay Householder, immediate past National FFA Alumni Association president, agrees and adds that FFA Alumni affiliates are important booster groups for vocational agriculure/FFA students and also serve a vital role in community education.

"There are literally scores of activities and programs the FFA alumni help with," Householder said. Projects can be anything from providing transportation to coaching judging teams to sponsoring money-raising projects.

Or they can be as complex as helping the local high school construct a shop building for vocational agriculture classes, which was a project of the local FFA Alumni Association in New Lexington, Ohio, where Householder, a former vocational agriculture student and FFA member, now teaches social sciences.

"At the national level, our emphasis is a little different," Householder said. An information service managed by Robert "Woody" Cox, National FFA Alumni Association executive director, keeps members up-to-date on legislation and trends affecting vocational agriculture and the FFA. "We also have a Government Affairs Committee that operates during the year," Householder added.

Another important function the National FFA Alumni Association fills is keeping national leaders informed about the importance of vocational education in agriculture and the FFA.

Householder believes there should be renewed emphasis on vocational education, despite the movement to place greater emphasis on academic courses in the schools.

"Only one out of every four high school students will go on to attend a four-year college," Householder noted. "That leaves three out of every four young people who need some background, some skills, some training to prepare themselves for careers," Householder said, "and that's why vocational agriculture and the FFA are such important parts of school curriculum."

Although the idea for an FFA alumni association dates back to the early days of FFA, it was 1972 before the National FFA Alumni Association became a reality. Since then its growth has been rapid, and it now boasts a membership of more than 26,000 nationwide.

Many members, of course, are former active, collegiate or honorary FFA members. But membership is also open to present and former professional vocational agriculture educators, parents of FFA members, and anyone else interested in the FFA.

Another rapidly growing segment of FFA alumni is the Life Members. Numbered among the more than 5,700 Life Members are former President Jimmy Carter, Senator Bob Dole of Kansas and Congressman Wes Watkins of Oklahoma.

Life Members make a one-time $100 payment of a prorated payment of $25 for five years. These dues are then placed in a special fund and only interest is used to pay for the various member services, such as membership cards and subscriptions to the "FFA Alumni Newsletter" and "The National Future Farmer Magazine".

Upon the death of a Life Member, a $100 Memorial Scholarship, in the name of the Life Member, may be presented in the local chapter or state association to further an FFA member's education in agriculture.

"We feel we have a vital program in vocational agriculture and the FFA," Householder said. And the rapid growth of the National FFA Alumni Association and its roster of Life Members, plus the corporate support the organization receives from Ace Bolt and Nut Company, Rhone-Poulenc, Inc., and The Merck Company Foundation, surely attests to this attitude.

Householder added, "Even though I didn't go into vo-ag teaching myself as a career, I still feel that it was a vital part of my training as a young person. And I think the vast majority of former FFA members would tell you they would not trade that education for anything in the world."

For information on becoming an FFA Alumni member, contact Sandra Harvey at 334-2239 for the Oakland Alumni Association, or for the North Garrett Alumni Association, contact either Bob Bender at 826-8161 or Tom Stemple at 826-8749. Both groups hold regular meetings once a month; the Oakland Association meets the first Monday and the North Garrett Association meets the third Tuesday. New members are always welcome.

GARRETT COUNTY Cooperative Extension Service
FARM-O-GRAM

Jim Simms
Extension Agent, Agriculture

Two livestock workshops have been scheduled by the Garrett County Extension Service.

SHEEP FARM MANAGEMENT WORKSHOP
7:30 P.M. Thursday, March 13, 1986
Garrett Community College, Room 010A
(Across from Auditorium)

A Sheep Management Workshop will be offered for farmers with flocks and those interested in the enterprise. The purpose of the workshop is to improve production from flocks through sound management techniques.

David Greene, Carroll County extension agent, will present information on breeding management, health, care of ewes and rams, and feeding and management of lambs from weaning to market. David has many years' experience with sheep as a farm business, as extension agent and in judging. He will also address questions on the Rocco processing plant in Virginia.

Cindy Soth will present slides and talk on lamb management. Cindy worked on a large sheep farm (2,000 ewes) and now has her own farm in Harford County.

Alternate date in case of bad weather will be Tuesday, March 18th, 7:30 p.m. at Garrett Community College.

BEEF PRODUCTION WORKSHOP
7:30 P.M. Thursday, March 20, 1986
Garrett Community College Auditorium

Dr. Mark Varner, University of Maryland, will present information on management techniques to help farmers increase their beef cow herd production efficiency. Dr. Varner will present information on reproduction management problems and solutions, alternatives in breeding procedures, health of the beef cow herd, bull power, etc. Dr. Varner has done research and written many articles on reproduction. You will like his practical approach to the subject.

Also, a beef cow herd management calendar will be available, plus calving schedules, performance testing procedures and other beef cow herd information will be presented.

Plenty of time will be available for questions. Remember, open heifers and cows and other herd problems cost beef producers a lot of time and money, so make a reservation to become more efficient in the management of your beef cow herd.

Please make a reservation for either the sheep or beef programs or both by calling the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-1990 by March 10th.

Prepared by Theodore A. Sprangle, Extension Agent, Agricultural Science and 4-H.

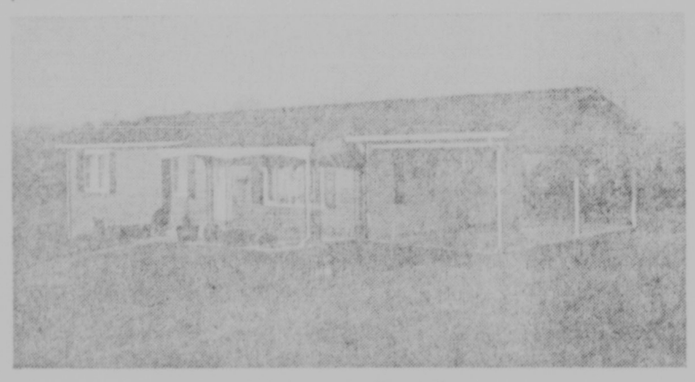
With spring just around the corner, I bet you have been thinking about making improvements in your home. We can think of no better way to spruce up the interior of your home than new carpets or vinyls. We know from many years of experience of selling and installing floor coverings that spring is an extremely busy time of the year for us.



This year, we have really prepared ourselves for your spring shopping. Being forewarned that prices were going up in January, we bought our spring stock in November and December. This spring we are really ready and waiting for you. We feel real good about our stock floor covering prices and selection. And if you give us a chance and include us in your shopping, we feel confident we can impress you too. You're always welcome in our home and our shoppe.

Remember, we're the couple who says, "A floor without a rug is like a kiss without a hug."

KEYSTONE HOMES
WANTS YOU NOW

If you aren't the average home buyer, and want that extra quality in a home with prices you can afford, you must see us now about a new Keystone Home for spring delivery.

We are booking up fast for March, April, and May, so don't delay, see us today so you can begin planning your home to fit your own exact needs. If for some reason you find you can't build this year after you place your order, you can cancel with just a phone call.

24'x48' Rancher
1,152 sq. ft. 3-bedroom, for only $31,125
(With porch and carport, $33,485)

Completely finished from the plate up on your foundation. We set all of our homes with a crane so there is no stress on your foundation.

All of our homes come with the energy package which is standard. Insulation is R19 walls, R19 floor, R32 ceiling, Andersen Thermopane vinyl-clad wood windows with storms and screens, a very big energy-saver, and they never need painting. Exterior doors are metal insulated with storm doors; total electric heat with thermostats in each room.

You have your choice of interior drywall, paneling or both. Drywall has two coats of the paint of your choice; beautiful, textured ½" drywall ceiling over a 3/8" plywood sub ceiling.

Nice selection of top grade carpet throughout home except for kitchen and baths. There we offer a no-wax linoleum by Armstrong. This is put over a super strong 1 1/8" thick floor. Floor joints are 2x10, 16" on center.

Kitchen and bath have your choice of vinyl wall coverings, beautiful kitchen cabinets with stainless steel sinks, 30" GE electric range; exhaust fans in kitchen and bath, vanity-in-bath, with a one-piece fiberglas tub and shower; 52 gallon hot water heater, aluminum wood grain siding, shutters, gutter and down spouts, 5/12 roof pitch on 25' and 28' wide models.

This home can be custom designed to fit your own needs at no charge. A home is a big investment today so shop around and compare. But before you buy, be sure and see a Keystone Home . . . we think it will speak for itself.

Increasing Spread Of Multiflora Rose Seen As Serious Problem

Multiflora rose is on the increase in the Western Maryland counties of Garrett, Allegany, Washington, Frederick, and Montgomery, because the rolling and mountainous terrain of pasture and idle land is particularly vulnerable to the spread of the plant.

When it comes to perennial weeds, few spread faster than multiflora rose. Unchallenged, this woody briar quickly covers valuable grassland, deters livestock with its sharp thorns and renders vast areas of pasture land useless for agriculture. There are, fortunately, chemical treatments which can eradicate the threat of multiflora rose.

Multiflora rose was brought to the United States from Japan in the mid-1800's as an ornamental plant. Promoted in the 1930's by the USDA as a "living fence" to control soil erosion and to provide wildlife cover, it was widely planted throughout the United States. Wildlife found the fruit of this prickly plant tasty, scattering seeds which sprouted to form new bushes over vast areas.

Today, multiflora rose is considered a menace throughout much of the United States. Other than Maryland, states which have identified multiflora rose as a serious problem include West Virginia, Ohio, Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Iowa, Indiana, and Wisconsin.

Dr. Ron Ritter, Extension Weed Control specialist at the University of Maryland, notes that multiflora rose is not as serious a problem in Maryland as in some of those other states. This is due to a cooperative control effort in the mid-to-late 1970's by the Maryland Department of Agriculture, county agents, farmers and chemical companies. This effort brought attention to the spreading multiflora rose problem and to the control methods available.

Jesse Crook, supervisor, Weed Control Section, Maryland Department of Agriculture, explains that there is a Multiflora Rose Management Law in the state. Although it is legal to buy, sell, plant or keep the bush; such actions can not interfere with or threaten production agriculture.

If a farmer wants to get rid of a multiflora rose, he can use appropriate control methods or he can make a request through the county weed control coordinator to participate in a joint state/county run spraying service, explains Crook. The infestation will be sprayed and the farmer will be billed for the service.

Multiflora rose is most prolific in pastures, woodlands and wastelands. Cultivated land has less of a problem since cultivation usually kills the roots. Good pasture management helps slow the spread by maintaining a strong, competitive stand of forage, says Ritter.

Mowing pastures several times a year will help prevent seedlings from becoming established. However, this is often not feasible in rough, wooded land where the plant is most likely to be a problem.

Burning the bushes will temporarily remove foliage but does not prevent regrowth from the crowns.

Chemical treatment has proved to be the only method to effectively and economically kill multiflora rose completely, says Ritter. Current treatment methods include liquid foliar sprayings and dormant applications, such as spot concentrate and lo-oil basal bark.

Regardless of the treatment program, persistence is a must for complete control. Reinfestation can occur from seeds already in the soil or brought in from nearby areas. Treated areas need to be checked several times the first year and twice annually in following years.

"One treatment is not going to completely eliminate an infestation of multiflora rose," notes Crook. "Birds eat and distribute the seeds. You've got to keep after it every year."

The winter months offer farmers an excellent opportunity to begin an organized treatment program, says Dennis Williamson, product development field manager for Velsicol Chemical Corporation. The chemical corporation recently conducted a survey of selected county agents in Maryland, and 50 percent of those agents indicated that the increasing spread of multiflora rose is a serious problem.

Dormant treatments often provide the best results and offer several advantages, such as, farmers are less pressured and have more time to treat bushes during the winter months, herbicide can be easily applied to the plant crowns where it is most effective and control is more consistent.

Williamson recommends dormant applications in late winter or early spring, usually between January and April. Do not apply treatment while snow or water covers the ground as they will prevent direct herbicide to soil contact, resulting in little or no control, he cautions.

Spot concentrate treatment is ideal for controlling scattered, dormant rose bushes and for yearly maintenance kills. Application is easy, says Velsicol's Williamson. Undiluted Banvel herbicide is applied directly using a metered spray gun that attaches to the chemical's container. Spray it directly on the soil, six to eight inches around the plant crown. Apply herbicide uphill from the crown on sloping terrain. Use one-fourth ounce for bushes with a five-foot canopy diameter, one ounce for a 10-foot canopy and two and one-fourth ounces for a 15-foot canopy. Translocation of Banvel through the root system ensures a complete kill.

A lo-oil basal bark application may be more desirable for dormant treatments of dense infestations, as in a hedgerow, notes Williamson. Accurate, thorough application is the key to good control. Use a conventional low-pressure sprayer with a single, direct-spray nozzle. For each gallon of solution, mix 100 ounces of water, one-half ounce of emulsifier, eight ounces of Banvel herbicide and 20 ounces of Number Two diesel fuel. Spray the lower basal stem region to a height of 12 to 18 inches. Drench all stems to the point of run-off. Pay special attention to ensure that the plant crown is covered.

Use liquid foliar treatment while plants are actively growing. Applications should be made early to mid-summer, says Williamson. A number of herbicides are available. Follow rate and application directions according to the label. Banvel's label, for example, recommends a one percent solution. Mix one gallon of herbicide with 99 gallons of water. Wet the stems, leaves and crown thoroughly until run-off. Defoliation of treated bushes occurs within a few weeks. Later in the season, treat bushes initially missed or previously treated bushes having regrowth.

An illustrated brochure called "Control of Multiflora Rose" details application methods and rates. It is available free by writing to Velsicol Chemical Corporation, 341 E. Ohio Street, Chicago, Illinois, 60611.

Mt. Top Saddle Club Membership Meeting Planned

The 1986 officers and directors of the Mt. Top Saddle Club, Inc., invite interested persons to the February 25 membership meeting at Garrett Community College.

Officers Brenda Ackerman, president; Marvin Miller, vice president; Paul Harmon, treasurer; Beverly Miller, secretary; and directors Jake Wilt, Sandra Savage, and Mike VanSickle are open to suggestions about the upcoming year's show bill, and the 7 p.m. meeting will be used to discuss any changes that should be made in the 1986 horse show schedule.

For more information about the show season or obtaining membership, persons may call Sandra Savage at 387-4550.

Cattle Totals Down

All cattle and calves in Maryland on January 1, were estimated at 370,000 head, down five percent from last year, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. The number of all cows that calved during 1985, at 195,000, decreased two percent compared to the previous year. The number of beef cows in the state, at 71,000 head, decreased 10 percent from a year ago, while dairy cow numbers, at 124,000 increased two percent.

Cattle on farms on January 1 in Maryland were valued at $214.6 million, down three percent from a year ago. The average value per head, at $580, increased two percent compared to last year. The number of farm operations in Maryland with milk cows decreased four percent from a year ago, while the number of farms having any cattle during the year remained unchanged at 8,100.

The 1985 calf crop in the state was estimated at 175,000 head, down three percent from 1984's calf crop.

All cattle and calves in the United States as of January 1 totaled 105 million head, down four percent from the 110 million on January 1, 1985, and down seven percent compared to two years ago. This continued the recent downward trend in cattle inventories for the fourth consecutive year and was the lowest number on hand since 1963. Nationwide, beef cows are down five percent compared to last year and inventory numbers, at 33.6 million, are the lowest since 1966. Milk cows, at 11.2 million head, are up three percent from last year and are the highest since 1975.

Cattle on farms on January 1 were valued at $41.3 billion, down six percent compared to last year. The average value per head on hand January 1, at $391 was down three percent from a year ago. The number of cattle operations in the United States decreased three percent compared to last year, while the number of farms with milk cows decreased four percent.

The 1985 calf crop is estimated at 41.0 million, down three percent from 1984, down seven percent from 1983, and at the lowest level since 1961.

The average dairy cow produces 5,900 quarts of milk per year; about 30,000 in a lifetime.

Cows Need Dedication And Care To Become Efficient Milk Factories

by Sheila Bender
Maryland Dairy Princess

We often hear about the benefits of milk and other dairy products, but rarely do we hear about the complete milk story, and the many area farmers who care for those efficient milk factories—dairy cows.

Since 1850 milk production methods have rapidly changed. Most milk had to be produced within a few miles of where it was consumed because of the lack of transportation and refrigeration. With the growth of rural to urban living came many improvements: sanitation regulations, pasteurizing and bottling plants for fluid milk, modern milking equipment and much, much more.

The diet of the cow is a very important factor in milk production. Obviously much of what the cow eats is not considered edible by humans. Her ability to convert this coarse feed into human food makes her one of the most efficient protein converters in the animal world. The cow's unique stomach with four compartments helps her accomplish this feat.

Swallowed grass goes directly to the rumen where microorganisms break it down and combine B vitamins and amino acids. In the reticulum, the food mass is formed into cuds. These are ejected into the mouth and chewed further to break up the fibrous material.

Once the cud is returned to the rumen, microorganisms convert most of the food material to fatty acids. These are absorbed into the cows bloodstream, and used to maintain her body and to make milk.

The remaining fine material and fluid enter the omasum, where excess water is poured out. The true stomach is the abomasum, where chemical digestion begins with the secretion of gastric juices and acid. The material goes to the intestine for further digestion and absorption of nutrients by the bloodstream for transport to the udder.

The udder is divided into halves, each of which consists of fore or hind quarters. It is in the quarters that tiny cells in clusters called aveoli, secrete milk. It flows from contracting aveoli through a series of ducts in the udder.

Now the actual "milking" takes place—the cow is fitted with the milking machine which consists of rubber cups inside shells with suction provided by pulsating vacuum. This procedure is completed in about three to five minutes. The milk is then held in the refrigerated farm tank for pick up.

The success of this milk story wouldn't be possible if there wasn't a concerned and dedicated dairy farmer behind it. Gordon and Darwin Bender are an excellent example of this kind of dairy farmer. These two brothers are the owners of Maryland Bearcreek Farm, a 200 acre dairy farm. The Benders are milking approximately 90 cows, where 75 percent or more are registered Holstein cattle.

The Benders start milking in their milking parlor, which has 12 units, at five in the morning and four in the evening. They feed their cattle hay, grain, and corn silage.

When asked if he buys REAL dairy products, Gordon replied, "Yes, I feel milk is important for young and old alike, because the calcium in milk is essential for healthy bones." Darwin also added that consumers "should drink lots of milk!"

With dairy farmers like Gordon and Darwin, we can be assured that Garrett County and Maryland can rely on quality dairy farmers and their products.

Larger Dairy Farms Show More Financial Stress

An analysis of the production and financial relationships of large non-diversion dairy farms in 1984 showed increased financial stress as a result of larger cash farm expenses, stated Dr. John W. Wysong of the University of Maryland. Net return on total investment averaged seven percent on the farms with 100-199 cows but declined to an average of four percent on the farms with 200 or more cows. This decreased net return per dollar of investment capital occurred even though average investment per cow was lower on the farms with 200 or more cows. Generally, farms with larger cow herds have reduced investments per cow in buildings and equipment.

The advantages of large farms in the Northeast from a production point of view are reflected in higher average pounds of milk sold per worker equivalent.

Farms with fewer than 40 cows (33 cow average) had 292 thousand pounds of milk sold per worker which reflected 19 cows per worker and over 15,000 pounds of milk per cow, reported Wysong.

As average cow numbers increased to 58 (40 to 79 cow group), cows per man increased to 24, but production decreased to about 14,700 pounds per cow. However, Wysong noted that milk sold per man increased to an average of nearly 355 thousand pounds.

The dairy farms with 80-99 cows averaged 90 milking animals with nearly 15,700 pounds of milk sold per cow and 31 cows handled per man. These farms used nearly three full-time man-equivalents per farm to produce 1.4 million pounds of milk per year.

Labor efficiency did not increase above this 90 cow level until herd size reached 200 or more cows. With an average of nearly 3.3 million pounds of milk sold per farm, these larger farms averaged 529 thousand pounds of milk per worker from 38 cows per man producing nearly 14,000 pounds of milk per cow. These large farms used an average of 6.2 full-time man-equivalents during the year. Asset values averaged nearly $944,000 per farm.

The value of milk production per worker tended to increase as size of milk cow herds increased. The smallest group of herds, those with under 40 cows, averaged over $39 thousand of milk sold per worker.

As the size of herds increased, the average value of milk increased to over $48 thousand per full-time worker on the 90 cow farms.

The gross value of milk sold per worker increased an average of only $1,000 per worker per year on the largest group of Northeastern dairy farms with 234 cows per farm.

"Therefore," said Wysong, "one may conclude that on these commercial crop-dairy farms in the Northeast the major labor efficiency and resource productivity gains were realized by farms with 90 to 100 milk cows." He went on to say that doubling herd size to 200 or more cows generally will increase total farm profitability and total returns to management even though net returns per cow and per man decline.

Labor cost per cow and per dollar of operating expenses will generally rise as size of herd increases. On these Northeastern dairy farms, the labor cost per dollar of operating expenses rose from nine percent to 20 percent as average size of herd increased from 33 to 234 cows, and increased wages and benefits were provided for a larger number of more competent dairy farm employees, reported Wysong.

Supercomputer Being Used For Farm Decisions

The blazing speed and huge memory of the University of Illinois' supercomputer soon could help farmers make money and bureaucrats make farm policy.

Bob Taylor, an agricultural economist at the university, believes the school's new $11 million Cray X-MP will allow him to add more factors to his computer models of the farm economy, and come up with faster, more accurate results.

Taylor is among researchers from around the country in virtually every field who will be permitted to use the Cray at the new National Center for Supercomputing Applications.

"Speed is part of the advantage, but memory is important, too, there will be a tremendous amount of numbers coming out of this," he said. "And its graphics capability will give us a nice picture, which is better than looking at the results in reams of printouts.

The first phase of Taylor's work is a computer model that will show the effects that various federal farm policies could have on things like farm income, supply and demand, exports and food prices.

"Society should benefit if policymakers have better information on which to base their decisions," he said. "It also allows farmers to see how various policies will affect them."

For the first time, because of the capacity of the supercomputer, the impact of policies can be broken down into 11 regions of the country and the probabilities of various effects can be measured, Taylor said.

The program also could predict the impact of withdrawing a particular pesticide, using newer machinery or better seed, changing the value of the U.S. dollar, or putting cropland into a conservation reserve, he said.

In addition to analyzing eight major crops, it also can be used to estimate effects of various factors on meat producers, added Taylor.

Taylor, whose work is partly financed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, has been using a computer model since 1976. But the supercomputer is needed for these refinements because "there are literally hundreds of equations in this model," he said.

According to Taylor, this new computer model should be ready for use by researchers and by USDA officials later this year.

His other project is a computer model that will help farmers make important decisions: when to sell grain, buy land or replace machinery, for example.

Taylor said it will consider a number of facts about a farmer's business, yields, amount of storage, tax status, as it helps him determine "what is the best decision to make now" to reach a particular goal.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND MENTAL HYGIENE
OFFICE OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROGRAMS
Public Hearing on an Application for a State Discharge Permit.
PUBLIC NOTICE NO.:
MD 2246
ISSUE DATE:
February 20, 1986

The Office of Environmental Programs (OEP) has made a tentative determination on an application for a State Discharge Permit listed below and has scheduled a public hearing as indicated. Persons who wish to present information about this tentative determination may speak at the hearing and/or submit a written statement to the Office of Environmental Programs no later than five days following the hearing. All comments will be considered in OEP's final decision concerning this application.

Any person who feels adversely affected by the following tentative determination and wishes to contest the determination may request that contested issues be adjudicated. Each request must be in writing to the address given below, must contain the name, address, telephone number of the requesting person; the specific rights, duties or privileges of the individual which are adversely affected by the tentative decision, the name of the other party whom the requester represents, the issues proposed for adjudication, and must be received by OEP before March 4, 1986. The Assistant Secretary for Environmental Programs will decide whether a request presents valid issues for adjudication, notify all parties of his decision, and may schedule a pre-hearing conference.

Significantly altered determinations would initiate further opportunity for adjudication.

All information concerning permit applications and tentative determinations is on file at the Office of Environmental Programs (201 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201) and may be inspected Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Facilities for obtaining copies at a reasonable cost will be available.

Written requests for information or adjudication may be addressed to Mr. Ronald Nelson, Director, Waste Management Administration for Industrial Discharge Permits. Telephone requests should be made to Ms. Gail Castleman at (301) 225-5649.

The Department will provide an interpreter for the deaf or hearing impaired persons provided that a timely request is made for such service.

A public hearing on the following tentative decision will be held:

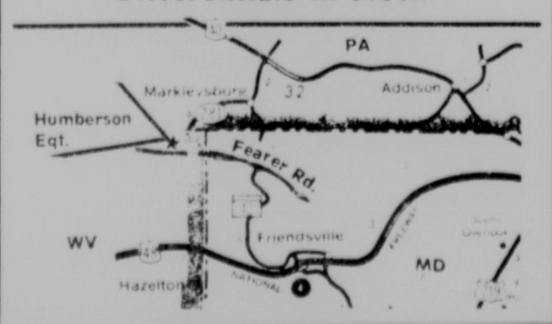
Reliable Feeding
Both the Model RD-820 ring-drive unloader and Model 988 surface-drive unloader feature a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage to deliver a steady flow of silage day after day
- Spring-tensioned power cutter keeps silo walls free of silage buildup.
- Adjustable depth-of-cut control makes feeding truly automatic.



Trade-ins accepted. See us today for details.

Shari Copeland, Darren Hinebaugh Exchange Vows In August Ceremony

Shari Copeland and Darren Hinebaugh exchanged vows on Saturday, August 3, at St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Oakland.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Copeland, Oakland. The groom is the son of Mrs. Freda Hinebaugh also of Oakland, and the late Earl Hinebaugh.

The Rev. Allen Ridenour officiated at the ceremony, which preceded a reception at Whitacre's Dance Hall.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of bridal satin and Chantilly lace. The off the-shoulder neckline was accented with a Chantilly lace ruffle, fitted at the bodice and ball gown sleeves enhanced with satin bows. The skirt swept to a chapel train beneath tiers of Chantilly lace ruffle with a satin overlay peaked with satin ribbons.

She carried a white lace cascade bouquet of silk blue and white roses and baby's breath.

Her honor attendant, Ms. Robin Friend, wore a lavender dress of Swiss dotted fabric with fitted waist and sleeves. The front of the gown was open to reveal a purple netting with a purple petticoat underneath.

The bridesmaids, Melissa Copeland, the bride's sister, and Stacey Hinebaugh, niece of the groom, wore Swiss dotted A-line dresses. Melissa choose a pastel blue and Stacey, a pastel pink. Each carried a white lace cascade with roses and daisies with baby's breath to coordinate with their individual gowns.

The flowers were all made by the bride, the bride's mother, Charlene and Dora Shahan, cousin of the bride.

Heather Shahan, cousin of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a Swiss dotted tea-length dress with fitted waist and sleeves. She carried a white basket with pink roses and greens.

Rusty Rounds served as best man and Robert Shahan and Phil Hinebaugh were ushers. Doug Copeland Jr., brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

The groom was attired in all white, while the best man and ushers wore white with cummerbunds and ties to match the girl's gowns.

The couple now resides in Mtn. Lake Park.

Miss Scales Becomes Bride Of Mr. Rostosky In December Event

Sherry Elise Scales became the bride of Michael John Rostosky, December 21, during a double-ring ceremony at the First Baptist Church in Columbus, Ga.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Scales, Greensboro, N.C. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Rostosky, Mountain Lake Park.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a full-length gown of white satin, featuring a French lace bodice. She carried a bouquet of red tulips, white dendrabria orchids and Christmas greenery.

Matron of honor was Terisa Laine Scales of Louisville, Ky., sister of the bride.

Bridesmaids were Laurie Rostosky, Morgantown, W.Va., and Barbara Rostosky of Blacksburg, Va., sisters of the groom.

Serving as groomsmen were Asher Pet, Dave Ellis, and Steve Morgan, all of Columbus, Ga.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Bludau's Restaurant in Columbus.

The bride is a graduate of Mars Hill College, North Carolina, with a bachelor of music degree in piano performance, and Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, where she earned a master's degree in church music.

The groom is a 1976 graduate of Southern High School. He is also a graduate of West Virginia University's School of Engineering with a degree in mechanical engineering and C'emson University where he received a master's degree in robotics.

Following a two-week honeymoon in Europe, the couple now resides in Columbus, where Michael is project supervisor at Pratt and Whitney, and Sherry is associate minister of music at First Baptist Church.

SUN ON THE SNOW, and a chill in the air—sounds poetic, but for those who must work outdoors, winter weather makes all those routine jobs just a little more difficult. Any farmer will agree that spreading manure in the winter is no joy. In a strong wind the driver has two options—face into the wind, or get splattered in the back. And if the tractor and spreader get hung up in deep snow, it means getting them out somehow or ending up with a frozen load of unpleasantness until the spring thaw.

Chestnut Ridge Gulf Attendant Robbed Sunday

State Police continue the investigation of an armed robbery which occurred Sunday at Chestnut Ridge Gulf service station, just east of the Holiday Inn, Grantsville.

According to police, the robbery occurred at 3:40 p.m., when a person armed with a small caliber handgun entered the establishment.

A 57-year-old attendant was on duty at the time. He reported to police that the suspect sat down at a desk and ate a bag of potato chips and drank a soda.

When the attendant returned from the gas pumps outside, the suspect pulled out a gun and demanded money from the cash register, according to Cpl. Michael Mattingly.

Upon receiving the money, the suspect locked the attendant in the men's room and propped a chair against the door. The suspect then fled the station. Police believe someone was waiting nearby in a car.

Approximately 10 minutes after the robbery, the attendant was assisted by other customers.

Police described the suspect to be about five feet, seven inches tall, weighing 150 pounds, with medium-length light brown hair. He was last seen wearing tan clothes.

Mattingly reported that police are hopeful that anyone who pulled up during the time the suspect was still at the station will contact them with any information they might have.

GCC Communication Breakdown To Be Discussed In Annapolis

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners, the Garrett Community College Board of Trustees, GCC interim president, Dr. David A. Puzzuoli; the State Board for Community Colleges and its director, Dr. James Tschechetelin, Senator John N. Bambacus and Delegate George C. Edwards have all been invited to a meeting in Annapolis next Wednesday for a discussion about GCC communication problems with the governor's executive assistant for education, Sheila M. Tolliver.

In a letter to Commissioner John G. Braskey, Tolliver stated, "While my geographic distance surely separates me from an insider's view of the college's operation and management, it also affords me, I think, a degree of objectivity."

She then cited what she felt to be three evident facts: 1. Garrett County's citizens treasure the community college as a resource and want it to prosper, 2. There has been considerable debate about the college's operation, management, community relations and the roles of various bodies in these matters, and 3. There are many organizations and individuals who have an interest in the college and a role to play in its future.

Tolliver stated that because the college is an important resource, she thought it would be useful for the various groups involved in managing, governing, funding and policymaking to meet "informally" together to discuss their roles with respect to the college and to consider a process for improving communications among the interested groups

The executive assistant said the meeting would be limited to a discussion of roles and process and would not be a forum for debate of specific management decisions. She requested that the public and the press not be invited and said that her role in the meeting would be that of facilitator.

"The purpose is to come to common understanding about the responsibilities and roles of the participants, the kinds of information necessary to fulfill those roles," Tolliver stated.

In her letter, Toliver noted that she had spoken to a representative of every faction invited to the meeting and that each one stated that a communication process could "be fruitful."

At a press conference Tuesday, the commissioners stated that they would be attending the meeting at the James Senate Office Building next week from 1 - 2:30 p.m.

They said they had a "great interest in the situation at Garrett" but declined further comment pending the outcome of the Annapolis meeting.

Controversy began at the college last year when the Vet Tech program was cut and three instructors' contracts were not renewed. Students and faculty protested the administration's decision. Several faculty members resigned as a result of those actions. Other problems surfaced following

DNR Officials, Local Yough Reps Hold Meeting

An unofficial, informal get-together was held at the Will O' the Wisp Saturday evening to give members of the newly appointed Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board an opportunity to meet Department of Natural Resources officials.

State officials present at the get-together were DNR Secretary Dr. Torrey C. Brown and DNR Planner and Local Representative Hugh Trimble. Garrett County Commissioners Elwood L. Groves II and Ernest Gregg represented local government.

The affair was attended by six members of the Yough River Local Advisory Board. They were Commissioner Groves, who represents the local governing body; John E. Hinebaugh and Shaun Sanders, who are members from the county Soil Conservation District; Hazel Duvall and Donald P. Sebold, who are land owners contiguous to the portion of the river designated as a wild river; and Brison Thomas, who owns land that is not contiguous to the scenic or wild river.

According to Hinebaugh, there is no definite feeling of cooperation between members of this group. "I sincerely believe that the new board and the DNR are going to work together well," he said. He went on to say that in recent months the DNR has indicated that they want to work with the Yough residents and to strive to do right for all concerned.

A date for the first official meeting of the Local Advisory Board has tentatively been set for March 13.

Plans Finalized For Winterfest

Plans have been finalized for the 13th annual Winterfest celebration, to be held March 14-16 at the Wisp Ski Resort, McHenry.

Winterfest, which is sponsored by the Deep Creek Lake Lions Club, the Wisp Resort, and Coors Brewery through Lohr Distributors, Oakland, marks the "official" end of the downhill ski season in Garrett County and offers a variety of activities for participants and spectators.

The first event will be the scholastic ski race on Friday, March 14, beginning at 1 p.m., which will feature individual and team competition by area high school and middle school students. Registration will be from 10 a.m. to race time and the event is being coordinated by the Wisp Ski Club.

The Winterfest Kickoff Party will be held that evening at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake, beginning at 6:30 p.m. Persons may contact Ernie Metz at 387-9138 for ticket information.

Registration will get underway at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 15, for the Winterfest XIII Slalom Race, which will begin at 10:30 a.m.

Open sleigh rides and pony rides will begin at 11 a.m., as will a variety of "fun" ski races, including such events as the three-legged race and inner tube race. These "fun" races will conclude with the annual Yakapah Garbola Parade, in which all skiers are welcome to participate, in costume.

An outdoor volleyball tournament will begin at noon, followed by the team tug of war at 1 p.m., for which registration begins at 11 a.m.

Also beginning at 1 p.m. are the wrist wrestling contest and horseshoe pitching competition.

An awards presentation will be held at 5 p.m., followed by fireworks and a torchlight parade down The Face of Marsh Mountain at 8 p.m.

Capping the day's events will be Las Vegas Nite, from 9 p.m. to midnight at the McHenry House, Wisp.

"Fun" ski races will resume at 10 a.m. on Sunday, March 16, as will open sleigh rides at 11.

There will be the annual Firemen's Slalom Race at noon, where volunteer fire departments enter five-man teams which are required to carry a 50-foot section of hose through a race course. Participants must be dressed in full turnout gear.

There will be a bubble gum blowing contest at 1 p.m. for persons age six to 12, and the Wisp Mountain Endurance Run will also begin at 1 p.m.

The annual Snowmobile Hill Climb, where operators attempt to maneuver their snowmobiles up The Face, will begin at 2 p.m. Awards, including trophies donated by Rob Michael Insurance Agency, are presented for distance and time. Registration will be from 10 a.m. to noon.

A final awards presentation will be held at 4 p.m. to conclude the celebration.

Providing entertainment on Saturday and Sunday will be the instrumental/vocal group, Southpaw.

Admission to Winterfest will be $2.50 for adults and children under 12 are admitted free. All proceeds go toward the Lions Club's community projects, local charities, and the Lions' Blind Skiers Program.

Persons may obtain more information about Winterfest from the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council; telephone 334-1948.

Local Juvenile Sustains Gunshot Wound To Foot

A 17-year-old juvenile was injured Sunday afternoon when he sustained an accidental gunshot wound to the foot.

The accident reportedly occurred around 2:15 p.m. on "Doc" Tolson Road near Loch Lynn.

According to Detective R.A. Kutchman, the youth was target shooting with a .22 caliber magnum rifle behind his house when the rifle jammed.

The youth then pointed the muzzle down in an attempt to eject the shell, which then discharged, striking him in the foot.

He was transported to the Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad.

Frostburg Man "Serious" After Crane Mishap

A Frostburg man was listed in "serious" condition this morning in the Intensive Care Unit at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, following an equipment accident which occurred yesterday afternoon in the Swanton area.

Kenneth Landis, 36, sustained back and abdominal injuries when a crane boom he was helping to dismantle fell, pinning him underneath.

State Police at McHenry said Landis was one of four men who were sent to the Swanton area to dismantle a Chessie System boom for transport to Keyser, W.Va.

Police said another worker, Michael C. Raupach, 25, of Export, Pa., apparently sustained minor injuries, but refused to be transported to the hospital.

The heavier portion of the boom pinned Landis, police said, and a truck with a second boom was used to lift the equipment and free Landis.

He was transported to the hospital by State Police Medevac helicopter, where he underwent surgery and was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit.

W.Va. Youth To Serve Six-Month Jail Sentence

An 18-year-old Hazelton, W.Va., resident will serve a total of six months in the Garrett County Jail as a result of a hearing held last week in Garrett County District Court.

Lyndon L. Friend was found to be guilty of two counts of assault in an earlier trial, and a pre-sentence investigation had been ordered.

After reading the pre-sentence investigation report, Judge Jack Turney sentenced Friend to 18 months for each count. He then suspended 12 months of each sentence, placing Friend on 24 months supervised probation for each count. The two sentences will run concurrently.

The charges were made by Tfc. Ronald C. Georg, Maryland State Police, following a June 16 incident.

According to court documents, Friend intentionally swerved a vehicle he was operating into the path of a vehicle driven by Tfc. R.J. Resh. Resh then drove his vehicle off the road to avoid a collision.

Approximately a minute later, Friend swerved his vehicle into the path of a vehicle operated by Georg. According to Georg, Friend was attempting to avoid apprehension, and both police cars were marked.

Friend was represented by Lawrence V. Kelly, a Cumberland attorney.

In other court cases, the judge found Jody L. Wilburn, 19, Accident, to be guilty of falsely reporting a crime.

She was sentenced to 89 days in the Garrett County Jail. The judge then suspended the sentence, placing her on 18 months unsupervised probation.

Wilburn pled guilty to the charge, which was filed by Sgt. Robert E. Friend, Maryland State Police, following a January 6 incident in Accident.

According to court documents, Wilburn reported to the police that her son had been kidnapped. However, investigation revealed that the child was actually in a vehicle parked in Accident.

The judge ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Thomas E. Campbell, 23, Uniontown, Pa., after he found him to be guilty of charges of theft and malicious destruction of the property of another.

Campbell pled guilty to the charges, which were filed by Cpl. Michael R. Mattingly following a March 3 incident at Mike's Service Station, Friendsville.

A breaking and stealing charge was not prosecuted by the court.

Campbell was represented by Henry R. Adams.

Placed on the stet docket was a case involving charges of assault and malicious des-

Condo, Townhouse Project Opens At McHenry Cove

Paul Cain, George McShane and William Hanley, principals of Modular Construction Corp., a Pittsburgh based company, are announcing the opening of the Ski Cove condominium townhouse project located along Deep Creek Drive across from the Wisp Ski area at the northern most part of Deep Creek Lake in McHenry. Modular is the developer of this project.

Although Modular has only been active for ten months, the principals report that "they have extensive experience" in housing and commercial developments in the Pittsburgh area.

Cain, president of Modular, was formerly area director for the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. McShane has been involved in housing and commercial developments as well, and is also principal of McShane Real Estate and Insurance of Munhall, Pa. Hanley is the former owner of an insurance company and is also active in numerous commercial developments.

Approval of the condominium development has been received from the state of Maryland and the project will contain 14 townhouse condominium units, a tennis court and club house facility. Sandy Stevenson, of Modular, is project coordinator for the construction of these units. One unit is ready for showing and the anticipated date for completion of the project is the beginning of April of this year.

Mtn. Lake Park House Threatened By Auto Blaze

An electrical short in an automobile was determined to be the cause of a fire Friday morning which destroyed the vehicle and seriously threatened the garage in which it was parked, as well as the adjoining house.

Oakland and Deer Park firefighters were called at 9:46 a.m. to the residence of Rob and Barbara Michael, 1404 Pittsburgh Avenue, Mtn. Lake Park, after Mrs. Michael was awakened by the smell of smoke. When she opened the door from the house into the garage, she found the garage full of smoke, according to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett and Allegany counties. She called 911 and then took the couple's infant son and left the house.

Oakland firemen who were first on the scene managed to push the burning car out of the garage and prevent any fire damage to the garage or house. Some smoke did filter into the house and firemen used smoke

Commissioners Hear Reports Of County Staffers

Garrett County agency heads met with the Board of Garrett County Commissioners Tuesday morning to give their monthly reports to the county officials.

GCC

Dr. Nancy Priselac, the newly appointed dean of student affairs at Garrett Community College, was introduced to the commissioners and reported on various student activities at the college.

She noted that most of the activities were student initiated and recognized the students for their "use, not abuse" of the student learning center.

The dean said the students were presently constructing a trophy case and added that they are involved in many fundraisers.

Dr. Priselac said she is continually seeking quality programs for the students and welcomed input from the various county heads and the community at-large to help structure a better college.

John Culp, GCC comptroller, informed the commissioners that the accreditation team from the State Board for Higher Education had arrived Sunday evening and would be departing Wednesday morning.

Culp said the five-member accreditation team would be looking at three major areas at the college, academic affairs, facilities and finances.

The comptroller also told the county heads that the college would be experiencing its toughest cash period the end of February. He said they would have to take a short-term loan but the money would be paid back within a month when they received their state funds in March.

Culp noted that the college was presently three and one-half percent below the even spending budget. He credited interim president, Dr. David A. Puzzuoli, for the spending trends and said he was "keeping tighter reins" on spending patterns.

The GCC representatives announced that an intersession semester would be held at the college from May 19 to June 13. The summer semester begins June 16.

Dr. Priselac said the intersession was a new concept and stated that several West Virginia University students

Owner, Firemen Save Barn Plus Herd Of Calves

Quick action by a local resident and Grantsville firefighters resulted in the saving of a barn and a herd of veal calves yesterday afternoon at a farm along Tice Road near Grantsville.

Firemen were called to the residence of Dan and Ann Tice after Mrs. Tice discovered fire in the barn at about 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to a spokesman for the Grantsville VFD, Mrs. Tice was successful in removing a herd of veal calves from the barn and firemen were successful in confining the blaze to a 12-by-16-foot section of the structure. The spokesman said this section of the barn will need to be replaced, however the remainder of the structure was unharmed and there were no animals lost.

A heat lamp being used in the vicinity of the calves is believed to be the source of the blaze, possibly igniting sawdust, wood, or hay.

Firefighters remained on the scene for about one hour. Also summoned were the Bittinger VFD, which was returned to its station before arrival, and the Northern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Tice Road is located just off Maple Grove Road.

Arrest, Ski Theft Reported By Police

An arrest and a ski theft were reported this week by the Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment.

Galen E. Resh, 40, Accident, was arrested last week on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

According to police, Resh allegedly pointed a handgun at the victim, Francis E. Resh, also of Accident, and threatened to kill him. He also threatened the victim with a knife and a rifle.

Tfc. David W. Broadwater investigated a ski theft which was reported at the Wisp ski area last Tuesday.

According to police reports, Thomas G. Johnson, Oakland, a Wisp Ski Patrol member, left his skis on the porch of the Ski Patrol Lodge. When he returned outside, the skis were gone.

Stolen items included one pair of Authier Gold Star skis, maroon with gold lettering; one set of red and white Marker Rotomat bindings, and one set of black Reflex ski poles. Total loss reached $340.

SKIERS BOOST HEART ASSOCIATION — The first annual Ski for Heart was held last Thursday evening at the Wisp Ski Resort, McHenry, and resulted in a donation of $803 to the Western Maryland Division of the American Heart Association. Although the overall goal of the event was to ski a total of one million vertical feet was not reached, partially because of poor weather conditions, the participants did record 588,650 vertical feet. Among the participants were, left to right, front row, Suzanne Mosser; Matthew Schafer, third highest money raiser; Diane Valenti, second highest money raiser; and Heather Savage, top money raiser. In the second row, same order, are Dick Rowles II, coordinator of the event; Eugene Kight, Bruce Sweeney, Jeff Law, Bart Simpson, and Anton Cramer. Individual prizes, donated by Rudy's Ski Shop, were awarded according to pledges. Rowles stated that, even though the goal of one million vertical feet skied was not reached, the event was "a success" and plans are underway for "a bigger and better event" next year. Persons interested in helping to coordinate the 1987 event are asked to contact the Western Maryland Heart Office at 724-4011.

Victims' Rights Gain Approval In Maryland Senate

Legislation to establish a crime victims "bill of rights" and other measures endorsed by the Stephanie Roper Committee gained overwhelming approval in the state Senate Friday.

The four bills, co-sponsored by Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) and Senator Thomas V. Mike Miller (D-P.G. Co.), now go to the House Judiciary Committee, where similar legislation has been rejected in recent years.

The Roper committee was founded by Roberta Roper, the mother of a Frostburg state co-ed who was brutually murdered four years ago. Roper was a member of the governor's task force that proposed the victims' rights bills. Sen. Bambacus said he continues to be impressed by the initiative and perseverance of the Roper Committee. "While we all acknowledge that the constitutional rights of defendants should be granted," he noted, "we must also be cognizant of the needs of innocent victims to be treated fairly."

To this end, the senator worded closely with members of the statewide Roper Committee as well as local chapter representative, Barbie Dezen.

Sen. Miller stated that the bills are very responsible pieces of legislation and the culmination of a lot of effort, and he believes they stand a good chance in the House committee this year.

The four Roper bills passed by the Senate plus a related piece of legislation, SB-314, are as follows:

SB-311, "Victim or Representative's Right to Address the Sentencing Judge or Jury." This bill would permit crime victims or their designated representatives, when a victim's impact statement is required, to address the sentencing judge or jury before a sentence is imposed. It would also permit the judge to disallow oral presentations under certain circumstances, allow limited cross-examination by a defendant, and prohibit the coersion of victims. It would also specify that the use or failure to use provisions of the act would not be grounds for an appeal or for a court to vacate, reverse or remand a sentence.

SB-312, "Life Sentencing, Jury Instructions, Truth in Sentencing." This bill would prohibit a judge from instructing a jury to assume that a life sentence is for the natural life of the defendant when a life sentence is considered. It would also otherwise address jury instructions for defendants with possible life sentences.

SB-313, "Death Penalty—Aggravating Circumstances." This measure would clarify that the term "law enforcement officer" also means uniformed privately employed security officers or special policemen when the aggravating circumstances provision of the law is considered in a death penalty case.

SB-314, "Parole Commission—Consideration in Granting Parole." This bill, meanwhile, would prohibit a hearing examiner or member of the parole commission from considering the prison population when determining if an inmate is suitable for release on parole.

SB-479, "Bill of Rights for Victim of Crime." This bill would establish a bill of rights for crime victims and require that copies of the rights be sent to the state's attorney's offices, police departments and all state law enforcement offices and made available to victims of crime. The motion would also limit causes of action that an individual may bring against a state official or agency based on the rights.

Emergency Assistance

Another bill sponsored by Bambacus and Senator Leo Green (D-P.G.Co.) was killed recently by the Senate Judicial Proceedings Committee. The bill (SB-281), requiring a person at the scene of an emergency to help a victim or face a maximum $500 fine and six months imprisonment, was nicknamed the "Good Samaritan" bill.

It would have required an individual at the scene of an emergency to "give reasonable assistance" to another person. Under the bill, the "Good Samaritan" would be immune from any civil liability if, by chance, the aid turned out to be a hindrance.

Bill Katcef, of the State's Attorneys Association, told the panel that the bill could hamper lawyers' attempts to get witnesses to testify in a crime case.

Bambacus first introduced the bill three years ago following the rape of a Fairfax, Va., girl in which six other people stood by and did not report the incident. Each year the bill has been rejected by the Judicial Proceedings Committee.

Hazardous Materrials Clean-Up Legislation Introduced By Bambacus

District One Senator John N. Bambacus has introduced legislation designed to make carriers of hazardous materials liable for accidents involving those materials.

Speaking in Annapolis, Bambacus stated "Our local fire, ambulance and rescue squads volunteer their time and risk their lives to protect us, it isn't fair to expect them to bear the financial burden of cleaning up hazardous material spills."

Bambacus' actions were prompted by two recent local accidents involving potentially hazardous materials. SB-794 would require motor carriers to reimburse governmental units and volunteer squads for the expense of emergency response to an accident. Bambacus noted that these expenses include "police and fire departments, rescue squads, and emergency medical teams." Under present law, a carrier is not required to pay for emergency services.

He added that "Due to the dangerous and complicated procedures mandated by the federal government in handling hazardous materials, the cost to those in charge of cleaning up an accident scene involving those materials is much greater than other types of traffic accidents. It seems only fair that those who engage in the transportation of hazardous materials be responsible for the expense incurred in cleaning up any spills."

In addition to the clean-up bill, Sen. Bambacus has requested that the state appropriate funds to acquire a hazardous materials response vehicle. According to the senator, "Senate Bill 832 would allow the state to purchase an emergency vehicle properly equipped to handle accidents involving hazardous materials in Allegany and Garrett counties." Adding that the cost of this specialized equipment is quite high, Bambacus said that he "felt that the state, not the counties, should be responsible for purchasing and maintaining the vehicle."

SB-794 has been assigned to the Judicial Proceedings Committee, and SB-832 has been assigned to the Budget and Taxation Committee. Hearing dates have not yet been assigned.

Gov. Hughes Signs S&L Legislation

Governor Harry Hughes signed into law Friday a key part of his plan to pay back depositors of Old Court Savings and Loan without imposing an undue burden on taxpayers.

The measure, introduced by the governor and approved by the General Assembly, provides for the repayment of $100 million transferred to the Maryland Deposit Insurance Fund (MDIF) from the Transportation Trust Fund.

"This bill guarantees that funds advanced to pay back smaller depositors will be returned to the transportation fund," Governor Hughes said. "It is another demonstration that the state is honoring its commitment to protect depositors without endangering Maryland's fiscal stability."

The governor said the transfer will not have any affect on current or planned transportation projects.

In a related development, he applauded the action of the House of Delegates in approving his legislation providing for tighter state regulation of savings and loan associations. The changes were recommended to the governor by Special Counsel Wilbur D. Preston, who has been investigating the causes of the thrift crisis.

"This additional regulatory power is designed to ensure that we never have a repeat of the savings and loan crisis," the governor said.

The bill now goes to the state Senate for its consideration.

House Hears Plea For More Aid To Comm. Colleges

Yesterday the House Ways and Means Committee was urged to approve $3.3 million in supplemental funds for the state's 17 community colleges.

Garrett Community College would receive $42,500 of this money to pay for increased fixed costs such as insurance, equipment and maintenance.

The bill (HB-1552) was introduced by Del. Howard P. Rawlings (D-Balt.) who said a change in the basic funding formula has hurt the schools and even the "modest" $3.3 million proposal would not entirely bandage severe funding cuts expected at several schools including Garrett Community College.

Even with the supplemental money, a decrease in enrollment and formula change would mean that for budget year 1987 GCC would receive $130,404 less from the state than for fiscal year 1986.

State Board for Community Colleges Executive Director Dr. James D. Tschechtelin told the committee that the two-year schools have "worked hard to achieve a fusion of quality and opportunity in education but fixed costs, decreasing enrollment and fewer federal funds could force the colleges to increase tuition.

He said tuition must be kept at a reasonable level to maintain student access to an education. "Students are potentially in a double bind, with community colleges raising tuition . . . at the same time that there is a dramatic reduction in student financial aid from the federal government.

Tschechtelin said the state's community colleges charge tuitions which are already above the national average and that is "contrary to the mission of community colleges in making a college education available to all students who are motivated to learn."

Animals Are Represented In General Assembly

Three separate bills which concern animals have been introduced and reviewed by the Maryland Senate.

The Senate Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee reviewed SB-48, introduced by Senators James Clark Jr. (D-Mont. Co.) and Margaret C. Schweinhaut (D-Mont. Co.). This bill would require animal control agencies to dispose of unclaimed animals by the following means only: 1) placement for adoption in a suitable home; 2) retention by the shelter; or 3) humane destruction.

The bill makes it clear that agencies may not sell the animals but may charge new owners an adoption fee. This is to prevent agencies from selling unwanted animals for experimental purposes.

Last Friday the Senate voted in favor of this bill, using the city of Baltimore as an example. Baltimore sold 267 sheltered animals last year at $10 apiece for use in medical experiments. Senator Norman Stone (D-Balt. Co.) said the dogs and cats were used by Johns Hopkins and Sinai Hospitals, and the Veterans Administration. "I know the city wants every penny it can get. But I really believe we've got to draw the line in this case," he said.

Scientists told his committee that medical research would be hurt by a prohibition against using pound animals, but Stone said, "I don't think the committee put much stock in it."

Stone also remarked that "dognapping and catnapping" are more prevalent in states where the use of pound animals for research is permitted.

Another bill sponsored by Sen. Clark was heard by the same committee. SB-497 would prohibit a person, unless he was authorized by the proper authority, from selling a live exotic bird unless the bird was hatched and raised in captivity. Violators would be subject to all existing penalties.

Pet store owners pushed for defeat of the bill which is favored by animal rights activists and some bird fanciers. Those opposing the bill told the committee that the bill would make Maryland the smuggled bird capital of the world.

SB-604 was also heard by the Economic and Environmental Affairs Committee. Introduced by the Anne Arundel County Senators, the bill would establish a system of reimbursement to local health and animal control departments for the expenses incurred in the disposition of wildlife, including rabid animals. It would also provide certain duties for the Secretaries of Health and Mental Hygiene and Natural Resources to carry out.

According to the 1980 census, the population in Garrett County was 26,496.

How To Contact Legislators

Following are the home and Annapolis addresses and telephone numbers of local legislators serving during the 1896 General Assembly session. Also included is a listing of the standing committee assignment for each legislator.

Collect calls may be made to any senator or delegate by dialing toll-free 1-800-492-7122. When calling legislators through the toll-free number, callers should ask for the extension number (see list below) of the legislator.

Senate

Sen. John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany-Garrett), Room 406, James Senate Office Building, Annapolis 21401. Telephone the 800 number and ask for Extension 3565. Local office number: 689-4666. Home address, 61 Frost Avenue, Frostburg. Member of Senate Economic Environmental Affairs Committee.

House

Del. Geroge C. Edwards (R-Garrett-Allegany), Room 411, House Office Building, Annapolis 21401. Telephone the 800 number and ask for Extension 3435. Home address, Pennsylvania Avenue, Grantsville, 895-5720; Friendsville, 746-5831. Member of House Appropriations Committee.

The 1-800-492-7122 number also may be used to obtain the status of bills and resolutions. Callers must have a bill or resolution number when inquiring about legislation.

Legislature To Hear Several Local Bills This Week

Several local bills will be heard in the General Assembly in the next few days, and a final House vote was taken on another local bill this week.

Delegate George C. Edwards, who sponsored HB-685 to increase fees paid to Garrett County attorneys for services in connection with tax sales of property in the county, reported this week that the bill has passed its third reader in the House and is on its way to the Senate. The fees would be raised from $7.50, which has been the rate for many years, to $150.

Another of Del. Edwards' bills is being heard today. HB-1016 would permit officers of the Natural Resources Police or the Forest, Park and Wildlife Service to retire with 25 years of creditable service. It would establish the amount of the retirement allowance, provide disability and death benefits and allowances, and provide for the administration, management, and funding of these benefits.

Scheduled to be reviewed tomorrow is HB-609. Also introduced by Edwards, this bill would authorize the Garrett County Commissioners to designate and control the use of a county road as an emergency snow route and to provide a method of declaring a snow emergency. It would prohibit parking or abandoning a vehicle on a snow route during a snow emergency and authorize the removal of such a vehicle.

The black bear bills sponsored by Edwards and Sen. John Bambacus will be heard one week apart in the two houses. The Senate bill (SB-776) is being heard today, while HB-1614 will be reviewed next Thursday. The companion bills would provide penalties for a person who violates prohibitions regarding the hunting, possessing, selling, purchasing, shipping, carrying, transporting or exporting of black bears; specifying for first-time offenders a maximum fine of $5,000 or maximum imprisonment of six months, or both, and suspension of the hunting license for up to two years; and specifying for subsequent offenders a maximum fine of $5,000 or maximum imprisonment of one year, or both, and suspension of the hunting license for up to four years.

Sen. Bambacus Reports Effects Of Federal Cuts On Higher Education

Speaking before the American Association of University Professors, District One Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany, Garrett) reported that the "Gramm-Rudman spending cuts, along with the proposed cuts in the president's 1987 budget will be devastating to the higher education in Maryland."

Bambacus, who is also a professor of Political Science at Frostburg State College, said that "cuts in federal financial aid will be extensive. The reductions in subsidized loans and grant-in-aid programs will result in a loss of over 5,000 students currently in the system."

Among the proposed reductions in aid is a revised loan repayment plan that would require students to pay interest on their outstanding loan balance. The senator explained that "under current procedure, students pay no interest while in school and enjoy a low interest rate when they graduate, usually seven to nine percent. The Reagan plan would require interest payments while the student was still in school." These payments are based on the current Treasury Bill rate (presently around seven percent). Upon graduation, repayment would be at the Treasury Bill rate plus three points.

According to the senator, "the thrust of the president's plan is to increase the student and family contribution to the overall cost of higher education." Bambacus went on to say that "this proposal will cut funding to those students who need it most."

Senator Bambacus noted, "the theme throughout the Reagan Administration has been to shift the financial burden of social and educational programs from the federal government to the state government. As in the past, it is the responsibility of the state to pick up the slack when vital federal programs are slashed." The senator pointing out that Maryland suffers from "traditionally poor participation in financial aid at the state level, offered several suggestions for increased state involvement.

Among the Bambacus proposals were plans to develop a state loan program similiar to the present federal program deferring interest payments; increased efforts to attract private funding for higher education; and state tuition credit programs to encourage students to enter careers with traditionally lower salaries but very high need, such as teaching. Senator Bambacus explained that "loan programs often create a dilemma for students. Upon graduation, a student who is deeply in debt may be forced to choose a career based on high salary instead of interest or demand."

The District One Senator ended his remarks by calling on educators, parents and students to "take an active role in lobbying their representatives for increased aid for education. The success of our legislative system depends on input from concerned and informed citizens."

Third Union Lenten Service At St. Mark's

The third in a series of Wednesday evening Lenten services will be held at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland, on March 5. Beginning at 7:30 p.m. the service will feature the Rev. John Grant, of St. John's Episcopal Church, as guest preacher.

In keeping with the overall theme of Jesus' healing ministry, the Rev. Grant's sermon will be on the healing of the man born blind.

Organized by area church pastors, the annual Lenten series is part of a tradition begun a number of years ago. It brings to the attention of the various congregations special themes during Lent. Since the present theme concerns the healing miracles of Jesus, offering received during the services will be used for the Chaplaincy program at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Hospice of Garrett County.

The fourth service of the series will be held at Oak Park Church of the Brethren on Wednesday, March 12.

Deadline To File For Oakland Office Is Today

Today at 4 p.m. is the filing deadline for those wishing to be candidates in the Oakland municipal election on March 10, according to Town Clerk Linda Everd.

A mayor, three council members and a treasurer are to be elected, as the current terms expire for Mayor H.D. Swartzentruber and Council Members James T. Evans, Terry R. Helbig, Francis D. Seifert Jr., and Treasurer Rosalee Evans. The incumbents have all refiled for their current office.

The three councilmen who are in mid-term and have another year to serve are: Robert E. Boal, John A. Doppel, and Von W. Johnson.

Any resident of Oakland, age 18 or over, may register to vote at Oakland City Hall during regular office hours. The town of Oakland maintains a separate register of voters, and registration at the Garrett County Board of Election Supervisors does not qualify a person to vote in the municipal election.

Open registration will continue until 4:30 p.m. Friday, February 28. The deadline for obtaining absentee ballots is Monday, March 3, at 4:30 p.m. On election day the polls will remain open from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Bloodmobile To Visit College

The Johnstown Unit of the American Red Cross will be sponsoring a bloodmobile at Garrett Community College on Tuesday, March 11 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

A spokesman from the Red Cross reminds citizens that AIDS cannot be contracted from giving blood and urges veteran givers as well as first–time donors to "give the gift of life."

World Day Of Prayer Service Set For Mar. 7

Church Women United of Garrett County will hold World Day of Prayer Services at the McHenry United Methodist Church on Friday, March 7.

Registration will begin at 1 p.m. and the program will begin at 1:30. Alice Hevner will present a slide presentation on life in Australia.

The Christian women of Australia wrote the materials for the 1986 World Day f Prayer, using the theme "Choose Life", which calls on women "to make decisions and take actions that will begin to change the injustices and inequities that cause so much suffering in the world."

World Day of Prayer, celebrated this year for the 99th consecutive year, began in the United States in 1887 as a day of prayer for mission by laywomen in the Presbyterian Church. It is now worldwide and serves as a catalyst for women to come together in prayer and in efforts toward peace, according to a release from Church Women United, which sponsors the event in the United States.

Church Women United is ecumenical and represents a broad spectrum of religious tradition, race, age, economic status, and ethnic background. All church women are invited to attend the World Day of Prayer event. The McHenry United Methodist Church is located along Mosser Road across from the Garrett County Fairgrounds.

Commissioner Groves Seeks Second Term

Garrett County Commissioner Elwood Groves II, from commissioner district one, announced Tuesday his intention to seek re-election to a second term as county commissioner on the Republican ticket and to officially file for the position this week.

In announcing, Commissioner Groves commented, "Upon taking office in 1982 and faced with the highest county tax rate in the state, I set my goals on achieving fiscal control of county spending and reducing the county's tax rate on property.

"During the past three years, great progress has been made in achieving these goals and implementing a policy of fiscal restraint and sound management in county government.

"Each county budget of the last three years has produced a tax rate below the Constant Yield Rate, indicating that the total number of tax dollars levied to fund the county budget has not increased for three years. As a result, Garrett County has experienced a $.50 reduction in the tax rate and has received state-wide recognition for this accomplishment.

In stressing the importance of fiscal responsibility in the future, Groves added, "With the new efforts towards reducing the federal deficit, it is even more imperative for local government to carefully allocate each and every tax dollar to generate the greatest benefit for our citizens.

"The next administration must continue to hold tight the reins of government spending, maintain a downward pressure on the tax rate, and always represent the best interests of the taxpayers of Garrett County."

Groves is a 1974 graduate of Southern High School and a 1978 graduate of Frostburg State College having earned his bachelor's degree in political science.

A long-time resident of Loch Lynn, Commissioner Groves previously served on the Loch Lynn Town Council. He and his wife, Ann, are the parents of one son, Elwood Groves III.

Deadline Named For Yoder School Transfer Requests

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Garrett County Superintendent of Schools, announced this week that parents who want their student(s) to attend Yoder School during the 1986-87 school year must submit their requests to the Garrett County Board of Education, Department of Pupil Services, prior to April 30, 1986.

Parents of first-time enrollees are asked to use the regular pre-kindergarten/first grade registration form which has appeared in local newspapers and is available at any local elementary school.

Parents whose child attended kindergarten in another Garrett County School and are seeking a first grade placement at Yoder School must follow the same procedures stated below. Requests must be received before April 30, 1986.

Requests concerning students wishing to transfer to Yoder School for other grades for the 1986-87 school year will be accepted from March 17, 1986 through April 30, 1986.

Parents of these students are reminded that the procedures for these transfer requests are as follows: 1. Secure a transfer request form from the student's present school. 2. Request and attend a conference with the principal of that school to discuss the reasons for the transfer request. 3. Request and attend a conference with the principal of Yoder School to discuss the reasons for the transfer request. 4. Submit the transfer request to the Garrett County Board of Education, Department of Pupil Services, by April 30.

Notification of action regarding the request will be given by the end of the school year.

Legal Aid Bureau Announces March Outreach Schedule

Staff members of the Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., will be available to discuss legal problems with persons during March in Oakland on March 4 and 18 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Oakland Center of Garrett Community College and in Grantsville on March 11 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Health Center.

The Legal Aid Bureau, Inc. provides legal assistance in civil matters to eligible persons. Services are available at no cost to those whose income and property holdings are below certain federally-mandated levels.

The Western Maryland Office of the Leagl Aid Bureau, Inc. is located at 110 Greene Street in Cumberland. The office can be reached in Garrett County by calling 334-8832.

Whenever possible, persons needing assistance should call in advance to schedule an appointment for one of the Outreach locations or for an appointment at the Cumberland office, according to Bureau officials.

Teen Center To Hold "Crazy Style Night" Saturday

The Garrett County Teen Center is sponsoring a dance at the Oakland Fire Hall Saturday, March 1 from 8 p.m. until midnight.

The theme of the dance is "Crazy Style Night" and those attending can save $.50 off the price of admission by wearing clothes inside out, backwards or as different as they dare.

All teens, 13-19 plus, are welcome. The price of admission is $2.50 per person or $4.50 per couple. No alcohol or drugs are permitted on the premises.

Disc jockeys for the dance are Bob and Tara Grove. Videos and prizes will also be provided.

The next Teen Center event is scheduled for March 15 when a sock hop featuring Dan Daniels and his oldies will be presented. For more information about the center, call Dave Terlizzi at 334-9398.

Deadline For BPW Scholarship Application Set

March 15 has been announced as the deadline for scholarship applications by the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club. BPW offers up to $300 in scholarship funding to a woman at least 30 years of age who wants to further her education and declares a financial need.

The scholarship program was established to encourage women to take advantage of a more reasonable position, make a career change or to reenter the job market. Any vocational, technical or academic school or college is acceptable.

This scholarship program has been in effect since 1982. To apply for the scholarship, persons may contact any BPW member or the current chairperson, Constance W. Trickett, at 334-9559.

Five Area Drivers Charged With DWI

Maryland State Police at McHenry reported that several drivers were arrested for driving while under the influence over the past several weeks.

Ward Delmer Moats Jr., 40, Aurora, W.Va., was charged on February 19 by Tfc. R.C. Resh on Route 219 near the Gortner Road.

Tfc. R.C. Resh charged Wendy Patricia Beitzel, 19, Mtn. Lake Park, on Route 219 north of Oakland on February 16.

Also on February 16, Tfc. Dale K. Williams charged Sandra Lou Bellanca, 37, McHenry, near the Bishoff Road.

Donald Ray Park, 25, address unknown, was charged by Tfc. R.C. Resh February 15 on Route 135.

Tfc. R.M. Hershberger charged Thomas Lee Fike, 30, Friendsville, February 13 on Route 219.

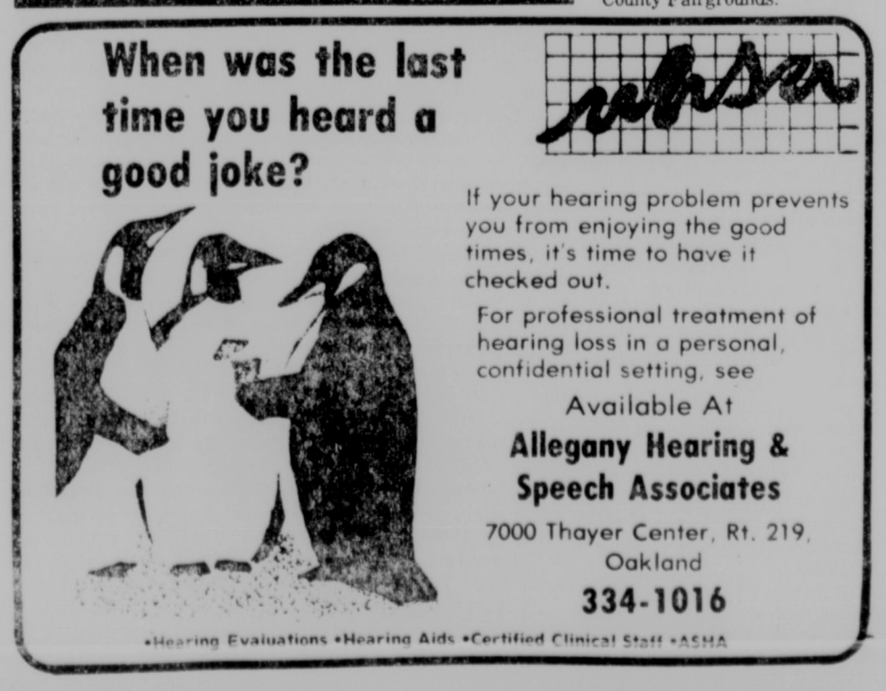
Garrett County's oldest existing structure is the Drane House in Accident.

Sheriff's Dept. Reports Theft

A theft which occurred last weekend at the Silver Tree Inn, Glendale Road, is under the investigation of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department.

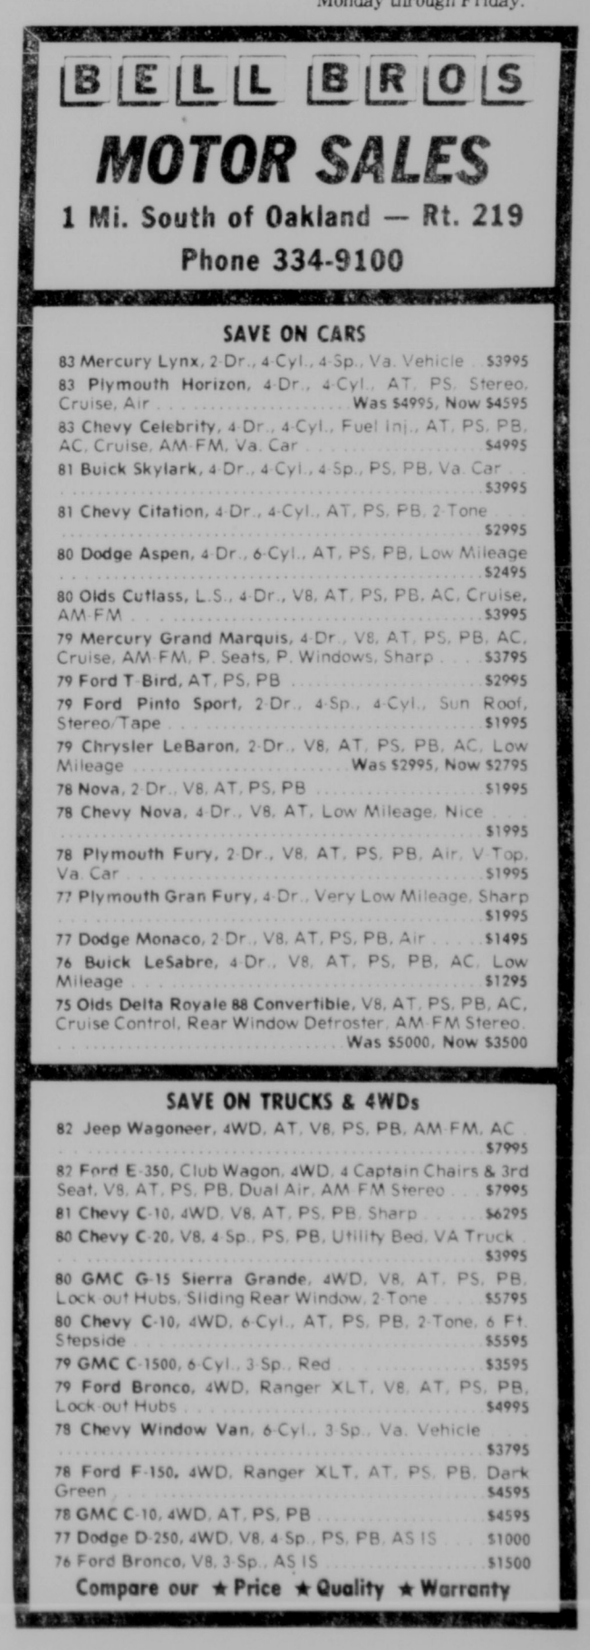
According to reports, someone removed both front tires from a vehicle owned by Beth James, Oakland. The vehicle was parked at the restaurant while James was working.

Total loss value reached $300.



The theft occurred between 5:45 p.m. and 12:15 a.m. Anyone with information concerning the incident is asked to call the Sheriff's Department.

Promotion Council Announces New Telephone Number



The Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, has announced that, effective immediately, the telephone number for the Promotion Council office at the Courthouse is (301) 334-1948.

Persons desiring information on attractions, accommodations, restaurants and events in Garrett County may call this number between the hours 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

A Good Bill . . .

One of the most important bills before the Maryland legislature, in our opinion, is Senate Bill 634, introduced by Senator John Bambacus, that will extend unemployment benefits to laid-off workers an additional 13 weeks.

Our initial concern about the bill was that, if passed, it would mean an increase in payroll tax for employers. However, the proposal does not call for an increase in this tax because the present Maryland Unemployment Trust Fund stands at over $400,000,000, which is more than enough to comfortably cover the additional costs of this 13-week extension.

Because the unemployment rate of Maryland is currently a modest 4.5 percent, well below the national average, and because Maryland enjoyed an economic growth of seven percent in 1985, there are no doubt many Marylanders who do not realize that specific counties have unemployment rates well over the state average.

Garrett County is one of those subdivisions, where the latest jobless figures revealed a 12 percent rate for December. Much of this percentage is a direct result of industrial lay-offs and a number of our local unemployed have already exhausted their unemployment insurance.

While Maryland is continuing to grow economically, statistics reveal that most of that growth is in the area of high skill work, such as communications, engineering, finance, defense contracting, and health care. The state's industrial base, on the other hand, has been steadily eroding and, since 1980, the state has lost nearly 24,000 factory jobs.

Senate Bill 634 includes provisions for an additional benefits program that would "trigger on" when the state's unemployment rate equals or exceeds four percent.

Garrett County's unemployment rate is always among the highest in the state. We see the passage of this bill as a real boost to our laid-off workers who have been unable to secure new jobs. In some cases, the very survival of these workers and their families may depend upon this extra assistance.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The newspapers have recently mentioned the possibility of a greyhound racing bill being introduced in the legislature in Annapolis. I would like to share some of my thoughts on dog racing with your readers.

Dog racing is a cruel, inhumane activity. The dog trainers give the dogs live rabbits as bait. They starve the dogs and pen them in cages with the rabbits so the dogs will tear the rabbits apart and eat them. The dogs thus develop a taste for rabbit blood. Then, during training races, the trainers tie live rabbits to the back of a moving vehicle and drag them around the track, and the dogs follow behind. At the end of the training race, the hungry dogs rip the rabbits to shreds and devour them. Before an actual race, the trainers starve the dogs for days. During the race, the dogs chase a mechanical rabbit that the trainers have smeared with the blood of a freshly-killed rabbit.

What kind of depraved person would delight in such amusement and refer to it as a "sport?" With television violence coming into homes nowadays at the flick of a switch, a large segment of society is literally "going down the tube." They crave more and more violence for their entertainment.

A society that amuses itself with violence and cruelty to its weakest members—be they humans or animals—is a society that is on the skids. Dog racing is not unlike some of the excesses of the Romans at the time of Rome's decline and fall: cockfights and dogfights, captive Christians forced to fight wild animals in the arena, and gladiators forced to fight each other until one killed the other.

When dog racing is allowed to come into a community, it dehumanizes that whole community. Dog racing is a blight on society, and it is almost impossible to get rid of once it has become entrenched. It brings in an undesirable element, including professional gamblers who are bankrolled by organized crime. People who can least afford to lose money bet their paychecks at the track, when they should be spending their money on their families. Many gamble away welfare and social security checks.

In an election in 1980, the voters of the District of Columbia wisely said a resounding "no" to dog racing. This vote served as a warning throughout the nation to those who would like to infest our Nation's Capital with this awful thing.

Responsible citizens of Maryland must follow the example set by their neighbors in the District of Columbia and must vote against dog racing. They can do this by letting their elected representatives in Annapolis know how they feel about it.

It is not only the dogs and rabbits, or even ourselves, that are at stake here; it is our whole society.

Sincerely,
Roberta J. Hauver

To the Editor:

The Maryland State Assembly is presently considering a bill to control smoking in public places on a statewide basis. This legislation is identified as House Bill No. 732, The Clean Indoor Air Act. It is sponsored by Delegates Virginia Thomas and Joan Pitkin.

The purpose of this bill is simply to control smoking in public places so that both the smoker and nonsmoker can coexist with minimal impact on each other. The bill doesn't forbid smoking, it simply restricts smoking to particular areas. In essence, it says that smoking and nonsmoking areas must be created in restaurants, grocery stores, retail stores and state owned facilities.

My organization, with over 400 members, views this as a health bill. All of our members are smoke sensitive or have family members who are smoke sensitive. Simply put, other people's tobacco smoke makes us ill. Many of our members have had to quit working and many cannot go to public events or take their children to public events due to tobacco smoke.

Bills similar to HB792 have been in effect on a statewide basis in Minnesota for many years and in Howard and Prince George's counties for several years. In addition, similar rules have applied to airlines for many years. They are very easy to enforce and, if anything, they have helped the economy rather than hurting it by enabling people like myself to become full functioning members of society again.

I urge you to assist in anyway you can to insure passage of this bill. You will be doing a public service for thousands of Maryland residents.

Several phone numbers are listed which can be beneficial on answering questions on this legislation. Delegate Thomas, 858-3205; Ms. Robin Shavitz, 685-7074; and Dr. John O'Hara, 262-5867.

Sincerely,
John H. O'Hara
President,

To the Editor:

In this session of the State Legislature, I am once again sponsoring a bill requiring that truck drivers on Maryland highways place covers over their loads. As you may know, this bill has been introduced for many years. It is one of the most popular I have ever sponsored, yet it still has not passed because of resistance from the trucking industry.

This year, I believe we can mobilize the support necessary to show our legislators that Maryland voters want this bill. In the past three weeks alone, I have heard from literally hundreds of motorists who want loose truck loads covered. After a newspaper in Montgomery County ran a mention of the bill last week, I received almost three dozen calls in two days from readers telling me they wanted the bill to succeed this year. Now, I need to get the names and addresses of residents of Oakland and other parts of the state, to show that support for this bill is wider than Montgomery County alone.

If your readers have complaints of broken windshields or other damage which may have occurred from debris flying off a truck, I hope they will call my office toll-free at 841-3007, or write me at 222 House Office Building, Annapolis, MD 21401-1991 and join the statewide network of support we are building for HB1244 and 1245, the covered truck loads bills.

Sincerely,
Ida G. Ruben
Maryland House of Delegates

To the Editor:

I have read too many letters from people concerned about the bear fetuses that died as a result of the mother being killed. For the life of me, I don't understand why the sentencing of the drunk driver on the New Germany Road who wiped out an entire family of human beings didn't initiate half the uproar. His sentence was a mockery.

Are we so wrapped up with causes that we have forgotten the human element. The writer who drew the analogy between the choice of abortion and the hopelessness of those cubs overlooked the helplessness of the human fetus, who also doesn't have a say in the matter. Are bears more precious than human life?

Please understand, I would not want to be a judge and decide how guilty someone is. But don't you think the system needs to take a hard look at itself when the penalties for killing bears in the woods about equals the penalties for killing people on the highway?

truction of the property of another against Judy D. Friend, 46, Friendsville.

The charges were filed by Tfc. Gary D. Resh following a December 15 incident near Friendsville.

Friend was represented by Adams.

Also placed on the stet docket was a charge of malicious destruction of the property of another against Herman R. Fazenbaker, 61, Grantsville.

Tfc. R.J. Resh filed the charge following an October 22 incident in Bittinger.

Fazenbaker was represented by John R. Toston, public defender.

In another case, the judge found Audrine C. Brooks, 52, Addison, Pa., to be not guilty of permitting consumption of an alcoholic beverage betweeen 2 and 6 a.m.

The charge was filed by Cpl. Gary A. Berkebile after a September 28 incident at the High Point Inn, near Grantsville.

Brooks was represented by Linda Golden, Oakland.

Commissioners

had already expressed an interest in taking courses during the intersession.

Planning and Zoning

John Nelson, acting Garrett County Planning and Zoning director, told the commissioners Tuesday that the Census Tracting Committee would hold their final meeting on March 5 to "wrap up the work" they had been doing on the volunteer census tracting program.

He said the committee would present their final draft to the commissioners after the meeting and then send it to the State Census Bureau for their approval.

Nelson also announced that the Planning Commission would be meeting on March 10 and March 19. He said the Zoning Appeals Board meeting would be held March 13.

He also reported that the Winter Trails Plan was nearly half completed. He expected a final draft to be completed by March 28 at which time it would be forwarded to the Planning Commission and then go in to the public hearing process.

The Planning and Zoning director also expressed a wish for a better permitting system among various county agencies and that all permits be posted in the courthouse so that each agency is aware of all activities. All present agreed that it was a "good idea."

Sanitary Commission

Sanitary District Commissioner Wendell Beitzel informed the county officials that contracts for sewer systems in Bloomington and Kitzmiller had been awarded to Alvarez Construction, Clarksburg, W. Va., and Merlo Contractors, Mineral Point, Pa., respectively.

Beitzel also noted that a design had been completed for the Shallmar water system and would now be submitted to the State Health Department for their review and approval.

He further stated that a design for an interceptor line for the Upper Youghiogheny improvement project had been completed as well as a collector system.

The Sanitary Commissioner also reported that a water line, sewer line and access road had been designed for the Accident Industrial Park. A water line is also in the works for the Southern Garrett Industrial Park.

It was also announced that the Shady Acres Sanitary District has been officially created. A public hearing which is slated in March on the proposed Cherry Glade Run Sanitary District would include the Mitchell Manor and Route 219 north areas outside the city limits of Oakland.

Beitzel also outlined for the commissioners the upgrading and expansion plans for the Trout Run treatment facility which serves Bausch and Lomb. The plan must be upgraded to meet discharge parameters mandated by the State Health Department and the expansion would increase the capacity for potential growth.

He also asked the commissioners' support for Senate Bill No. 629 introduced by Senator Catherine Riley from Harford County which would require the secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene to act within 30 days of receiving plans and permits for the installation, alteration or extension of water, sewerage or refuse disposal. The bill states that the failure of the secretary to act within 30 days would constitute automatic approval of the plans and applications for permits.

Health Department

Edgar Harman, environmental health officer, told the commissioners a new water evaluation and percolation test and site evaluation fee schedule had been compiled by the Garrett County Health Department and asked that the commissioners review it for their approval.

Later in the day, the commissioners did approve the new fee schedule. It was determuned that a fee of $10 would be charged for water analysis if the Health Department collected the sample and $5 if the water sample was brought to the office.

The fee for percolation test and site evaluation fee would be raised to $20 from $10. The new fees will take effect on March 1, 1986.

Community Action

Community Action Director Duane Yoder spoke to the commissioners about the effects the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act and federal revenue sharing cuts would have on his budget.

He said that all the programs which fall within his department would be cut to some degree including Head Start, housing programs and energy programs. He felt housing would be the hardest hit when the cuts begin. He stated, "These actions cut to the heart of our agencies of service."

Stormwater Management

Lee Thorn, director of Stormwater Management, outlined the Maryland Flood Management Purchase Program which allows in some instances the state and county to purchase land in flood plains on a 50/50 basis.

The commissioners then announced that they had received and reviewed the information regarding the purchasing program, but because of the potential cost of such a program to the county taxpayers they decided not to participate.

Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. explained that the board's main concern was obligating county tax dollars to make acquisitions of private property, which directly benefits only the individuals involved.

Another concern of the commissioners was that the property owners selected their place of residence without consideration of flooding situations and that in some cases they were aware the flooding potential existed when they purchased their property.

They added that the cost of the purchase program would be prohibitive. They said it was also determined that from the information received, the county costs would not just be restricted to the maximum of a 50% match. Other costs such as appraisals, legal costs and relocation expense would not be grant eligible.

The county heads stated that they would press for other alternatives to help alleviate flooding conditions in the various areas of the county.

Extension Service

Extension agent, Jane Gibson, informed the commissioners that James Sims had been working on a farmer's financial management program.

She also noted that Alice Hevner is working with county fourth grade teachers on a survivor skills workshop for latch key children.

Gibson added that a teen-parent day camp is now in the planning stages. The camp is to be held at Broadford Park and Southern Middle School and is designed to raise self-esteem.

Promotion Council

Garrett County Promotion Council Director Diane Wolfe told the county board that color brochures had gone to the printers and would be sent to local businesses in the next few weeks.

She also noted that the Garrett County Vacation Guide is nearly complete.

The director said billboards promoting Garrett County will soon be placed in Pittsburgh, Pa., Ocean City and Baltimore.

General Services

General Services Director Gary Mullich informed the commissioners that the new county phone system is now in place with a "few minor bugs" being worked out.

A clip-out phone book size ad provided by the commissioners with all the new county office phone numbers appears on page 14 of today's paper.

Library

Edith Brock, head librarian at the Ruth Enlow Library, told the commissioners that a letter writing campaign, begun by the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library, was "in full force."

The commissioners remarked that they had received many letters, thus far, requesting additional funding assistance for the local library and its branches throughout the county.

I don't ski.
Sledriding
frightens me.

Snow's not fun
for me.
I crave sun.

I don't skate.
Icy water makes me quake.

Ice won't do.
Give me
skies of blue.

I don't build
snowmen.
I get chilled.

Blow, winds blow
far away.
Take the snow.

Yes, my friends, I've had it with winter. I know, it's only the end of February and we can expect another month plus of this white stuff . . . but . . . I can dream, can't I?

Police Note Acrea Vehicle Accidents

State Police at the McHenry detachment reported several vehicle accidents which resulted in injuries over the past week.

A single-vehicle accident Monday on U.S. Route 219 sent Esther M. Durst, 48, Grantsville, to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, where she was admitted and later released, according to a spokesman at that hospital.

Police said Durst was operating a 1982 Chevrolet Citation in a southbound direction when the vehicle slid sideways on the snow-covered roadway as it encountered a slight left curve. The vehicle then crossed the center of the roadway and overturned in a ditch.

Tfc. R.J. Resh investigated the incident, and reported that no charges were made.

Two Oakland youths were treated and released from Garrett Memorial Hospital last Tuesday following a single-vehicle accident on the Swallow Falls Road.

Police said Heinz J. Veolp, 19, was traveling south in a 1974 Dodge Dart, with passenger Kevin W. Michaels, 19.

Heavy fog caused Veolp to go off the road onto the right shoulder, where deep slush pulled the vehicle into a telephone pole.

Tfc. Larry Rosage investigated the mishap.

Gary W. Wilson, 20, Aurora, W.Va., was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital following a three-wheeler accident near the Wayne Harvey Road on Sunday.

According to police, Wilson was operating the vehicle in an open field when it struck an embankment and overturned, ejecting him from the vehicle.

Tfc. David W. Broadwater investigated the incident.

Two mishaps resulted in drivers being charged with driving while under the influence.

Charles Robert Myers, 41, Oakland, was charged by Tfc. David W. Broadwater on Monday at 2:50 a.m. near Crellin.

According to police reports, Myers was operating a 1984 Chevrolet Custom Deluxe in an eastbound direction. The vehicle then struck a guardrail and a bridge.

Broadwater also charged Myers with crossing the center line and negligent driving.

Tfc. R.C. Resh charged Ward D. Moats Jr., 30, Aurora, W.Va., following an accident February 19 on Route 219.

According to police reports, Moats was operating a 1976 Ford Maverick, and failed to yield-the-right-of-way to a 1983 International Transtar operated by Howard W. Haggerty, 65, resulting in a collision.

Resh said Moats then fled the scene without rendering the proper information.

Moats was also charged with crossing the center line and leaving the scene of an accident.

Clarification Noted

In the February 6 edition of The Republican regarding the Jerry Cline lawsuit against public officials, it was reported that Cline was being represented by Lawrence Kelly of Cumberland and Henry McCrobie of Baltimore. Kelly informed this office that he is not representing Cline. Although Cline originally stated that he was being represented by Kelley and McCrobie, he verified this week that he was not being represented by Kelley or McCrobie. Cline's present attorney in the case is Charles Bernstein of Baltimore. Cline clarified previous statements by saying that Kelly is "merely assisting" him with the case. Kelly went on to say he would "never file suit against a Garrett County public official."

Michael told Carola that the last time the couple had used the car was 5:30 p.m. the day previous. Carola stated that severely burned wiring in the engine of the car indicated an electrical short, which fed off the battery and became hot enough to ignite a fire.

Also called to the scene was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries. Firemen returned to their station at about 10:40.

The Joy Of Overeating

by R. Craig Speicher

I originally planned to write about weight loss here, but then I realized that dieting and exercise rank first and second respectively as the leading causes of misery in America. And I thought to myself, why not enlighten people about the joy of overeating, instead?

So, ask yourself: To get more pleasure out of life, can you commit yourself to gaining more weight and keeping it on? Can you learn to truly appreciate a fine breakfast like 40 doughnuts in bed? Have any of you male football fans ever fantasized about being as famous for your weight as "The Refrigerator?" Any of you women ever dream about being in the television commercials for "Just My Size" pantyhose?

If so, the first thing you must do is set a reasonable goal for yourself. What is a reasonable goal? I suppose that if you could gain two or three pounds a week, that should be acceptable, but don't feel guilty if you can't gain that fast to start.

Now a word on exercise. The value of exercise is measured in "calories" burned. Calories are little units of measurement that indicate how many drops of sweat your body produces during a particular activity. Calories can be tricky, however. For instance, if you weigh yourself right after drinking two quarts of water, you will find that even though this activity expends few calories, you will still gain weight immediately. So, if you want a good exercise for gaining weight, drink lots of water, and always weigh yourself immediately afterwards.

Also, remember that it is not necessary to go to extremes with exercise, but rather, better results can be obtained with a regular, planned schedule of moderation. For example, if you faithfully avoid exercising every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, that should make you a much heavier, happier person.

OK, we're ready to discuss specific weight-related problems. First, improper weight can cause problems. First, improper weight can cause problems with your wardrobe. For example, unless you gain more weight, you will still fit into that suit or dress you bought last month. And then what excuse will you have to buy a new suit or dress?

And abnormal weight can lead to some VERY serious health problems. Once, a skinny friend of mine had a bad fall and split his pelvis right down the middle, and to this day he has a very funny walk, which makes people roll on the ground in laughter, which makes dry cleaning necessary for their clothes, which causes severe anxiety about the high cost of living, which makes these people take Valium, which leads to tranquilizer addiction, which . . . well, you see what a weighty issue we have here. I am firmly convinced that a little more padding around my friend's pelvis would have averted all of these problems.

In summary, then, we have learned where true happiness lies (in the center of a jelly-packed doughnut), and how to prevent broken bones and Valium dependency by drinking lots of water. So, dive into that bag of potato chips, starting today, not tomorrow.

And now, if you will please excuse me, I have a strange craving for a head of lettuce.

Jan Gleysteen To Be Speaker At Springs Mennonite

Jan Gleysteen will lead services at the Springs Mennonite Church, Springs, Pa., March 9. He will be preaching in the 10:30 a.m. service, and at 7 p.m. he will present "Our Mennonite Legacy" a set of 240 slides telling the story of the Anabaptists and their Mennonite descendants through the centuries.

A native of Holland, one of the centers of the 16th century Anabaptist movement, Gleysteen has traveled extensively throughout Europe researching and documenting Anabaptist-Mennonite history. In 1970 an outgrowth of these travels was Tour-Magination, a tour company specializing in Anabaptist-Mennonite life and thought. As a partner and frequent leader for many of the tours, Gleysteen is well known for the unique manner of his "teaching on location" which combines his first-hand knowledge of the subject with "a subtle sense of humor and inexhaustible energy."

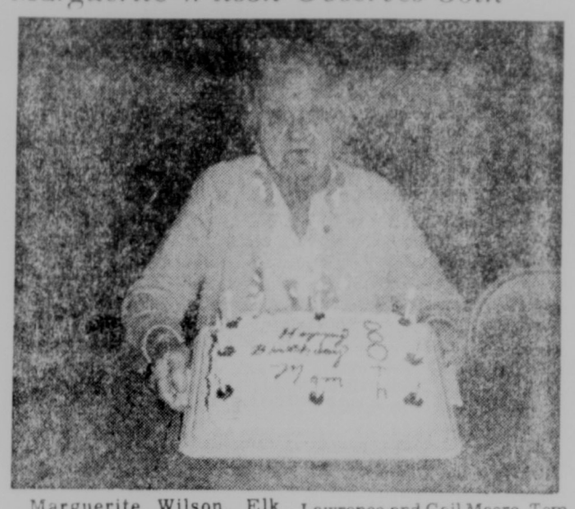
Gleysteen has worked at the Mennonite Publishing House in Scottdale, Pa., for over three decades as artist, photographer, writer, editor, and lecturer. Currently he is working on "A People on the Way," a pictorial history of the Anabaptist-Mennonite movement. He served as design consultant from Penn Alps, the restaurant-craft shop in Grantsville, as well as for several similar restaurants in Canada. Many other involvements include leading workshops on church architecture and serving as advisor for films and information centers which interpret Mennonite beliefs and practices.

The public is invited to attend these special meetings. During the intermission in the evening session there will be a free-will offering which will go to the Anabaptist Heritage Project, a fund for the "discovering, recording, and promotion of Anabaptist and Believers' Church principles."

Receives Degree In Journalism

Susan Shaffer O'Brien was graduated from West Virginia University last month with a bachelor's degree in journalism.

Mrs. O'Brien is a graduate of Southern High School



Mrs. O'Brien is now residing in Germantown and plans to teach in the public school system there. She is married to Michael O'Brien who is a Garrett County native and is employed as a certified public accountant with Atlantic Bell in Arlington, Va. The couple has a two-year old daughter, Jessica. Susan is the daughter of Perry and Joann Shaffer, Oakland.

HEARTFELT THANKS!

To the emergency room staff and those on 2E who helped me through my two recent "visits", THANK YOU LOADS! Your good nature, attentiveness, and caring made my stay more palatable. Also, I appreciate the thoughtfulness of my roommate, Mrs. Friend, and all her visitors who never left me out of their conversations. Thanks to all!

Marguerite Wilson Observes 80th

Marguerite Wilson, Elk Garden, W.Va., was the guest of honor at an 80th birthday surprise covered dish dinner, held at the Kitzmiller Lions Club on January 29.

Mrs. Wilson, who is a native of Kitzmiller, is the widow of John T. Wilson, who was a retired coal miner who died in 1978. She is the mother of four children, the grandmother of 12, great-grandmother of 22, and great-great-grandmother of three. She now resides with her grandson, John Moore, and family.

Attending the dinner were Lawrence and Earltine Moore, Frances Lucas, Daniel and Diane Paugh and sons, Mark and Matthew, Margaret Michaels and children, Ricky and Kristen, John and Diane Moore and children, Michael, Stephanie and Jeremy, Lawrence and Gail Moore, Tom and Debbie Gank and son, Joshua, Carl and Janie Friend and son, Christopher, Betty Mallow and daughter, Rachelle.

On Dean's List

Gregory M. McKenzie, son of Robert and Edna McKenzie, Avilton, was among the students of Williamsport Area Community College, Williamsport, Pa., who were named to the dean's list for the 1985 fall semester.

The list includes only those fulltime students who have a semester grade point average of 3.50 or better. A total of 544 students earned dean's list honors.

McKenzie is a graduate of Northern High School.

Local Students Inducted Into English Honorary

Four Garrett County students attending Frostburg State College have earned membership into the Frostburg State chapter of Sigma Tau Delta, a national English honor society during the academic year 1985-1986.

The recent inductees include Susan H. Alvarez, Oakland, a senior English Education major; Marcia J. Gibellino, McHenry, a sophomore English major; Toni L. Repetsky, Oakland, a junior English major; and Robin J. Spiker, Kitzmiller, a junior English major.

The criteria for induction into the honor society designates that a student must be an English major or minor, must have completed at least two English courses beyond the required Freshman English, must be of junior class ranking, and must have a grade point average of 3.3 in English courses and a 3.0 overall. A student must meet three of the four requirements to qualify for membership.

Head Start To Open New Center

The Garrett County Head Start Program is announcing the opening of a new center in Accident beginning in September of this year.

Head Start is now accepting applications for children who were born in 1982 and 1983. Also, families who have children with special needs or handicapping conditions are encouraged to apply for enrollment in the program.

Applications may be obtained at the old Accident School in the portable classroom on March 14 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. When applying it will be necessary to bring the child's birth certificate and proof of family income in order to complete the application.

Further information and applications may be obtained from the Garrett County Community Action Head Start Office at 360 W. Liberty Street, Oakland, Maryland, 334-9431.

ROADS DEPARTMENT RETIREE — Harry King, who retired recently after 22 years of service to the Garrett County Roads Department, was honored this week by county officials who presented him with a plaque. Among those present for the ceremony and pictured left to right, are Garrett County Commissioners Elwood Groves II, Ernest Gregg Jr, Roads Administrator Paul R. Shockey, Harry King, Oakland Area Supervisor Harold "Butch" Smith, and Garrett County Commissioner John G. Braskey. "He's been a good employee," said Shockey. "He's done a fine job as a truck driver in the Deer Park/Boiling Springs area which can be very treacherous during a typical Garrett County winter storm. We wish Harry well in his retirement."

Local Dentists Attend Course In Cumberland

Dr. Barry Conger, Dr. Alvin Friend and staff recently attended a continuing education course in Cumberland with focus on older patients. The Cumberland Area Health Education Center, in cooperation with Allegany Community College and the Allegany/Garrett County Dental Society, presented a professional update on "Older People and Dental Treatment."

Enrolled in the course were area dentists, hygienists, dental assistants and other interested health professionals.

Topics covered included demographics, economic status and life styles of older people; oral manifestations of older people; Alzheimer's related disorder-characteristics, hygiene problems and treatment; as well as durg use and abuse by older dental patients.

The course was the first in a series of programs in the Special Initiatives Grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for a geriatrics training program for local health professionals received by the Cumberland Area Health Education Center.

Deputy Grand Lecturer Makes Official Visit

"God's Gift" was the opening thought of Worthy Matron Eleanor Teats, as Oakland Chapter #67 Order of the Eastern Star, held its regular meeting at the Masonic Hall in Oakland.

During reception of guests, Mrs. Teats welcomed Laura Lea, Deputy Grand Lecturer, on her official visit to the Oakland Chapter, and Wilda Hile, Deputy Grand Lecturer from the Oakland Chapter. She also greeted one Worthy Patron of another Chapter, four Past Matrons of other chapters, Past Matrons and Past Patrons of the Oakland Chapter, her officers and members.

Among the business conducted during the evening was draping of the altar in memory of Mrs. Vernie Smouse, Mrs. Maude Jones and Mrs. Bea Shirer. The Worthy Matron read "Safely Home," a memorial in tribute to all deceased members.

Seven Master Masons were honored with a reading entitled "Masonry and the Eastern Star" and were presented with a gift by Ms. Teats.

A program "Birds to Welcome You" was given by the Worthy Matron and Star Points to honor Laura Lea. Ms. Lea thanked the Chapter for her program and gift presented by the Chapter, then addressed the Chapter with the message "Heaven."

Ms. Teats gave her annual report, then closed the meeting with her message "Eastern Star." Fellowship with refreshments being served by Debra Taylor and her committee following the meeting.

The next meeting will be held March 4, which will include installation of officers.

Huskies Lose To Beall In Final Period

After being on top by as many as 13 points, the Northern Huskies were outscored 31-21 in the final period against Beall Friday evening at Frostburg State College and lost to the Mountaineers, 65-64.

A fired-up Darrin Gaynor was mainly responsible for the Beall rally, as he ripped the nest for 17 of his total 24 points in the final quarter. The win snapped a 13-game losing streak for Beall and dropped the Huskies to 8-13 in the campaign.

Northern was on top by only one after the first quarter, 12-11, stretched their advantage to 29-23 by halftime, and led by nine, 43-34, after three periods.

Gaynor and company chipped away at the Husky lead and John Ralston's baseline jumper with one minute remaining knotted the score at 60 each. A free throw by Mike Eberly just seconds later put the Mountaineers on top for good.

Gaynor was the only Beall player to reach double figures, while five Huskies reached that plateau. John Brobst and Bill Torres each finished with 15 points, Mike Robeson and Kevin Selby netted 11 apiece, and Mark Robeson chipped in 10 points.

The jayvee Huskies were stopped in the preliminary, 49-32, by Beall, despite a game-high 24 points by John Harmke.

The Huskies will attempt to get back on track this Friday night in Lonaconing against Valley.

FOUR GARRETT COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL WRESTLERS captured championship titles in the recent Bi-County tournament, held in Frostburg, and will now move on to Regional competition this weekend in Hagerstown. Southern wrestlers, pictured above, who won Bi-County titles were Chuck Fitzwater, left, in the 145-pound division, and Bruce Brown, in the 105-pound division. Northern grapplers Gary Beitzel, pictured below, and Buddy Duckworth, not pictured, also won Bi-County titles. Beitzel took the unlimited division crown and Duckworth won the 112-pound division title. In all, 21 county wrestlers have qualified for the regional tournament, 11 from Northern and 10 from Southern, by virtue of placing in one of the top four spots in the Bi-County event.

Northern Girls Drop A Pair, Then Nip Aggies

The Northern girls varsity took it on the chin twice this past week, falling to visiting Beall on Friday, 58-22, and to Mt. Savage on Monday, 50-27, also at Northern, but the Lady Huskies rebounded last night to nip visiting Flintstone in their regular season finale, 58-57, in overtime.

The Huskies concluded with a 6-14 record.

Four Beall players finished in double figures against the Huskies, as Burdock netted 14 points, Manley and Spence finished with 12 each, and Carr chipped in 10 points. Melissa Beeman was the only Northerner to net double figures as she sunk 10 points.

The Huskies' leading scorer, Julie Robeson, was held to eight points.

It was Beall's 12th victory of the campaign, against seven defeats.

Beeman and Robeson again led Northern against Mt. Savage on Monday with nine points each, but the Huskies were totally dominated by the Indians, who held quarter leads of 10-5, 24-8, and 36-11.

Susan Knieriem paced the 14-3 Indians with 14 points and Stacy Smith was close behind with 12.

A pair of free throws by Robeson with 27 seconds left in regulation time put the game against Flintstone into overtime last night, and it was a jump shot by Robeson with 19 seconds remaining in the overtime period that gave the Huskies their win.

Robeson and Beeman each finished with 18 points for the winners, while Tina Lashbaugh added 13 points.

The Aggies were on top 14-6, 23-18, and 41-29 after three quarters, but the Huskies outscored them 22-10 in the final quarter. The game was won at the foul line, where Northern made good on 14 of 20 opportunities, while the Indians sunk only nine of 22 shots. The Huskies were out-gunned from the floor by a 24-22 margin.

Michelle Bridges netted a game-high 25 points to lead Mt. Savage. Crystal Youngblood finished with 16 and Renae Collier contributed 10.

Flintstone finished the regular season at 8-12.

Laker Women Top Catonsville, Anne Arundel

The Garrett Community College women's basketball team completed its regular season this past week with a pair of wins and will take its 11-13 record into the Maryland JUCO tournament today as the sixth seeded squad.

Coach Ann Wellham's Lakers topped Catonsville CC last Thursday at McHenry, 60-48, behind an 18-point performance by Lisa Llewellyn, and then edged visiting Anne Arundel on Sunday afternoon, 49-43, as Sharon Taylor led the Lakers with 17 points and a 58 percent shooting performance from the floor.

After a 22-22 deadlock at halftime against Catonsville, the Lakers pulled away in the second half. Lily Jeffries, Taylor, and Vickie Plitt also finished in double figures for Garrett, netting 15, 11, and 10 points, respectively.

Plitt also recorded 11 rebounds, Jeffries and Llewellyn pulled down ten each, and Amy Berry was credited with four assists.

Denise Peters led the visitors with 15 points.

It was at the foul line that the Lakers defeated Anne Arundel on Sunday, as the visitors outgunned them from the floor, 21-20. Garrett made good on nine of 17 free tosses, while Anne Arundel sunk only one of six.

Taylor was the only Laker to hit double figures. Plitt grabbed a game-high ten rebounds, Jeffries pulled down eight, and Berry finished with seven assists.

Ree Connelly paced Anne Arundel with 14 points, while Amy Finney added 11.

The JUCO tournament, which is being held at Harford Community College, will conclude on Saturday. The Lakers are slated to face Prince Georges CC, the third seeded team, this evening at 8 p.m. Eight teams are participating, with Hagerstown Junior College as the tournament favorite.

Lakers Eliminated In Semi-Finals Of JUCO; Preparing For Regionals

The third time did not prove to be a charm for the Garrett Community College Lakers last weekend as they met, and lost, to the nationally ranked Allegany Community College Trojans Saturday night, 69-50, in the semi-finals of the Maryland JUCO Tournament, held in Hagerstown.

Garrett, seeded fourth in the tourney, reached the semi-finals by virtue of a bye in the first round of the tournament, followed by a one-point overtime victory over Prince Georges CC on Friday, 71-70.

The Lakers will have another shot at post-season accolades next weekend in the Region XX Tournament which will get underway Saturday, March 8, at Frederick. GCC is seeded fifth in the tournament and is slated to face Allegheny-Pittsburgh, the fourth seed, at 12:30 p.m. on March 8. If they are successful in that contest, they will then meet the winner of the ACC-Potomac State contest. ACC, ranked sixth nationally, is the favorite in the tournament.

It was a 20-foot jump shot by Garrett's leading scorer, Jim Feagins, with just three seconds remaining that gave the Lakers their win over Prince Georges.

Center Torin Savoy, who came into the game averaging just four points and five rebounds, also proved to be a spark for the Lakers as he finished with 15 points, hitting five for five from the floor and five of seven free throws. He also pulled down nine rebounds.

Feagins, who is averaging over 21 points per game, hit only nine of 25 shots, but still led the Lakers with 22 points, while Sean Hazel netted 16 points, provided six assists, and grabbed eight rebounds.

Garrett was sluggish in the early going, playing without Jim Ragler, Jerry Monroe, and Scott Stem, who were all starters, and the Lakers found themselves down 35-31 at halftime.

Coach Dennis Gibson's squad came back after intermission and played well until the final three minutes of regulation time. A three-point play by Savoy, followed by a free throw by Hazel gave the Lakers a 63-56 advantage at the 3:30 mark, but they scored only one more point during regulation time.

Mike Schweich answered with a shot jumper for PG, followed by lay-ups by Lee Smith and Marc Talbert, which cut the Lakers' lead to a single point with one minute left.

Talbert then went for a game-winning lay-up at the six-second mark, missed the shot, but was fouled in the process of grabbing his own rebound. He sunk both of his free throws to give PG a one-point lead and a possible win.

However, Garrett responded with a long inbounds pass to Hazel who was fouled going to the bucket. Hazel missed his first shot, but sunk the second one, sending the game into overtime.

PG's Wayne McLaughlin hit the first points of the extra period on a jumper from the side, but Darin Blackwell answered for GCC with two free throws.

Talbert then hit a bucket for PG, followed by a single foul shot by Savoy, giving PG a 68-67 advantage.

Talbert again found the mark at the 1:10 mark to put the Owls on top 70-67, but after a missed foul shot by Smith, Feagins hit a bucket to pull the Lakers back to within one.

With just 13 seconds left, Talbert was fouled on the inbounds play and had an opportunity to put the game away for the Owls, however he missed on the one-and-one situation, Hazel pulled the rebound and fed the ball to Feagins, who sunk the game-winner from the corner.

Talbert paced the Owls with 27 points, while Russell Milner and Smith each finished with 14. PG finished with a 13-8 ledger.

The third game of the season against ACC might have been a different story for the Lakers if they had been at full strength and if they had connected on more than 31 percent of their shots from the floor.

It was also a poor offensive performance by the Trojans, however, as they managed to net only 39 percent of their shots, well below their 50 percent average.

ACC, who whipped the Lakers 88-54 and 74-64 earlier this season, grabbed a 5-0 lead in the opening moments and the Lakers then found themselves down 11-2 before getting into the game.

The Lakers came within seven points, 21-14, at the 8:10 mark on a long jumper by Feagins, but the Trojans responded with eight unanswered points to go up by 15. Garrett was down 37-25 at the half.

ACC increased its lead throughout the second half, leading by as many as 23 at one point, 64-41.

Feagins was the only Laker to reach double figures, finishing with 18 points, while Shawn Freeman netted 19 and Wayne Fenzel hit 11 for ACC.

The Lakers were out-rebounded 50-40 and committed 14 turnovers, compared to nine for the Trojans.

It was the 14th straight win for ACC and their 31st of the season, against only two losses, both of those coming to teams that were defeated once by the Lakers—Hagerstown Junior College and Allegheny-Pittsburgh.

ACC went on to win the JUCO title by topping Hagerstown in the finals on Sunday.

Coach Gibson said he was pleased with the defensive play of his team. "We just didn't have a good offensive game," he said. "We knew we were shorthanded and didn't go on the attack like we did in the last game against them."

The Lakers are now 19-11.

Rams Whipped By Bishoip Walsh Before Nipping Mountaineers By One

After a strong first half performance against powerful Bishop Walsh Friday evening in Oakland, the Southern Rams were out-scored in the third period, 16-8, and were unable to recover as they were defeated 57-44.

The Rams came back Tuesday night, however, to defeat Beall in a thriller, 69-68, and improve their record to 11-9.

Southern stayed close to the 19-6 Spartans in the early going last Friday evening and were down by just two, 14-12, after one quarter and 25-20 at halftime. Bishop Walsh picked up the pace after intermission, however, and the less experienced Rams could not keep up.

Doug Hiser led three Spartans in double figures, finishing with 18 points. Kevin Jessie netted 12 and Barry Page added 11.

Jim Liller and Jon Reneslacis paced the Rams with 16 and 12 points, respectively.

The win gave the Spartans a sweep of Southern, as they defeated the Rams 73-55 in Cumberland earlier in the season.

The Southern jayvees were also defeated by their BW counterparts in the preliminary contest, 71-54. Bobby Bernard netted 20 for the Rams, while Jason Stitcher hit 24 for the winners.

A foul shot by Southern's Jeff Sweitzer with no time showing on the clock resulted in the Rams' one-point win Tuesday over visiting Beall.

Southern held quarter leads of 15-13, 31-25, and 49-42, and had been up by as many as 12 points in the second half before the Mountaineers rallied and took a three-point advantage with just one minute remaining.

A three-point play by Sweitzer tied the score again, but Beall's Mike Eberly hit a long jumper to give the visitors a two-point edge.

Southern's Danny Jackson then tied the score at 68 with a lay-up and Sweitzer was fouled less than a second before the buzzer sounded.

Sweitzer led the Rams with 23 points, while Liller hit 16 and Jackson finished with 10 points.

Eberly led all scorers with 24 points for Beall, while teammates John Ralson and Darrin Gaynor hit 15 and 11, respectively.

Southern made it a clean sweep on the evening as the Ram jayvees whipped their Beall counterparts 62-45 in the preliminary game. J.R. Bosley led Southern with 13 points.

The Rams will conclude their regular season this Friday evening when they host Bruce.

Trout Stocking Set For March, April And May

Dr. Torrey C. Brown, secretary of Maryland Department of Natural Resources, announced this week that the DNR will stock approximately 200,000 catchable size trout into selected waters which are open to public fishing during March, April, and May. This is equal to the number of trout which were stocked during 1985.

Of the total, 34,450 trout will be stocked in Garrett County waters, with the following breakdown: Bear Creek, 7,500; Savage River, 6,500; Savage River Reservoir, 1,000; Savage River Sp. Area, 2,000; New Germany Lake, 2,500; Youghiogheny River, 2,500; Mill Run, 2,500; Muddy Creek, 2,000; Salt Block Run, 600; Buffalo Run, 2,500; Glade Run, 600; Pine Reservoir, 1,750; Broadford Lake, 1,500; and Herrington Manor Lake, 1,000.

The stockings in Garrett County will begin at some areas on March 9 and continue until May 11, however all stocking dates are subject to change without notice, because of weather conditions, mechanical problems, and the like. Brown stated that it is illegal to fish in most areas during the period in which trout are scheduled to be stocked. A complete listing of these closures is printed on pages 18 through 22 of the 1986 Maryland Freshwater Sportfishing Guide, which should be obtained when a fishing license is purchased. Additional regulations and information relative to trout fishing can also be found in the guide.

Copies of the stocking schedule and/or Fishing Guide can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Trout Stocking Schedule, Department of Natural Resources, 69 Prince George Street, Annapolis, MD 21401.

Sets Record At Waynesburg High

Steve Stuck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stuck, Waynesburg, Pa., and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George Stuck, Oakland, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Coddington, Frostburg, recently became the all-time leading basketball scorer at Waynesburg High School.

Stuck, who recently played at Southern High School in the Snowball Classic, broke the old record of 1009 points and now has 1026 with at least one game left to play.

Glenn Kyle, the basektball coach at Waynesburg, said, "Steve is not one of these guys that shoots 25 to 35 times a game. He has done in three years what most kids need four years to do. "Another big thing about Steve's accomplishment," he continued, "is that he has done it all within our team concept. He is very intelligent and although he is an excellent shooter, he knows when to pass to another player. He also leads our team in assists."

Stuck, who averages 19.4 points a game, also has a 3.6 grade point average hopes to play basketball in college.

Something To Think About
R. Mark Durst
DIRECTOR
EXPRESSIONS OF SYMPATHY
Many people desire to express their sympathy by sending flowers or some other memorial in addition to extending their condolences in person. Others do this because they cannot attend either the visitation or the service.
For the most part, those who wish to demonstrate their feelings should be able to do so, in the way they prefer and which is most natural for them. Flowers, for example, have a message all their own—one which is universal. They also add beauty to the casket setting and to the funeral service.
While it is considered proper for the family to suggest a certain memorial (such as a donation to a particular charity), this should not be done in such a manner as to exclude alternate expressions of sympathy. It should also be presented in such a way so as not to be construed as a tangible solicitation of sympathy. The funeral director can advise on these and similar matters.

AURORA-EGLON NEWS

"Choose Life!" is the theme of the 1986 World Day of Prayer worship celebration sponsored by Church Women United. This year's service has been prepared by the women of Australia. The Union District Church Women United will hold their service at the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren on March 7 beginning with a covered dish dinner at noon. The special guest speaker will be Donna Yoder of the Hospice of Preston County. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Opening devotions for the February 10 meeting of the Eglon Mountaineer 4-H Club were conducted by the Leadership Committee, Donald Rinehart, Billy Moore, Rochelle Evans and Elizabeth Whitehair. Secretary Julie Lewis took roll call and read the minutes. Leader Elaine Roth reported on the recent meeting of leaders in Kingwood.

Donations were made to The Preston County 4-H Foundation, the IFYE program, the Preston County 4-H Camp mattress fund, Union Ambulance in memory of Ina Beckman, and the Eglon Ladies Aid for the use of the Memorial Building. The club will also participate in the county insurance program.

Tray favor Valentines were made by the members for residents of the Cortland Acres Nursing Home.

The following volunteered to plan the menu for the Mt. Lions' dinner to be served by the club on April 17: Melissa Evans, Debra Rinehart, Heather Cole and Tonya Beckman.

Plans for participation in the County Roundup on March 22 at Bruceton High School were formulated. Debra Rinehart plans to attend Teen Leaders/Charting weekend at Jackson's Mill on March 14-16.

Talks and demonstrations were as follows: How to Preserve Strawberries, by Debra Rinehart; Fruit, by Melissa Evans; How to Measure Flour, by Heather Cole; Parts of a Bird, by Donnie Rinehart; How to Set a Trap, by Dayton Bolyard; Parts of a Sheep, by John Utterback; 4-H Camping, by Billy Moore; Running Properly and Domestic Sheep, by John Utterback; How to Choose Film, by Danne Roth; The Four Food Groups, by Tonya Beckman; A Career in Entomology, by Emily Lewis; Selecting a Puppy, by Stephanie Evans; 4-H Camping, by Kevin Teets; History of West Virginia 4-H by Brian Corbin and This is 4-H, by Rochelle Evans.

The next meeting will be held on March 10. The program committee with Brent Hauser, chairperson, is in charge of devotions and the program. Refreshments will be served by the Whitehair and Shaffer families.

Attending in addition to the above named were Mark Harsh, Donna Mullenax, Tammy Slaubaugh and leaders, Linda Lewis and Elaine Roth.

Mrs. William (Frances) Lantz of Aurora remains critically ill at the West Virginia University Medical Center.

Noah Waybright of Brookside, was admited Saturday night to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Alden Wilt of Eglon, also remains a patient in Garrett County Memorial.

Mildred Fike Parks, a native of Eglon and wife of the late Keith Parks, has informed relatives that she is a patient in the nursing home section of Shell Point Village, Ft. Myers, Fla. 33908.

Eleven members were present at the February 18 meeting of the Aurora Extension Homemakers. Hostess Opal Myers opened the meeting with recreation, her special feature for the day. Opening devotions on "Attitudes, Cheerful and Gloomy," were by Mary Jane Hanline.

The January lesson, because of the recall of that meeting, was on Winter Survival and Betty Fint, the leader, asked that members state one way in which they prepare for winter. She was assisted in her presentation by Martha Bolyard.

During the business session, Mary Jane Hanline reported that the Cultural Arts Committee is sponsoring a Demonstration Day on April 2 at Arthurdale, in which each club is asked to participate. Committee chairmen appointed were Community Project, Vesta Stemple; National Homemakers' Week, Betty Fint; and July open meeting, Ernestine Sisler.

Fifty-year clubs will be honored at the National Extension Homemakers' Convention and Aurora is included in those. The Area Meeting will be held May 14 at Potomac State College. Edith Fortney is the CVU chairman for the county to whom reports of volunteer hours are to be submitted.

Vesta Stemple presented the February study topic, Staying Involved With Life, by use of a skit in which Opal Myers and Betty Fint took the parts of a city girl coming to the farm.

Pig-in-the-poke was won by Martha Bolyard.

Attending in addition to the above named were Wilda Wilt, Eva Wotring, Mildred Kovalck, Martha Crowe, and Dean Sisler.

Weekend guests in Aurora with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Ross Teets, were Mr. and Mrs. Alan Teets, Springfield, Va., who also visited others in the area.

delayed one week

The Aurora VFD Auxiliary will again have homemade Easter candy for sale through March 28. Persons may come to the fire hall or order by phone by calling (304) 735-5797 weekdays, 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. or evenings (304) 735-3601.

Mrs. Mae Artis was guest of honor Sunday for an open house in celebration of her 100th birthday which was February 13. Held in the Goodwill Mennonite Home at Grantsville where she is a resident, there were many floral tributes, including one from the Virginia Rolf family. Mrs. Rolf is a foster daughter of hers.

Present for the occasion were her daughter-in-law, Wilma Artis, of Pylesville, and her daughters and their families: Kathryn Wilson, her two sons, Bart and Eric, Eric's wife, Danielle and their two children, another son, Jeffrey and his wife, Pauline Beshore; Patty Varner and daughter, Pam Blankenship; granddaughter, Barbara Hauser, husband, Jerry, children, Terry, Brent and Devin and Roseanna Judy: nephews Elmer Heckert of Romney and Clinton and Mildred Heckert of Elgin, Ill., a niece, Beatrice, and her husband from Pittsburgh; other great nieces and nephews, friends and relatives.

Mrs. Artis is a daughter of the late Lloyd and Anna Winters Herckert. Her husband, Floyd Artis, and two sons, Paul and Lawrence, have been deceased for several years.

Harold and Martha Holsopple of Red House celebrated their 43rd wedding anniversary February 13 with a dinner at The Chimney Corner. Guests for the occasion were their daughter, Jeanette Holsopple, Mrs. Holsopple's sister and brother-in-law, Ross and Naomi Teets and friends, Ray and Clara Ridder, Elmer and Shirley Cosner, and Ross and Opal Crowe.

Mrs. Junior (Mary Belle) Myers returned last Saturday to her home at Aurora where she is confined to a wheelchair.

Mrs. Charles (Lona) Lipscomb of Eglon was a recent patient in Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland.

Mrs. Gold White remains a patient in the hospital but has been transferred to Sacred Heart Hospital in Cumberland.

Mrs. May Beckman of Eglon is a patient in Garrett County Memorial Hospital in Oakland where she was admitted last week.

Relatives were notified of the death on February 17 of Virginia Forter of Rock Hall, Md. She was a daughter of the late Audra Judy Towers formerly of Eglon.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Simpson of Martins Ferry, Ohio, were weekend guests in Eglon with her mother, Mrs. Mildred Wilt. Additional guests there for Sunday dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Spaid and Brian Wilt.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Teets of Eglon spent the weekend in Harrisonburg, Va., visiting with their daughter and her family, Merlin and Martha Reish, Micah, Marilyn and Matthew.

Members of Maple Spring Church of the Brethren at Eglon shared their Sweetheart Dinner on Sunday following morning services at the church.

Jack DeSaiffe, who has been a patient in Preston Memorial Hospital and undergoing tests at Morgantown, expects to be able to return this week to his home.

Roy Garrett of Eglon remains a patient in West Virginia Medical Center at this time.

J. Robert Rembold returned last week to his home in Pittsburgh where he is recuperating from his recent illness.

Funeral services were held Tuesday, February 18, for Mrs. Hilda Holland of Mtn. Lake Park who died February 15 in Oakland. She was a daughter of the late Wilbur and Bessie Evans of Horse Shoe Run and is survived by her husband, two daughters and one son.

On February 10, a daughter was born to Bruce and Mary Teets of Dodsonville, Ohio, who weighed six pounds, six ounces. She has been named Traci Lynn.

Mrs. Teets is the former Mary Harsh, daughter of Jesse and Elsie Harsh of Silver Knob. Bruce is the son of Roscoe and Ruth Teets of Eglon. Mrs. Harsh is staying in Dodsonville with the family.

Word was received here of the death of Frank Reeves, 99, who died at his home in Virginia about January 21. He was a former summer resident of Youghigheny Forest.

Jack DeSaiffe of Amboy was admitted Monday, February 10, to Preston Memorial Hospital for tests and treatment.

Wicky Myers of Aurora, was a patient in Garrett Memorial Hospital last week.

February 9 dinner guests of Delmar and Virginia Watring at Aurora were the Rev. Annabelle Childers and Mrs. Martha Crowe, both of Aurora.

Day Care Center Opens In Accident

The Garrett County Community Action Committee announces the opening of a Day Care Center in Accident.

Applications may be obtained at the old Accident School in the portable classroom on March 14 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Persons who have any questions may call 334-9431, Ext. 215.

Benefit Dance Slated For Moats Infant March 9

A benefit dance for medical expenses for Kassandra Lynn Moats will be held at Southern High School on Sunday, March 9, from 1 - 5 p.m. with music by Southpaw.

There will also be a bake sale and cake walks available. Cost of admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children over 12.

Kassandra was born prematurely on February 11 at West Virginia University Medical Center weighing only one pound, 13 ounces. The infant, the first child of Albert and Elizabeth Moats, underwent heart surgery on Tuesday and reportedly is doing fairly well although she is still in critical condition.

Seven Die In Traffic Mishaps

Law enforcement agencies throughout the State of Maryland reported seven motor vehicle traffic fatalities during the week ending February 23.

Of these fatalities, six were drivers, and one was a passenger. Preliminary investigation of these accidents revealed that alcohol was a contributing factor in two deaths, speed in two and driver error in all seven.

Traffic fatalities in Maryland through February 23 total 101, compared to 71 during the same period last year.

We at Team One are pleased to report we have had a very enjoyable and successful first year of business. We have tried to make things better for you, our valued customers, in regards to our service and parts facilities, our vehicle inventory and availabilities, and all other aspects pertaining to your automotive needs. Our goal is to maintain and improve customer satisfaction by means of the best possible factory training available, improved and updated tools and equipment, and thougthful, courteous personnel.

We believe in our product and have had up front sales promotions giving the public the most for their money. Remember our buy-one-get-one-free sale, our free color televisions at Christmas, and now our $500.00 rebate on used cars? These reflect just a few.

We have become one of the largest AMC, Jeep, Renault dealers in our market area and we're dedicated to take Buick and Oldsmobile to the top also. We feel these things have been accomplished from your supporting and joining forces with us. Together we are Team One.

Very Sincerely Yours,

Leonard A. Walker

Several Donate To Nursing Home Valentine Event

Through the efforts of a number of school students, faculty, church groups, youth and service organizations, the 155 residents of Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home, Oakland, celebrated Valentine's Day with refreshments, favors, gifts, entertainment, and a dance.

A class from Southern Middle School, under teacher Sarah Ramsey, donated 200 handmade valentines, the faculty and students of Garrett Community College sent 155 valentines, Brownie Troop 5569 made favors for the residents, Girl Scout Cadette Troop 5027 and Senior Troop 5020 made 155 tray favors for the residents' dinner trays, Broadford Recreation Group kindergarten through third grade baked and decorated over 400 heart-shaped cookies, the Mt. Lake Independent Baptist Church Youth Group donated two large handmade valentine posters, and Bill and Hazel Myers, commanders of the Mt. Top Chapter 29, Disabled American Veterans, and its Auxiliary, gave valentines and treats to the 26 veterans who reside at Cuppett and Weeks.

DANCIN' UP A STORM at the recent Valentine's Day party at Cuppett and Weeks Nursing Home, Oakland, were Activities Department assistant Beckie Amtower and resident Joe Butler. Below, Adelaide Messman, left, and Mary Jordan enjoy cookies, flowers, and valentines, all provided by various local schools, organizations, and individuals.

The celebration concluded with a Valentine's Day dance. Approximately 40 residents danced and listened to the music of Mae and Ruth Poland. All the residents received a corsage, crafted in the applied art class, under the direction of Lorraine Ledden and Linda Fike.

Residents Pat Gonder and James Furstenburg, plus Adelaide Messman and Earl Miller were named sweethearts for the evening. They will be honored at a special luncheon in March.

Dailey Speaks To DAR Members

The Youghiogheny Glades Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met on February 17 at the home of Mrs. Delores Hayden, Mtn. Lake Park.

Dr. George Dailey, history professor at Garrett Community College, entertained the group with a slide presentation. His topic was "Garrett County - A Part of Our Whole Country."

Regent Mrs. Richard Sherwood conducted the opening ritual and the business meeting. Mrs. Lillian Reckner read the National Defense Report, the title of which was "The Value of Workfare Instead of Welfare."

Since February had been designated as American History Month by the NSDAR, students in the county were encouraged to participate in a contest. Seventeen young people submitted compositions on the theme "Contributions of the Singers of the Constitution". Each participant will receive a certificate.

The Garrett County Cemetery Book is nearing completion and will soon be ready for publication.

Mrs. Lillian Reckner, Mrs. Pauline Parrack, and Mrs. Gretchen Shaffer were elected to the nominating committee. They will present the slate of officer candidates at the next regular meeting.

Refreshments were served by hostesses, Mrs. Luther Parrack, Mrs. Deets Parrack, Mrs. Robert Ruckert and Mrs. Arthur Wolf. The group will meet on March 17 at the home of Mrs. James Hutchinson, Oakland.

Overall Health Of Marylanders Said Improving

The overall Health of Marylanders is improving, according to the findings of an annual health report issued this week by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

But Health Maryland 1985 also indicates that changing health patterns and different needs in various parts of the state dictate that programs constantly be reevaluated and improved.

"Since localities are the primary sites for actual delivery of health care services, it is important for the local areas to have specific data to assist in problem identification, and program planning and evaluation," said Adele Wilzack, R.N., M.S., Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene. "Health Maryland 1985 provides us with the information needed to do that."

Included in this second annual report, which is prepared by the Maryland Center for Health Statistics, are statistics on Maryland's infant birth and death rates, cancer mortality rates, accident and homicide rates and utilization of health resources in the state.

"I am pleased to report the health of Marylanders continues to improve," said Wilzack. "While Maryland continues to have a higher mortality rate than other states in the nation, the overall mortality rate is declining, with a 1.9% decrease.

"This can be attributed to steady decreases in deaths from heart disease, strokes, accidents, influenza, diabetes, chronic liver disease, and homicide," she added.

Wilzack noted the infant mortality rate in Maryland reached an all-time low of 11.0 per 1000 live births in 1984, attributed to a decline in the non-white mortality rate. The percentage of low birth weight infants also declined, although Maryland still exceeds the national average.

However, the statistics on use of prenatal care, important in improving birth outcomes, were "somewhat disturbing" to Ms. Wilzack, as almost a quarter of women giving birth here failed to begin prenatal care until the second trimester. This occurred most frequently among non-white women and teenagers.

Mortality rates for non-whites are approximately one and a half times higher than those for whites, according to Health Maryland 1985.

"It is disturbing to note that cancer mortality, the second leading cause of death in the state, continues to increase steadily, with particularly high rates for non-white males," Ms. Wilzack said. "I also continue to be disturbed with the differences in mortality rates across population groups and subdivisions in this state."

Child Restraint Law Enforcement On The Increase

Maryland State Police announced recently that enforcement statistics show a rise in the number of citations and warnings issued for violations of Maryland's child safety seat law.

There were 2,746 citations and 2,561 warnings issued in 1985 compared to 2,611 citations and 2,559 warnings in 1984. This three percent increase is attributed to strict enforcement by state troopers, according to the MSP.

Maryland's child safety seat law went into effect on January 1, 1984, and requires persons transporting children under the age of three to position and secure them in a child safety seat. Children at least three years old, but under the age of five, must be secured in a safety seat or properly fastened seatbelt or combination seatbelt/shoulder harness.

To promote public awareness the National Child Passenger Safety Association has designated the week of February 23 through March 1, 1986, as National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week. Governor Harry Hughes has also signed a proclamation declaring the same period as Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week in Maryland.

The State Police remind everyone that the use of safety seats and safety belts offers the best protection against injury in child automobile passengers and adults alike.

Motor vehicle accidents are the leading cause of death of young children and it is hoped that with increased usage of safety devices a tremendous reduction of serious injuries and deaths will result," an MSP spokesman said.

Since the late 1970s, all states, plus the District of Columbia, have passed child safety seat laws. Studies conducted by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration indicate that traffic related injuries and deaths of small children have declined considerably since their inception. Maryland's law was designed to be educational in nature and not punitive, but carries a minimum fine of $25. Surveys indicate that voluntary usage of child restraint devices in Maryland has increased.

A major element in the success or failure of child safety seat laws has been the effort of police in enforcement of these statutes. During Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week and throughout the year, troopers will be focusing their enforcement activities in addition to their daily responsibilities in the areas where the misuse of child safety seats has been determined to be most prevalent.

"MR. SCHMERTZ IS STILL ON THE CRITICAL LIST.... CRITICAL OF THE DOCTORS, CRITICAL OF THE NURSES, CRITICAL OF THE MEALS...."

Maryland School Breakfast Week Is Proclaimed

The older the child the greater the likelihood that he or she will skip breakfast, the Maryland State Department of Education says, and that is not good news.

Sheila Terry, a school nutrition expert at the state agency, says studies have shown that 35 percent of eighth graders skip breakfast but that 48 percent of eleventh graders seldom or never eat it.

The result, she says, can be tiredness, dizziness, even nausea in the classroom; lack of attentiveness is typical of the breakfast skipping student. That can lend to poorer performance and lower grades, she says.

To help turn the situation around the state agency is sponsoring Maryland School Breakfast Week from March 3 to 7. The annual promotion is now in its sixth year. This year's activity will feature posters, brochures and activity packets for schools to use, plus an appeal to media to help out. Governor Hughes has named March 3-7 School Breakfast Week in Maryland. Each student who eats a school breakfast on March 3 will get a lapel sticker.

Some 30,000 Maryland youngsters eat breakfast in school each day. Over half the public schools in the state serve breakfast. The cost ranges from 40 to 70 cents depending on the school system, for a balanced nutritious meal. Children eligible for free or reduced price lunches have the same eligibility at breakfast-time.

"We want to do more with this special week than increase the number of breakfast-eaters among students," Ms. Terry says. "We want to help students understand the connection between good nutrition and good health and to acquaint them with the variety of foods that can be part of a good breakfast."

Health Secretary Issues Advisory To Consumers

In the wake of the recent contamination of Tylenol and Gerber Baby Food products, Adele Wilzack, R.N., M.S., Secretary of the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene has asked consumers to take certain precautions with newly purchased foods and over-the-counter drugs.

"Consumers should be aware of the possibility of tampering with food and drug products, and should take the necessary steps to avoid a potentially dangerous incident," Wilzack advised. "By taking a few extra moments, an unfortunate incident can be prevented."

Ms. Wilzack recommended that consumers inspect food and drug packaging for any signs of tampering, such as broken seals, loose caps, and puncture marks. Shoppers should also check the expiration date of an item, she added.

Wilzack also suggested that residents check foods and over-the-counter drugs for peculiar smells, tastes or, discoloration prior to full consumption. Baby foods should be closely inspected by an adult before feeding, she said.

If a product shows any such indication of tampering, Ms. Wilzack warns consumers to discontinue use immediately, and to contact the local health department so that appropriate testing can be conducted.

The Health Secretary said anyone still with Tylenol capsules with the lot numbers ADF-916 or AHA-090 should send the products to the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, Division of Drug Control, 201 W. Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland 21201, 8th floor. Individuals experiencing problems with Gerber Baby Foods should contact the Community Health Division at (301) 225-6036.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Garrett County Board of Education announces that the comprehensive preschool registration program which began nine years ago as a joint venture with the Garrett County Health Department will be held again this year. This program is for all children entering kindergarten or first grade for the first time in September, 1986.

This registration program, which will be held in all elementary schools during April and May, has been developed to help identify strengths and needs of children and to identify early any problems that may interfere with a successful start in school.

Parents must register any child who will be six years old before January 1, 1987, and may register any child who will be five years old before January 1, 1987.

Parents of children who meet the above qualifications are asked to fill out the registration blank at the end of this article and mail it to the designated address. All parents registering children for school will receive a letter notifying them of the date, time and place of their appointment for the preschool registration program.

Parents are requested to bring their child's birth certificate and immunization record and to provide important information for the school's records during the registration. In addition, each child registering for school will be screened in the areas of vision, hearing, and motor development. Additional services will include height, weight, and health appraisal and dental screening.

If you have a child who is not already enrolled in school, but is ready and/or required to attend school during the 1986-87 school year, please fill in the following information and mail it to the Garrett County Public Schools. Upon receipt of the following form, the office of Pupil Services will contact you to schedule an appointment for you and your child.

Wellness Group Offers Classes On Nutrition, Stress

"Reducing Your Risk of Heart Disease" is a "Wellness Together's" focus for March. "Wellness Together" is the cooperative effort by Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Garrett County Health Department, and local health agencies to help local families pursue healthier lifestyles.

Diet, stress, smoking, exercise, and family history can affect one's risk of heart disease, according to the American Heart Association. Classes to alter two of these risk factors — diet and stress — are beginning in March.

"Wellness Together" is offering the public the opportunity to experience for themselves how easy it is to prepare foods high in nutrition by offering the Culinary Hearts Kitchen Course. This course was designed by the American Heart Association to help Americans eat well. This new course is about cooking, food and nutrition with an emphasis on creating meals that are low in calories, fat and cholesterol.

According to a "Wellness Together" spokesman, learning new recipes is not the only thing Culinary Hearts Course teaches. Participants learn how to modify their own recipes to follow the Heart Association's recommendations for healthy eating. The course will offer specific ways to reduce sodium, fats and cholesterol in home food preparation and provide guidance in choosing appropriate foods at the market.

"Culinary Hearts Kitchen provides important basic nutrition information that is important to everyone, not just those who have heart disease," the spokesman said.

"Wellness Together" is offering this course at the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service office, Courthouse, on Mondays, March 3, 10, 17 and 24, from 6 to 8 p.m. Garrett County Health Department nutritionist, Ann Carroll, will be the instructor. The cost will be $20 per person and $25 per couple.

In the second course is a hour of stress management training on four Tuesdays at noon (participants may bring their lunch) in March, and the first Tuesday in April. Dr. Dave Srebalus will lead the group through identification of stress and stressors and help participants practice coping methods for alleviating that stress. For more information and to register for the courses, persons may call "Wellness Together" at 334-8111 or 895-3111.

Wagner Accepts Chairmanship For Heart Association

Nina L. Wagner has again accepted her position as Heart Sunday chairman for the McHenry, Bittinger, Cove and Accident areas, according to Francis L. Grimm, vice president and general campaign chairman for Garrett County.

Mrs. Wagner is a fulltime employee for Potomac Edison and she resides in McHenry with her husband and two children.

Officially, Heart Sunday in Garrett County was February 23, however, some areas will still be collecting until March 10 due to inclimate weather.

Mrs. Wagner will be assisted by Mrs. Esther and Kathy Margroff as business and residential chairman for the Cove Area, Donald Sealing for Bittinger; Anna Mary Fratz, for Accident; and Lois Lear for McHenry. Co-workers for McHenry include: Barbara Speicher, Arlene McKenzie, David Seaman, Debbie King, and the Deep Creek United Methodist Youth Group.

"In Garrett County, heart disease is the number one killer; more than accidents, cancer and respiratory diseases combined," said Mrs. Wagner, who has been a Heart Association volunteer for 16 years. "Research to uncover the causes of heart diseases is vital if we are to halt this terrible killer. Please give generously when the Heart Volunteers call at your door."

To become a volunteer or obtain more information, persons may call the American Heart Association at 724-4011.

Hospital Costs Rise, But Md. Below Average

Hospital patient care costs are rising across the nation and Maryland is no exception although it is below the national average, according to Carl J. Schramm, chairman of the Health Services Cost Review Commission.

The average cost of care for each Maryland hospital patient rose 5 percent in 1985 compared to a national increase of 8.3 percent. This is the tenth consecutive year Maryland has contained costs better than the national average, said Schramm.

He said, "Not only has the percentage increase been held down in Maryland, but the actual cost of hospitalization is now lower than in most of the nation.

Maryland's cost per admission was one percent below the national average in 1985.

The chairman stated that hospital profits throughout Maryland decreased from $52.6 million in 1984 to $34.2 million in 1985. He added that 38 acute care hospitals showed a profit and 16 hospitals posted a loss.

HOW TO SPOT THE FOOD QUACK

Did you know that about 85% of the nutrition information you are likely to encounter is false or misleading? By learning how to recognize the health hustlers, you can protect yourself from becoming a victim of nutrition "myth-information."

Dr. Mark A. Kantor, Food and Nutrition Specialist with the University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, has offered these tips on how to recognize the food quack. He says that you should be suspicious of anyone who does the following:

*Promotes herbal remedies for weight loss or for a variety of ills. Herbs are potentially dangerous and should not be taken lightly. Some herbs may be poisonous, depending on where they are grown and how long they are stored. Many of today's modern drugs contain chemicals found in herbs, but drugs come in exact dosages and are less likely to cause side effects.

*Suggests that weight loss may be quick and easy. It is not. To lose one pound of fat required burning off 3500 calories. This can only be accomplished by eating less or exercising more. The most weight that can be safely lost is 1-2 pounds a week. A large, sudden drop in weight is due to water loss, which will eventually be gained back.

*Claims that natural vitamins are superior to synthetic ones. They are chemically and biologically identical. The body doesn't know the difference, but the pocketbook will.

*Says that soil depletion and chemical fertilizers produce less nourishing food. If soil is truly depleted, plants will not grow. Chemical fertilizers conteract soil depletion by supplying nutrients to the soil. Although natural animal manure fertilizers are ecologically sound, they also have a disadvantage, as they may contain harmful salmonella bacteria.

*Alleges that modern processing methods remove all nutritive value from food. It is true that some processing methods will destroy nutrients, but other processing techniques, such as fortification and enrichment, actually add nutrients back to food. As long as you select foods properly, you will get all the nutrients you need. What the quack really wants you to do is buy his supplements.

*Sells ensymes to aid digestions or help weight loss. All enzymes are proteins. When they are eaten, they are broken down into small units in the stomach and intestines, and therefore can no longer function as enzymes!

*Promotes bee pollen, ginseng and protein powders to aid athletic performance. These supplements are worthless and may be dangerous. Ginseng may cause diarrhea, insomnia, nervousness and mental confusion. Most Americans already get plenty of protein from their food, and certainly don't need to take costly supplements which often supply low quality protein.

*Offers you a vitamin that isn't. The quack often makes nutritional claims for rutin, bioflavenoids, inositol, pangamic acid (vitamin B-15) and para-aminobenzoic acid (PABA). These ingredients are not needed in the diet, and nutritional claims for them on a label are forbidden by the Food and Drug Administration. It is true that PABA is a vitamin, but for bacteria, not for people. Its only value is a sunscreen.

*Recommends a combination of "cider vinegar, lecithin, vitamin B-6 and kelp" for weight loss. The worthess formula has been around for years. It is no more effective than the snake oil that was sold from the backs of covered wagons a hundred years ago.

*Sells grapefruit or grapefruit pills for weight loss. More nonsense.

*Blames most complaints and diseases on faulty diets, and says that "sub-clinical" deficiencies abound. There is no evidence for this. It is true that many chronic diseases may be related to nutrition, but the problem is most often one of over-nutrition, or obesity, and not dietary deficiencies.

*Says that nutritional deficiencies can be detected by hair analysis. This is a worthless technique. The composition of hair is affected by many factors, including your age, rate of hair growth and the type of shampoo you use. Hair analysis has limited use for detecting heavy metal contamination, such as mercury, arsenic and lead. It cannot be used to determine vitamin deficiencies because there are no vitamins in hair, except beneath the scalp near the root.

*Says you should only sweeten foods with honey and brown sugar. These sweeteners make a negligible contribution of vitamins and minerals to the diet. They have no special health properties.

*Recommends fasting because it gives the digestive system a rest and removes poisons from your system. Totally untrue and not recommended.

Although you may think the food quacks are easy to spot, they are not. They wear a cloak of science, and may use a lot of "scientific terms" to try to impress you. They are often dynamic and charismatic.

Be suspicious of miracle cures, easy weight loss and someone who claims you must take supplements to stay healthy.

Be skeptical and be smart!

Seat Belt Law Is Favored By 75% Of Citizens

Seventy-five percent of Maryland residents favor passage of a law requiring drivers and front seat passengers to wear safety belts, according to a statewide survey released today by the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use.

When the same question was put to Marylanders last July, 68 percent answered affirmatively.

The poll, conducted for the Committee in January, also showed that 81 percent of Marylanders believe that safety belts save lives and 76 percent said they would always wear a belt while driving if a law were passed.

William F. Zorzi, Sr., Chairman of the Maryland Committee, pointed out that a simultaneous poll in Virginia and the District of Columbia generated equally impressive results.

"Although Virginia does not have a safety belt law, 75 percent of those responding favored passage of such legislation. In the District, which enacted a law in December, 88 percent of those polled supported a new law," Zorzi said.

He also noted that the citizens of all three jurisdictions favored strict enforcement of belt laws, with Marylanders registering 86 percent approval, Virginians 89 percent and the District registering 84 percent. Last year, 80 percent of Marylanders favored strict enforcement.

The three-jurisdiction poll was conducted by Decision Making Information, a McLean, Virginia-based research firm, and funded by Traffic Safety Now, Inc.

Zorzi said, "Support for a safety belt law in Maryland is growing because more people are realizing that belt laws save lives. They realize that publicity alone will not do the job—only a law will insure significantly higher belt use."

Dr. Alex Haller, Children's Surgeon-in-Charge, Johns Hopkins Hospital and a member of the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use, likened traffic fatalities to an epidemic. "A doctor's training involves recognizing epidemics, such as measles and smallpox and doing something to prevent these diseases ie. vaccination," he said.

"Therefore, when the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration predicts 70,000 road-related fatalities by 1990, with about 70 percent of Maryland's share being strictly auto fatalities, we have a 'disease of modern society'—an epidemic facing us.

Haller continued, "Physicians clearly believe that it's time for the Free State to pass a mandatory automobile safety belt use law and help reduce the dimensions of the epidemic."

The scientific survey of Maryland was conducted through telephone interviews of 707 persons.

Sachs Seeking Tough Legislation Against Illegal Handgun Owners

Maryland Attorney General Stephen H. Sachs last week urged the General Assembly to enact a law requiring mandatory imprisonment for anyone convicted of unlawfully wearing, carrying or transporting a handgun.

In testimony before the state Senate's Judicial Proceedings Committee, Sachs said that national and local statistics show "that all too many of our neighborhoods are becoming armed camps.

"This must be stopped. It is time for the leadership of this state . . . to say enough is enough. The passage of (this bill) is a good place to make our stand."

Sachs also urged the state Senate to reject a proposed bill that would nullify a ruling by the state Court of Appeals that held the manufacturers and sellers of cheap, small-caliber handguns known as "Saturday Night Specials" liable for damage suits by handgun victims and their families.

"It is grossly unfair to permit businesses to reap profits from the unbridled marketing of these instruments of senseless death and injury while the innocent victims go uncompensated for their pain and suffering," Sachs told the senators.

"Legitimate handgun manufacturers and dealers have nothing to fear" from the appellate court ruling, Sachs said. "They need only refrain from making or selling the kind of cheap, easily concealable handguns that are of use only to criminals. Those merchants of death who insist on marketing Saturday Night Specials, however, should be held accountable to the innocent victims of the carnage that is the inevitable result of this dirty business.

In supporting the proposed law that would require a mandatory one-to-three-year jail or prison sentence for anyone convicted of wearing, carrying or transporting a handgun without a permit, Sachs said such a statute would be "an important step in domestic disarmament." Similar laws in New York and Massachusetts have proved effective in curbing gun-related violence, he said.

Handgun crime dropped 35% during the first four years of the Massachusetts law, which was passed in 1974; and between 1980, when the New York law went into effect, and 1983, the number of murders in New York state decreased by 12.7 per 100,000 to 11.1 per 100,000, Sachs said.

Sachs added that the proposed Maryland law would provide an important refinement—an "escape hatch"—not available in the Massachusetts statute. If Maryland judges decide not to impose the prison sentence, they would have to do so in open court and prepare a written explanation for the decision that would be reported to the General Assembly.

"This provides the necessary accountability and the necessary 'escape hatch' from the jail term for the law-abiding, record-free grandmother when the judge feels it appropriate," Sachs said.

The "principal thrust and benefit" of the proposed mandatory-sentence law would be in its message, Sachs said: "Do not walk around Maryland with a handgun unless your have a permit to do so." The experiences of New York and Massachusetts with such a law "is clear—a well-publicized handgun law is a deterrent," the Attorney General said.

In opposing the bill that would overturn the Court of Appeals ruling on Saturday Night Specials, Sachs said such weapons are "clearly tools of crime . . . (that) are poorly made and inaccurate and are virtually useless for sporting purposes, law-enforcement or self-defense."

He noted that Maryland's gun control law, passed in 1972, recognizes three legitimate uses for handguns: sporting, law-enforcement, and protection of home or business. "The Saturday Night Special serves none of these functions," Sachs said. In addition, the Court of Appeals ruling imposes no potential for liability on the makers and sellers of well-made handguns that have legitimate uses or if the person who used a Saturday Night Special did so for self-defense or some other lawful purpose, Sachs noted.

Sachs said critics of the court ruling say it will be impossible to know in particular cases whether a handgun is a Saturday Night Special, but he observed that the federal government has been compiling a list of such guns since 1968.

"Examples of handguns that a court would have no trouble characterizing as Saturday Night Specials are the .22 caliber, 2.5 inch barrel gun used to kill Robert Kennedy and the .22 caliber, 1.75 barrel gun used to wound Ronald Reagan," Sachs said. "Many of the cheap guns costing as little as $40 (and) which have caused so much bloodshed among Baltimore City teenagers would also plainly fall into this category," he added.

"Maryland's common law firmly establishes that when manufacturers and dealers of an item can clearly foresee that the product they are marketing has no legitimate use and is likely to be used to harm innocent people, they are liable for the injuries caused by that product," Sachs noted.

"Because the manufacturers and dealers of Saturday Night Specials can easily foresee that the guns they make and sell are used primarily for crimes, they should be held responsible to the innocent victims of their products," Sachs said.

Health Systems Governing Body Meeting Reported

The Governing Body of the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland met on February 19 at the Ali Ghan Shrine Club, Cumberland. James E. Cuppett, chairman presided.

Dr. Leslie R. Miles, Plan Development Committee Chairman, gave the Committee report. The Governing Body approved the Plan Development Committee's comments on the Institutional Long-Term Care projections, policies and standards and that Committee's comments on the draft plan section entitled "Neonatal Intensive Care Services."

The Governing Body also took action to place a Western Maryland variant standard in the Long-Term Care draft plan section which gives preference to the applicant(s) proposing a new nursing home in a community other than each county's major town where the bulk of licensed and certified nursing home beds are located.

With regard to an issue developed by the Plan Development Committee concerning the effect of malpractice insurance on accessibility to prenatal and obstetrical care, the Governing Body agreed to urge state lawmakers to do everything possible to reduce the cost of medical malpractice insurance for these types of physicians. This view will be forwarded to the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission and local delegates and legislators.

Carole Walker, Management Committee chairman, reported on committee activities. The Governing Body approved the financial statements for October, November and December 1985 and January 1986.

Kery C. Hummel, executive director, stated that as of September 1986, the HSAWM will lose approximately $150,000 in federal funding due to the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings balanced budget legislation. There is a possibility of additional State funding if the Agency proves to be viable and valuable to the residents of Western Maryland. Currently, there is a joint resolution between the House and Senate of the General Assembly to study the future of health systems agencies in the State of Maryland.

Hummel announced that the Agency has produced a brochure entitled, "A Consumer Guide to Home Health Services in Western Maryland," which will be distributed to all appropriate agencies/interested individuals within the four counties of our service area.

Cuppett announced that the next Governing Body meeting will be Wednesday, March 19, 1 p.m. at the Venice Inn, Hagerstown. Hummel invited all members to an informal Open House hosted by HSAWM staff in order for members to view the new offices and to meet other members of the organization and staff.

Those members present from Garrett County included Cuppett, Lawrence M. Beck, Carolyn J. Ganoe, John S. Parker and M. Virginia Rosenbaum.

Label-Collecting Goal Reached By Local Students

Broad Ford Elementary School reached its collection goal of 8,200 Campbell's labels this week, according to a school spokesman. These labels will be sent to the Campbell's Labels for Education Program by March 1, the program's deadline.

Through this program, Broad Ford School has chosen to receive this year: a United States Geography computer program, a Webster's New World Thesaurus and five filmstrips and cassettes. The filmstrips include: "Let's Explore the Moon," "Stars and More Stars," "The Planets: Mysterious Worlds Around Us", "The Sun," and "What a Scientist Sees Through a Telescope."

Broad Ford will continue to collect Campbell's Soup and related labels during the remainder of this school year. These labels will count toward next year's drive.

Broad Ford students collect labels from the following Campbell Soup Company products: Campbell's Condensed Soups, Campbell's "Soup for One" Soups, Campbell's Beans products, "V-8" Cocktail Vegetable Juice, Franco-American products, RECIPE Dog Food products, Campbell's Chunky Soups, Campbell's Low Sodium Soups, Campbell's Tomato Juice, "V-8" Low Sodium Cocktail Vegetable Juice, Swanson canned and Frozen Food products, Prego and Prego Plus Spaghetti Sauce, Mrs. Paul's Frozen Foods, and JuiceWorks Blends of 100% Fruit Juices.

Although labels are saved from most of the above products, there are some exceptions. From Swanson Frozen Foods the blue-green triangles from the upper left corner are saved. From RECIPE dog food packages, the purchase confirmation seals are saved. From Mrs. Paul's Frozen Foods, Broad Ford students collect the "Quality Pledge Panels," and from JuiceWorks the Universal Product Code (UPC Symbol) is collected unless the juice is in bottles, in which case the caps are saved.

Other items received from the Campbell's Labels for Education Program by Broad Ford School in past years include: a set of Britannica Junior Encyclopedias, a record player, five tape recorders, and a microscope.

MSAH Seeking Address Changes

The Maryland State Highway Administration has announced it maintains a comprehensive mailing list of all proposed highway and bridge improvements. In order to update the changes in officers and mailing address for community and condominium organizations, it is requested that all organizations desiring to be placed on this mailing list submit the name and address of the presiding officer and organization represented to Neil J. Pedersen, director, Office of Planning and Preliminary Engineering, P.O. Box 717, Baltimore, MD 21203-0717. Future publications will be submitted to this representative.

Land Surveying Brochure Published

"What You Should Know About Land Surveying" is the subject of a new brochure by the Maryland Society of Surveyors (M.S.S.).

Prepared and published by the Society for general information, the Society says it will be helpful to anyone involved in the measurement and/or transfer of land including real estate persons, title companies, lending institutions, and attorneys as well as the consumer. The brochure defines the purpose of land surveying, when a survey is required, how to select a land surveyor and types of surveys available.

Brochures may be obtained by contacting the M.S.S. office at 1-3 East Franklin Street, Suite 401, Baltimore, Maryland 21202. Persons should enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope to receive a complimentary copy. For additional information they may call (301) 539-4254.

Fuel Consumption In Maryland Sets Record In 1985

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says tax reports indicate that Marylanders used more motor fuel during 1985 than in any other calendar year on record. The 2,223,119,337 gallons of motor fuel consumed during 1985 is 2.5% more than the 2,168,994,528 gallons used the previous year.

"For the first time, motor fuel use has exceeded the 2.2 billion gallon mark set in 1978, the year before the last energy crunch," Goldstein said. "This new record indicates the ever growing numbers of drivers and vehicles on Maryland's roadways, including tourists as well as residents."

The calendar year consumption figures are reflected in the motor fuel tax revenue reports compiled by the state comptroller's office.

Goldstein noted that motor fuel tax revenue for the month of January, 1986, which reflects sales made in December, 1985, totaled $28.2 million, up 6.6% over the $26.5 million collected during January, 1985.

For the first seven months of fiscal year 1986, which began July 1, 1985, motor fuel tax revenue totals $191.6 million, a 2.3% increase over the $187.3 million collected during the identical period of the previous fiscal year.

Maryland's motor fuel tax is 13¢ per gallon.

Frostburg State To Host Major Art Exhibition

A major art exhibition entitled "Seeing-Thinking-Feeling" assembled by the Maryland Art Place in Baltimore will be on display at the Frostburg State College Roper Gallery and the Library from March 7-27, it was announced this week.

Works by two Frostburg State art department artists, Robert Llewellyn and Donald Cook, are featured in the show that includes works by 77 Maryland artists.

The show opens with a reception March 7 at 7:30 p.m. in the Roper Gallery, and the public is invited to attend.

The Maryland Art Place was founded to serve contemporary artists from across the state by enhancing exhibition opportunities and by building stronger ties with the public in general.

Olivia Georgia, director of the Maryland Art Place, said the exhibition "is another attempt to bridge the gap that exists between center and periphery in that it is the first in a series of traveling exhibitions to provide a greater forum for the exchange and circulation of Maryland art."

Lee Fleming, Washington correspondent for "Art News" and art editor for The Washington Review, curated the three separate categories of the exhibit. "In this show," Fleming said, "are the elements of the artistic process. All other factors, from the knowledge of art historical precedents to solutions to technical problems presented by the chosen medium, fall into one of these three."

"It is seeing, thinking and feeling that come together to produce the experience we call art," he said. Fleming added that the real power of art "lies in what we bring to looking at it, and what we take away in the form of altered perceptions or opinions."

The sponsor of the exhibition is the Junior League of Greater Baltimore.

MSTA President Supports Writing Test Moratorium

Testifying last week before the House Constitutional and Administrative Law Committee, the president of the Maryland State Teachers Association lent her organization's support to legislation to place a moratorium on the controversial Maryland Functional Writing Test.

The test is a requirement for students graduating from Maryland high schools beginning in 1987. House Bill 1012 delays enactment of the test as a graduation requirement until 1989.

"Teachers support high standards," MSTA President Beverly Stonestreet told the Committee, "but we have serious reservations about the validity of this test and its administration."

Stonestreet said that teachers are especially concerned about the lack of an appeals process for students who fail the test.

"We recognize the possibility of unfair or erroneous grading of the test," she said, "and we have do doubt that many students have been treated unfairly."

Stonestreet recommended two bases for appeal: 1. that the test was graded improperly; 2. that the test does not measure the individual student's true ability and an alternative means measurement must be considered.

"We have taught too many students for too many years not to have become painfully aware of the inability of some students to perform up to their ability on tests administered in a controlled testing environment," she told the Committee.

The MSTA President also expressed concern about the State Board of Education's decision to withhold completed and graded tests from students. She asked: "How can we teachers design a program of remediation for a student who fails the test when we don't have the opportunity to review the student's test paper?"

MSTA cannot support the test until students, parents, and teachers are assured of the test's validity and until fair standards are established, Stonestreet concluded.

SHOW AND TELL

Miss Yarlett's lack of accent accents fame

By Gregory Garver

There are still some English performers who, after having lived in the United States for years, still speak with an English accent. Then there is Claire Yarlett.

Claire Yarlett

The actress is English, but you would never know it from the way she talks. Her speech patterns are those of a raised-in-the-sun Southern California girl. That's because she is a California girl. Sort of.

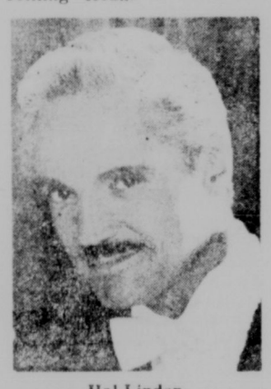
If this sounds confusing to you, imagine how it sounds to Miss Yarlett, who plays Bliss Colby on the ABC series "The Colbys."

"It sounds very confusing," she understates. The actress's parents are English, but her cinematographer-father's America-based work caused his daughter to be placed in Los Angeles.

"For my first few years," the 20-year-old explains, "I lived in Los Angeles, and went back to England in the summer. I went to grade school here, but went back to England for four months every year. Then, somewhere around the fifth grade, we moved back to England, and I went to school there, and came here for the summers.

"Then I switched back again. We went to school here in America again and," she adds, "spent summers in England. In 1980, we moved back to England, and I spent my last two years of schooling in an English convent."

Miss Yarlett says she considers both Los Angeles and Shrewsbury, the town in England where her grandparents live, as her home towns. She has dual citizenship, and she expects to split her time between the two countries in the future. When she's in England, she speaks King's English; here, she speaks like a typical American girl.



Though Miss Yarlett's first acting role was on the syndicated soap "Rituals," her role as the youngest of the two Colby daughters is a much bigger and more exciting role. She can't wait until later this spring, when "The Colbys" is expected to begin running on TV in England. That will be the first time her English relatives will have a chance to see her in action. But they probably won't recognize her without an English accent.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Keeping 'Magic' on involves some magic

By Frank Lovece

Richard Levinson and William Link, like Burns and Allen, Rodgers and Hammerstein and Cheech and Chong, are joined at the hip. They lecture together, write books together and create TV series together, such as the classic "Columbo," the current CBS hit "Murder, She Wrote" and the new NBC series "Blacke's Magic," starring Hal Linden. They've also written and produced such TV movies as "My Sweet Charlie," "Crisis at Central High," "The Execution of Private Slovik" and the upcoming "Hoax."

Hal Linden

Levinson — even when Link is missing — is happy to talk about "Blacke's Magic." As a co-creator with Link and producer Peter Fischer, Levinson is a "creative consultant," which means, he says playfully, "that Peter does all the work while Bill and I backseat-drive."

"Peter's an old friend," Levinson adds. "He was the story editor on 'Columbo' and our producer on (the NBC series) 'Ellery Queen.' He's under contract to Universal as a staff producer and writer, and with Bill and I, he created 'Murder, She Wrote.' When that show became a success — unquestionably because of Angela Lansbury — we decided to strike again while the iron was hot."

The tall, professorial Levinson and the compact Link had been magic buffs since their childhood in Philadephia. "We had this pet idea," Levinson explains, "about a magician who solves crimes that couldn't have happened. We wrote the story, and Peter wrote the teleplay and came up with the title. He's the executive producer. As creative consultants, Bill and I basically read scripts and make suggestions about stories, casting and directors."

Levinson and Link know where they're going in the future. In 1981, they wrote "Stay Tuned," a backstage look at TV. Their next tome, due out in September, is called "Off-Camera: Conversations With the Makers of Prime-time Television." Levinson feels that it faces some challenges getting into print.

"The publishing establishment," he says wryly, "hasn't stumbled onto the fact that there's this thing called television. It's only," he adds with a smile, "what the country does every night."

Natalie Gregory, who starred as Alice in the CBS miniseries "Alice in Wonderland," stars as a 7-year-old girl fighting for her life in the episode of "Amazing Stories" airing Sunday, March 2 on NBC.

Kathleen's wild ride; Tony fights the bull

By Cindy Adams

Kathleen Turner, who endured muck, mire and camel dung for "Jewel of the Nile," just bought herself a $65,000 black Maserati from Steve Kessler's Manhattan showroom. The gas tank hadn't even been refilled when the actress mislaid the car. She exited the Gotham Bar and Grill expecting her driver to fling the door wide open. Forget it. There was no chauffeur. And no car. Dressed in black pants and shirt (her outfit matched the missing car), Kathleen walked around, looking for her set of wheels, before calling the restaurant's maitre d' to ask him if he saw the car. Of course he hadn't.

Kathleen Turner

The black beauty was finally found — mistakenly parked in front of Kathleen's office. Her secretary finally sent it to pick up the actress, who was stranded in a phone booth at Seventh Avenue and 11th Street.

I tell you kids, stardom can be hell.

Erma Bomback is muscling into Neil Simon territory. She's writing a play.... In "Time," the play that opens in London soon, the voice of God will be supplied by Lord Laurence Olivier.... The title of Nancy Walker's planned Broadway show "Back to Broadway" isn't prophetic. It's been postponed indefinitely.

Tony Curtis

Tony Curtis likes it hot — and rough. Not only did the actor just buy an abandoned embassy in Madrid (he's converting it into a hotel), but he's taking bullfighting lessons. And the bull's winning. Tony was tossed on his tush recently, which takes care of whatever bull he was trying to throw.

Hey Mare! Val is back in new comedy series

By Marc Minnelli

Peter Allen was right. Everything old is new again. First Mary Tyler Moore — after an absence of six years — returned to the small screen. ("Mary" will air again weekly on CBS beginning Tuesday, March 25.)

Valerie Harper

Now it's Valerie Harper's turn. Miss Harper, best-known for her role as pudgy, perky Rhoda Morgenstern on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and later, "Rhoda," returns in the new series "Valerie." The actress portrays Valerie Hogan, a working mother trying to raise three teenage children while her pilot-husband flies the friendly skies. Jason Bateman ("It's Your Move") plays Miss Harper's eldest son, David.

Though a special sneak-preview of the series aired last week, "Valerie" officially premieres Monday, March 3 on NBC.

"I didn't want to come back to television playing a Bavarian princess or an Australian governess," explains the 45-year-old actress. "After nine years of being on the air, people know Rhoda's sensibilities, and I didn't want to stretch myself too far into left field. My new character is what Rhoda would be like if she were more centered and less neurotic," adds Miss Harper. "Valerie is Rhoda after years of therapy."

Although her role is not as intense as the ones she's portrayed in such recent dramatic TV fare as "The Shadow Box" and "The Execution," Miss Harper claims she did homework for her role as Miss Hogan.

"I was in the supermarket one day and began speaking with this woman," she recalls. "When I found out she was a pilot's wife, I quickly asked her for her phone number." That chance meeting lead to Miss Harper speaking with five other pilots' wives, an experience that she says was enlightening.

"They told me the most personal and shocking things about their marriages," the actress remembers. "Every one of them told me that people automatically assume their husbands are fooling around while they're away. The wives close their ears to remarks like that," adds Miss Harper, "but it's stuff like this that we use to make my show more real."

Role cheerfully leaves Grammer in the pink

By Gillian George

Some actors don't like discussing the characters they play, fearing that they'll lose the dramatic insight they've strived to achieve. Kelsey Grammer, who plays psychiatrist Frasier Crane on "Cheers," is an exception.

Kelsey Grammer

The 30-year-old actor loves talking about daffy Frasier, especially since his character's heart was broken when Diane (Shelley Long) dumped him.

"Frasier's practice has pretty much gone to hell," the actor says cheerfully. "He still has a good heart in his over-educated way, and that makes him the butt of jokes in the bar.

"But now that his relationship with Diane is history, Frasier has loosened up considerably. He's actually been falling apart — sweeping the floors to pay his bar tab. I think he's changing for the better."

Grammer says his last remark applies to his own character and career as well. Despite the fact that his three-year marriage to dancer/actress Doreen Alderman ended recently, he's spending a fair amount of time with his two-year-old son, Spencer.

"No matter how you cut it," he says with obvious relish, "My life now is a far cry from my theatrical beginnings. My actual theatrical debut was staining floors. It was good luck that I got friendly with the casting director, and when he went out to the Old Globe Theatre in San Diego, he sent for me.

"The only way I could afford to get across the country was on my Honda 750cc, and I had a four-day deadline. But I managed it, even though I could barely walk for a few days."

Grammer spent the next three years in San Diego. In 1978, he moved to New York, working on such off-Broadway shows as "Plenty," "A Month in the Country," "Macbeth" and "Quartermaine's Terms." It was his impressive work in the James Earl Jones-Christopher Plummer Broadway production of "Othello" that brought him to the attention of people who would later be involved in casting "Cheers."

"I always say that 'Cheers' rescued me," says Grammer. "Because after all that Shakespeare, I was doing a soap to earn some money and I wasn't very happy.

"I played a bizarre doctor on 'Another World' who went around preventing people from being poisoned."

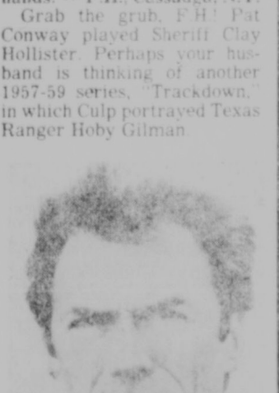
The hair color is lighter and the body is thinner, but Valerie Harper is still a familiar small-screen favorite. This week, the actress returns to TV in "Valerie," a new sitcom officially premiering Monday, March 3 on NBC. Jason Bateman co-stars as Miss Harper's eldest son David.

ASK ME ABOUT TV

By Val Carew

I recently read that John Karlen, the actor who portrays Tyne Daly's husband on "Cagney and Lacey," served in the Air Force nearly 31 years ago. I was stationed with a man who resembled Karlen; someone who insisted he was going to become an actor one day. I'd like to write Karlen to see if it's the same person. Help! — T.M.J., Fall River, Mass.

John Karlen



I'm always eager to help a man who fought for our country! You can write to the actor c/o of the CBS series, 2630 Lacy St., Los Angeles, CA 90031. Good luck!

Some time ago you printed an address where Clint Eastwood fans could write to the actor. I misplaced that address, and I'd love you to run it again. — S.B., Mount Pleasant, Va.

Letters can be sent to Eastwood c/o of his production company, Malpaso Productions, The Burbank Studios, Burbank, CA 91505.

My husband and I are having a fight. He insists that Robert Culp starred as the sheriff on the 1957-59 series "Tombstone Territory." I keep telling the knucklehead he's wrong. The loser has to treat the winner to a five-course dinner at Wendy's. Well, Val, my grumbling stomach lies in your hands. — F.H., Cassadga, N.Y.

Grab the grub, F.H.! Pat Conway played Sheriff Clay Hollister. Perhaps your husband is thinking of another 1957-59 series, "Trackdown," in which Culp portrayed Texas Ranger Hoby Gilman.

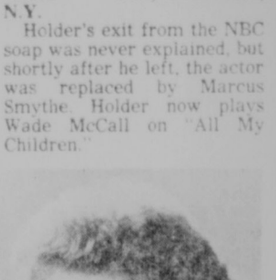
All about Eileen's glittery background

By Kimberly Redmond

I'm a longtime fan of "The Young and the Restless," and I especially enjoy the character of Ashley Abbott, who is portrayed by Eileen Davidson. What can you tell me about the actress? — B.G., Levittown, Pa.

Eileen Davidson



Miss Davidson is engaged to former "Glitter" star Christopher Mayer. The actress was raised in a middle-class suburb of Los Angeles and became interested in acting while in college. After dropping out of college, she worked as an office cleaning lady, a taxi-driver and as a high-fashion model. The role of Ashley is Miss Davidson's only soap opera role, but she has appeared in the films "Seven Sisters," "Growing Up" and "The Witch." She was seen in the TV movie "The Phoenix."

Can you tell me if Gregg Marx and Hillary Bailey, the actor and actress who portray Tom and Margo Hughes on "As the World Turns," are married to each other in real life? — T.F., Thomasville, Ga.

Although Marx and Miss Bailey have a wonderful on-screen marriage, they aren't married to each other off-screen. Marx is single and Miss Bailey and her husband, Phillip Smith, became parents of a girl, Courtney, on Jan. 27.

What happened to Christopher Holder, the actor who played Peter Love on "Another World"? — C.B., New York, N.Y.

Holder's exit from the NBC soap was never explained, but shortly after he left, the actor was replaced by Marcus Smythe. Holder now plays Wade McCall on "All My Children."

12 MOVIE: 'Track the Man Down'

Will Livvy's fans still honestly love her?

By Marianne Meyer

You can almost hear Mr. and Mrs. Middle America gasp in shocked disbelief — Olivia Newton-John doesn't just get physical on her "Soul Kiss" video (MCA Home Video, $19.95), she gets absolutely naughty. Could this really be the Australian white-bread wonder decked out in skimpy red lingerie and slithering over rumpled bed linens in the clip's title track? And who would think that the dewy innocent of "Grease" would ever sing a song like "Culture Shock," tarted up in her best Pat Benatar hand-me-downs and warbling the merits of a menage a trois?

Olivia Newton-John

While one can't begrudge a performer for trying to break away from an old, possibly outdated image, the selling of Miss Newton-John as a steamy temptress in this five-song home cassette provides more than its intended share of camp laughter. Director David Mallet can't seem to restrain himself to being merely sensual — unless you call the bikini-clad hunks and shooting jets of steam subtle touches. And even as a tune like "Toughen Up" strives for a light comic touch, the sight of the once-lively Livvy in black boots and wielding a riding crop makes her more a hoot than a hot number.

Sorry, Olivia, but even high-cost, low-cut wardrobes and Helmut Newton photography can't turn a songbird into a sex kitten overnight. "Soul Kiss" may get Washington wife Tipper Gore hot under the collar, but for the rest of us, this video is all fizzle and no sizzle.

MOVIE MATES — Principal photography began on Jan. 20 for "Shanghai Surprise," the action-adventure romance starring Sean and Mrs. Madonna Penn. Former Beatle George Harrison is one of the film's executive producers. The film is set in the mysterious and chaotic city during the '30s, and according to advance publicity, Penn portrays "a sharp-witted and fairly honorable American fortune hunter," while Lady Madonna is the "beautiful and very honorable missionary who recruits him to unearth a legendary cache of stolen opium."

No one could accuse these two of being typecast.

A friend of ours is worried about the drug scene . . . and vandalism . . . and what he calls "eroding moral standards." He asked some questions we'll pass on to you.

Does it make a difference if parents have firm principles and values they want to transmit to and through their children?

Does it make a difference if boys and girls from the earliest ages are involved in the program of religious education provided by our churches?

Is the message of God's concern and man's responsibility made clearer when parents bring rather than send their youngsters to church?

Will it be a better world if we all strive to be the kind of folks God wants His children to be?

BE HONEST WITH YOUR HEALTH

Too often, people will try to convince themselves that very evident symptoms of an illness do not really exist or will disappear if they will just forget about them. This type of attitude can only lead to more serious problems in the long run. A disease in its earliest stages is usually much easier to treat and cure.

Never be afraid to find out about something that is bothering you. Most often your doctor will be able to diagnose your problem quickly. Then, not only will you be feeling better physically but you will have great mental relief as well.

A LIVING HOPE

March 2, 1986

Background Scripture: 1 Peter 1:1 through 2:10.
Devotional Reading: 2 Corinthians 5:1-9.

In November of last year, 700 people attended a standing-room-only symposium on "Consciousness and Survival," an exploration of life after physical death. What made this symposium so significant was that it was held in Washington, D.C. on the campus of Georgetown University and included in its sponsorship and program a number of prominent figures in political life, religion and science. One of the symposium organizers, Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island, was commended for his participation by the Senate minority leader, Sen. Robert Byrd, and the Washington Post account of the meeting was voted by the Senate for inclusion in the Congressional Record.

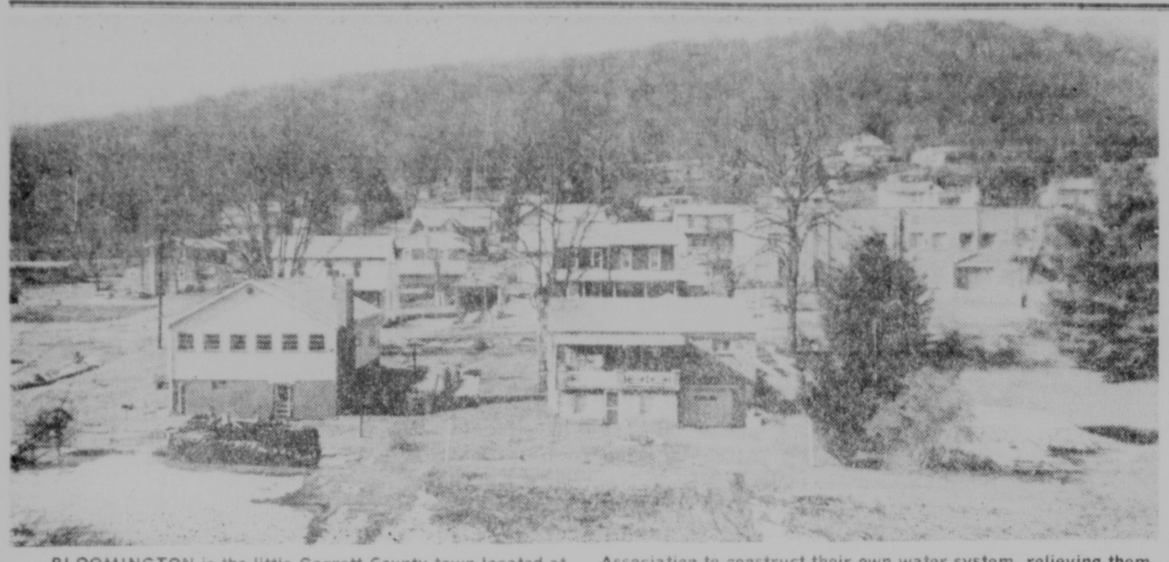
IMPERISHABLE

Although the symposium members did not attempt to arrive at any kind of consensus on the subject, the fact that so many people from so many different walks of life came together to discuss the subject indicates that there is a spiritual quest and current in our world that perhaps we tend to underestimate and overlook. This is an era in which millions of people are searching for a hope that does not wither and decay as our social, economic and political institutions and structures do. People are seeking a living hope.

It is this timeless concern to which the first Epistle of Peter was addressed. Writing to the Christians in northern Asia Minor who were either facing or undergoing severe persecution, the writer of 1 Peter brought to these people a message of encouragement and hope in the midst of an ominous situation: "By this great mercy we have been born anew to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and to an inheritance which is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading..." (1:3,4).

And precisely what is the nature of that imperishable hope he proclaimed? Note that he did not promise that the persecution would soon be over. Nor did he suggest that they would be spared from having to suffer as Christians for their faith. So what kind of hope is that? What kind of confidence can that bring us?

FAITH'S OUTCOME



Actually, the very best of all hopes! "As the outcome of your faith you obtain the salvation of your souls" (1:9). These bodies of ours cannot be sustained forever. The lives we live, no matter how we cling to them, will flicker out sooner or later. The things we build will crumble and turn to dust. We are not saved from the fact of death, but from the consequence of it. Although our bodies perish, if our souls are saved by a loving God, then nothing in this world can take away from us the inheritance that God has prepared for us in his other world.

It may be, as Peter writes, that "now for a little while you may have to suffer various trials," but in time we will be "born anew, not of perishable seed, but of imperishable..." (1:23).

Cross-Lites says

"Jesus the Christ died, was buried and raised by God himself from the dead. Think about it; act on it."

BLOOMINGTON is the little Garrett County town located at the foot of the mountain, beside the Savage River. Its residents have spent years working through the Bloomington Improvement Association to construct their own water system, relieving them from a very limited supply of water and dependence on the Westernport system.

Bloomington's Quest For Water Was A Real Community Affair

by Bernice Kepple

Water is one of our most important resources. We need water to drink, to take a bath, to wash our car, to clean our house, to put out a fire, and the uses go on and on. And the fact is, we never know just how much we need it until we have to do without it.

Talk to the people in Bloomington about water, and they'll tell you what it's like to be without, and how much that memory makes them appreciate the good water they have since the town's new water system went into operation this spring.

"If anybody in town had a white shirt, it was brand new," said a Bloomington resident at a recent meeting of the Bloomington Improvement Association. "Same way with a uniform, when you had a white one, it was a new one," added another resident. "They didn't stay that way for long. I don't have any white shirts, I gave up buying white a long time ago," the same person said.

Why? "Everything you owned that was white soon turned a beautiful beige color," the first resident explained. "Drink it! We couldn't drink it," she went on. "When it came up a hard rain, or especially when they had the white water races, everyone in town would get dirty water."

Bloomington Improvement Association President William Reed remembers something worse—the times there was no water at all. "One winter all the water lines froze up when Westernport cut us off because they needed the water. They had a right to do that, but that's why we got a water system, we wanted some rights too."

Bloomington, a little town beside the Savage River, has a long history of water problems. The town's water was originally supplied by the Old Bloomington Water Company. The old water company had no storage, no volume of water and no water pressure. The pipes were all old, and made the water rusty and dirty brown.

"The Old Bloomington Water Company had a charter with the state giving them rights to water out of the Savage River Dam," explained Reed. "Then Piedmont built a small reservoir part way up the river, and we got water from them until they stopped chlorinating it or anything, then we started getting it from Westernport."

The town of Westernport, then and now, pipes their water from the Savage River Dam. During the time Bloomington bought water from Westernport, the town's line crossed the river and connected with the Westernport line. "At times we only had enough pressure to get water half way up the hill," said Reed. "Some citizens in town got the idea that we needed a better waste system so we started the Bloomington Improvement Association."

By that time the state was beginning to demand that the town's water be filtered as well as chlorinated, so it was time for Bloomington residents to be thinking of a new water system. Reed, explaining the progress of the Improvement Association, said: "The Old Bloomington Water Company was privately owned and had a charter with the town. When we started the association, we couldn't get a charter because they already had it, so they turned their charter over to us.

"We began the organization process in 1971, with bylaws and a 40-year loan from FmHA," said Reed. "When we went to FmHA for information and a loan, they required signatures so we had to go around town and get signatures."

Frances Beard, the current secretary of the Bloomington Improvement Association, said that there has always been good cooperation between the town's residents where the water system is concerned. The group agreed that probably 98 percent of the citizens are pleased with the new system.

"Everyone in town who is getting water is a part of this association," Beard said. We have an election annually, with officers serving a two-year term. It's open to the whole community and everyone has an opportunity to come and serve—it's their choice."

Each year six new directors go on and six go off the board.

"There have been quite a few people in town who have been involved," Beard explained. Reed, who was elected in September, is the fourth president to serve since the first election in 1977. The other presidents who have served were Donald Harvey, Claude Lipscomb, and William Bever.

Others holding office this term include William Bever, vice president; Frances Beard, secretary; and Harry Harvey, treasurer. The current board of directors numbers 12: Louise Warnick, Floyd Paugh, Kenneth Kooken, Francis Wilt, Alice Howard, Agnes Riggs, Charles Pattison, Paul Streets, Donald Harvey, Louise K. Mills, Delores Boal, and Kenneth Bantz.

"It's been a lot of long hours of meetings and learning, and all volunteer work," the association's secretary said. "For instance, Louise (Warnick) does the billing." And was it worth it? "It sure was," two or three of the directors answer at once. "The water quality and pressure are super now. Super, compared to what we lived with for years."

The directors of the Improvement Association all say that Edgar Harman, of the Garrett County Health Department, was extremely helpful throughout the long process. "When we had water problems here, he was very supportive," one of the officers said. "I think he's as happy with this as we are, because he knew the situation, he knew what we were going through."

Harman had praise for the town in return. "There were a lot of problems before the system was installed," he said. "And you can't put in a new water system over night. It's been a long, drawn out process." He said that the town's lack of water was certainly something real. "The school had a lot of trouble because of the lack of water. The principal had to haul water from Luke for the school many times."

Harman explained that the Old Bloomington Water System was privately owned, and the owner was stymied because he couldn't borrow money to improve the system and he couldn't get a grant. The town started buying water from Westernport because they had no choice, but the agreement made it clear that Westernport had the right to shut off the water to Bloomington if there was not enough for both towns.

He went on to explain that some private wells were drilled in Bloomington, but they provided bad water with a high iron content, so that was not the answer either. He also said that because the water bought from Westernport traveled through the old pipes throughout Bloomington, it picked up an iron content from those pipes. "It was a good move for the town to decide to get its own water system," said Harman. "It was badly needed."

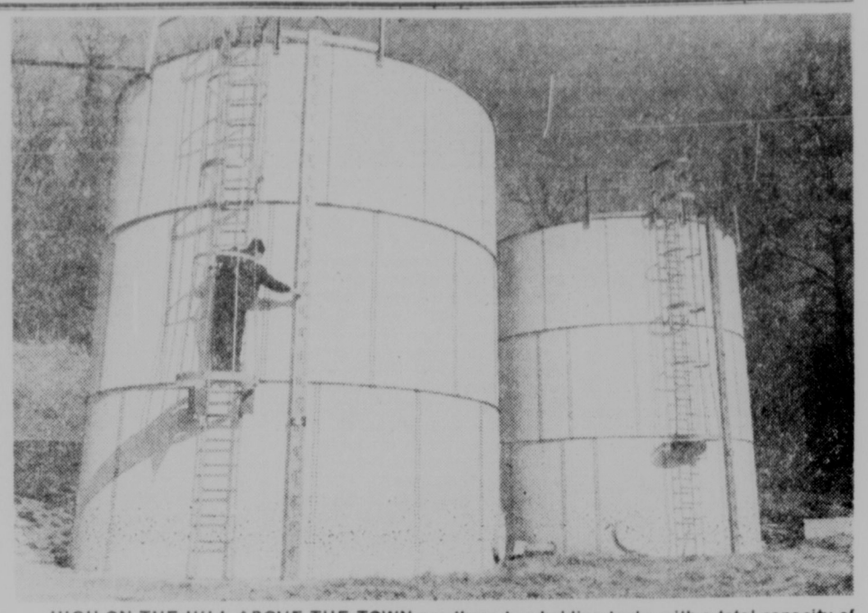
So the town of Bloomington installed its own water system at a total cost of one-and-a-half-million dollars. Western Maryland Associates was the engineer for the project, and along with a new intake system, a treatment plant and two large holding tanks, all new water lines were installed throughout the town.

When asked about the cost of the new system to the town's residents compared to buying water from Westernport, Reed said that the cost is about the same or maybe a little higher, but explained that 12 new fire hydrants and the availability of water have lowered the cost of fire insurance in Bloomington. "That kind of makes up a little of the difference of what it cost us before and what it's costing us now," he said.

The New System

As progress on the new water system continued, construction began on the treatment plant and Paul Streets, who lives in Bloomington, was hired as the plant operator. Streets credits his early training and his interest in water treatment to Don Harvey, who works at Westvaco's filtration plant. "I was always interested in what Don was doing," said Streets. "He told me that water was really a fascinating thing; you turn the faucet on and water comes out, but it has gone through many changes before reaching you. It was really interesting, so when I was offered this job in Bloomington, I thought I'd give it a try."

In order to become certified, Streets took a course at Garrett Community College in waste water treatment, along with a year of training. He followed that up with courses in the water treatment process and water filtration plants at Allegany Community College. Another course at ACC certified him for his water sampler's license, and he is now, after four years training, waiting for the state to test him for his Class II license for full treatment plant operation. Because of a delay on the part of the state, Streets has earned two years of college credits in return for an extra two years of training he has put in while waiting to be tested. He has been told that the test will finally be available this spring, so he plans to take his superintendent's exam at the same time.



In the meantime work on the water system continued, and last spring the system was completed and the water was turned on. Immediately a problem was discovered. "People began calling and saying that their water had an odor," said Streets. "The water tested normal but there was an odor, especially when heated."

The town still had the Westernport system available, so Streets shut down the new system and began flushing it out. "The state had sampled the water before, and everything was fine," Streets said, "we were really stumped." Health Department tests showed sulfate, causing an odor when heated, and manganese, causing a black discoloration when heated. Some of this proved to be coming from a coating on the new water lines, but there was still a mystery involved until a leak was discovered in the intake line which was letting in ground water. The intake line was replaced, the system was flushed and turned on again and has been working well ever since.

Edgar Harman of the Garrett County Health Department commended Streets on acting quickly to shut the system down. "He's really on top of things," said Harman. "He's a person who uses good sound judgment and will find out why before he goes on."

Both Streets and the water system were tested again during the November flood. The of-

HIGH ON THE HILL ABOVE THE TOWN are these two holding tanks with a total capacity of 120,000 gallons. Bloomington's 121 customers use an average of 20,000 gallons of water each day. Each and every customer is a member of the Bloomington Improvement Association and has the opportunity to serve as an officer or director. These tanks hold the treated water which is ready for use by the townspeople. To measure the amount of water in the tank, a down-pointing arrow shows the water's height in feet. This is confusing though, because as the water level goes up, the arrow goes down. The arrow, which is just below the level of Street's feet in the picture, shows 18 feet of water in that tank at the time the photo was taken.

A LOT OF HI-TECH EQUIPMENT is needed to test and treat the water. With the equipment in the foreground, Operator Paul Streets tests the chemical content of the water. The small box near Streets' right elbow is a turbidimely meter, which came with a price tag of $2,500. This meter reveals anything suspended in the treated water. Turbidity must be kept under one part per million. According to Streets, the Swedish system has many good qualities. Water fills its floculation tank from both the top and the bottom and circulates around three different levels giving the chemicals time to get into the water. The water moves from there into the Lamella gravity settler which is also divided into thirds. Dirt particles are settled out and flushed into sediment tanks outside the building. The clear water on the top goes into the filter. In most systems, water goes into the top of the filter and settles down through the sand, making it necessary to put water into the bottom to clean the filter. The Swedish system, though, uses air pressure and puts water from the bottom through the sand to the top of the filter, keeping the filter sand clean at all times. After being tested, the treated water goes through a two-inch pipe into the two large holding tanks. Future plans include another building close to the present building to provide room for an office area to store records, and an area to store the chemicals needed in the treatment process.

CLEAR AS GLASS is how this water sample looks after being filtered and treated, before it is piped into the holding tanks. Plant Operator Paul Streets takes regular samples and sends reports to the State Health Department and the Army Corps of Engineers. The treatment system was designed in Sweden, and as of two years ago was the only one of its kind in Maryland. The plant is now treating 37,500 gallons of water in a 24-hour period. Under real favorable conditions, it is capable of treating 40,000 gallons in 24 hours. Chlorine and potassium are added to the water to control iron and manganese, and the water's Ph content is regulated as the water comes into the treatment plant from the 3,000 gallon surge chamber, or holding tank, in the ground near the building. That surge chamber holds the raw water which is pumped up from the river. Floats in the surge chamber tell the pumps when to come on through a control panel in the plant. The line coming up from the river to the surge chamber is complete with a check valve to prevent water from running back down the hill when the pump turns off.

DOWN BY THE RIVERSIDE is a small shed containing two pumps which pump 90-gallons of water each minute to the treatment plant on the hill above Bloomington. Treatment Plant Operator Paul Streets is shown checking the pumps during a recent cold spell. Heavy insulation around all the pipes in the shed protect them from the freezing cold. Streets takes regular meter readings, checks the flow (gallons per minute), and makes sure the pumps are operating right. The pumps run alternately, and each pump can be run manually to act as a backup if something happens to the other. The intake pipe in the river draws water into a 22-foot deep holding tank under the pump shed which keeps an average of 12-feet of water in it at all times.

Animal Rights Activists Represent Serious Threat To Veal Industry

by Bernice Kepple

There are 23 veal growers in Garrett County. The veal industry is ideal for the mountain areas of Western Maryland, West Virginia, and Southwestern Pennsylvania where the growing season is short and farmers need an alternative or an additional income. However, the industry is under such a threat from so many animal rights activists that none of the growers interviewed in the tri-state area, or the location of their farms will be named in this article.

The veal industry is an economic boom to Garrett County, where 2,300 stalls are in use with another 700 expected to be in use by the end of this year. Those stalls have the potential of producing three crops of veal calves per year generating $29,325,000 total gross income for the county's veal growers.

Veal growing is fairly new to the United States, and Americans eat only a quarter of the amount of veal the average Italian eats annually. One report states that this may be because most veal on supermarket meat counters is really baby beef, four to 12 months old when butchered; true veal is under four months of age. Baby beef is tougher, fatter, and less delicately flavored than the younger products to which the Europeans have become accustomed. European methods of veal growing were introduced into this country about 20 years ago, but only in the last 10 years has the industry developed to its current level of productivity.

Along with an economic boom to this area came job opportunities. In addition to the 23 growers, the jobs include four feed store employees, one local calf buyer, two truck drivers, and between 85 and 90 employees of Yoders Meat Packers, who do custom slaughtering for the growers in the tri-state area. This means a total of 120 people would be dumped on the already depressed job market in this area if the veal industry was forced to close down.

The veal industry also gives dairy farmers an outlet to sell bull calves and unwanted heifer calves. One veal grower remembers that 10 to 12 years ago the top price paid for a bull calf was $20. Because of a higher demand today, bull calves are bringing between $75 and $100.

Large quanities of surplus skim milk are purchased from the government for use in veal calf feed, thus helping to deplete some of that surplus which is one of the biggest problems facing the dairy industry today.

Each new veal grower gives the local economy another kick in the pants by investing around $30,000 in a barn. And finally, more than half of the veal feed sold locally is exported out of the county; and all the calves, after being slaughtered and dressed, are shipped from Yoders out of the state, bringing all of that revenue into the area.

This all sounds great. So what, then, is the threat? About 100 loose-knit groups of animal rights advocates scattered around the country, many of them with budgets of over a million dollars for the specific purpose of putting veal growers out of business, and no one seems to know where they will strike next.

Just who are animal rights advocates? One animal rights publication conducted its own readership survey and found that 74 percent of its readers responding were vegetarians. Only 26 percent were not vegetarians although, according to the magazine, "many people in this latter group were moving toward vegetarianism."

Respondents tended toward the left side of the political spectrum. Only about seven percent described themselves as conservative; 22 percent moderate; and 34 percent, liberal. Fully 32 percent considered themselves to be radical.

In relation to occupation, 47 percent listed their occupation as professional, while another seven percent indicated they were in the business-management category.

The magazine went on to say, "Our readership, and perhaps our entire movement, is overwhelmingly white, middle class, educated urban women. Ninety-nine percent of our respondents are white, 80 percent live in urban or suburban areas and 70 percent are female. Fully 50 percent indicated they held agnostic or atheist beliefs."

So what do these people know about caring for farm animals, and just what are their concerns and complaints? Perhaps their biggest complaint is against confinement farming, which they call "factory farming." Most veal calves are raised in confinement, which has brought the activists down upon them. They also have complaints about the way these calves are fed. Take for example the lawsuit filed against Provimi Veal Corporation by the group called the Animal Legal Defense Fund.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, which strongly supports and works for veal growers, feels that Provimi was singled out because they are not a large firm with a lot of resources to fight with. The firm is not so small, though, that it wouldn't seriously harm the industry if the Animal Legal Defense Fund wins.

The suit charged Provimi with unethical and inhumane treatment of calves pointing out to the court that a number of agricultural operators (farmers) use Provimi's veal calf milk replacer for the express purpose of turning young calves into gourmet delicacies. The suit goes on to point out that Provimi's patented formula includes antibiotics and other special supplements which result in the faster and more efficient growth of veal calves and helps to produce the unique texture and taste consumers want in their veal.

The Legal Defense Fund says that feeding the little calves this formula for the purpose of developing a saleable food commodity constitutes unethical and inhumane treatment and they have asked a Massachusetts court to issue a permanent injunction against Provimi to stop the production and use of their nutritional supplement.

Unethical and inhumane treatment, these calves are cared for by farmers, and no one has greater concern for the care of farm animals than the farmer who raises them! Fortunately, the case against Provimi was dismissed early this month, but unfortunately an appeal is expected.

Veal calves raised in confinement are purchased when they are about one-week old and weigh 100 pounds. One grower who has been in the industry for nine years and has 312 stalls, buys his calves within 150 miles and two-hours driving time of his farm. "We are very picky about how our calves are hauled," he said. "We are careful that they are not pushed, kicked, or hit when being loaded or unloaded, and if one comes flying off the truck, that driver will never haul for us again. We make sure that there is lots of straw bedding and the calves are comfortable."

He went on to explain that before the calves reach the farm "We make sure the barns are well heated and dry. As soon as the calves are unloaded they are given a warm solution of vitamins and dextrose to rehydrate them. It makes them feel good."

Another grower, who was one of the first in the area to go into the industry 15 years ago, said "There is only one way to raise calves—in stalls." His barn has 65 stalls, and he feels that his calves get more personal attention and care by being in confinement.

Both growers keep the calves for 16 weeks. In that time, the calves have gained between 250 and 300 pounds. The barns are heated to 65 or 70 degrees when the calves are started and dropped to around 60 degrees as they get older. The barns are well ventilated, cleaned and washed down each day. The calves are given individual attention, fed twice a day, and checked on two or three times every day.

"If you don't take care of the calves that way they're not going to grow and be right. They can't gain 250 pounds of weight in 15 or 16 weeks and not be healthy, happy calves," said one of the growers.

After the calves are sold, the stalls, and in fact the whole barn, is scrubbed and disinfected. The barn is kept empty, then, for two to three weeks before the next batch of calves is delivered to prevent any possible health problems.

What then are the concerns of the animal rights activists? The size of the stalls seems to be one of their most-heard complaints. Most growers use stalls that are between two and three feet wide and five and six feet long. The calves tied in these stalls have room to lie down comfortably, eat, and lick and nudge the calves next to them.

The animal rights activists contend that the calves do not have enough room to "lie down and stretch out comfortably." They must lie down with their "legs cramped up in under them." Apparently they don't know that the calves would lay with their "legs cramped up in under them" if they were in a 40-acre pasture.

Another complaint is that the meat is high in antibiotics, however, tests have proved the meat to be drug free at the time of slaughter, and no hormones are used in the formula.

The calves are fed a naturally made milk replacer complete with added vitamins. "We have a list of approved medications we can use," said one of the growers. "We use electrolytes and beneficial bacteria to cut down on the amount of drugs needed." He explained that the veal industry conducts on-going research to accomplish this, and has been for years. One text used in the study of health and nutrition is "The Calf" by J. H. Roy which was published in 1955.

One other complaint is that the calves have no natural contact with others of their kind. This is proved wrong by one of the problems veal growers have. Calves naturally lick themselves and each other. If the hair coat is not healthy, hair will pull out and form "hair balls" which are ingested by the calf and clog up its internal system possibly killing the calf. To guard against this, growers add vitamins and cod liver oil to the milk to tighten up the hair, and to make it healthy so it won't shed. The oil also acts as an internal lubricant so that the "hair ball" passes on through the calf.

Animal Rights Activists do not limit themselves to the veal industry. This is one of the most far-reaching issues for the entire livestock industry. Activists argue that pigs can't root around or groom each other, and that it is cruel to keep sows in farrowing pens. Do they know that if that sow was kept in the same pen as her litter she would probably lay on and smother half of them.

They say that chickens can't scratch around the barnyard, but have they thought about the diseases chickens are prone to when they are free to roam. Some eggs being sold in the Chicago area are produced by chickens that are reared in the free-ranging method much the way eggs were produced 30 years ago. These eggs sell for $1.98 a dozen and reflect the price consumers may have to pay for food should any of the present methods of food production be banned or regulated.

These activists also yield considerable political clout and have gained momentum through the years. Chairman of the National Trade Association for Manufacturers of Animal Health Products James C. DeCesare Jr., made a study of the situation. He reported that from 1979 through 1983 about 50 bills pertaining to animal rights were introduced in state legislatures. "But in just the first two months of 1984, some 78 bills were introduced!"

Animal rights advocates ignore the fact that the best indication of the welfare of food-producing animals is productivity, he said. Over the years the productivity—and welfare—of livestock has increased dramatically. He pointed to some examples reported by the Council for Argiculatural Science and Technology.

From 1950 to 1980, the productivity of breeding animals increased 55 percent.

During the last 30 years, the amount of milk produced per cow has doubled.

Since the 1930's, egg production per hen has doubled, and time needed to fatten a broiler chicken has been cut in half.

In the Maryland legislature, a bill demanding that veal calves be raised in stalls no smaller than six feet by six feet was reviewed by the House of Delegates Environmental Matters Committee on Tuesday, and the animal rights activists were there in force. They say that the nation is looking at Maryland, and they want to make Maryland an example. They feel that the income generated by the state's veal industry is not great enough to stop them.

In a conversation with Jack Miller, legislative lobbyist for the Maryland Farm Bureau, he said that no vote was taken by the committee at this time and he hopes this can "be nipped in the bud." He will work to convince the committee members that this will have a great impact, and that the bill should be killed. Miller says that it wouldn't hurt if veal growers contacted the committee chairman, Del. Larry Young, by calling 1-800-492-7122, extension 3534, and explain their feelings on the matter.

THE VEAL INDUSTRY is being threatened by animal rights activists because they feel it's cruel to keep calves in confinement housing where they get a lot of personel attention, are fed twice a day, have other calves for company, and a clean, heated, ventilated barn to live in. The growers feel that the stalls give the calves ample room to lie down and to grow. Although the activists feel that the growers are not giving the calves humane treatment, the growers contend that no farmer can continue to be successful if he does not treat his livestock humanely by minimizing stress, providing good feed and shelter, and by maintaining good sanitation and veterinary care, and that no one has greater concern for the care of farm animals than the farmer who raises them.

Over the past decades American livestock and poultry farmers have provided the consumer with an unrivaled choice of quality foods at affordable prices. The animal rights movement seeks to disrupt the U.S. food producing economy to satisfy its own philosophical beliefs, and many feel that their ultimate goal is to stop people from eating animals entirely.

To bring together major farm animal associations concerned by the attacks from the animal rights movement on farmers, the Farm Animal Welfare Coalition (FAWC) has been organized.

This coalition's purpose is to unite all farm organizations; study public opinion, attitudes and knowledge about farm practices and modern farming technology; and educate the consumer, public officials, media and others about the farmers' essential concern for the well being of their animals and the production of safe, low-cost food.

Some of the veal growers feel that the animal rights activists need to go hungry for awhile to appreciate what's available to them in the way of farm products.

"But maybe all that the activisits need is a lot of education and just a normal amount of common sense," concluded one local farmer.

Cattle Numbers Down

All cattle and calves in Maryland on January 1 were estimated at 370,000 head, down five percent from last year, according to the Maryland Crop Reporting Service. The number of all cows that calved during 1985, at 195,000, decreased two percent compared to the previous year. The number of beef cows in the state at 71,000 head, decreased 10 percent from a year ago, while dairy cow numbers, at 124,000, increased two percent.

Cattle on farms on January 1 in Maryland were valued at $214.6 million, down three percent compared to last year. The cows decreased four percent from a year ago, while the number of farms having any cattle during the year remained unchanged at 1,800. The 1985 calf crop in Maryland is estimated at 175,000 head, down three percent from 1984's calf crop.

Grain Stocks Reported

As of January 1, corn stocks in Maryland held in all positions and totaled 45.7 million bushels, up six percent from 1985. Stocks of corn held off farms at 24.6 million made up 54 percent of the total and was 10 percent above last year's 22.4 million bushels stored off farms.

On-farm storage of corn totaled 21.1 million bushels on January 1, 46 percent of the total and one percent above last year's 20.9 million bushels on-farms.

Oats stocks in all positions totaled 397,000 bushels, two percent above that stored a year earlier. On farm storage of oats totaled 297,000 bushels and off-farm 100,000 bushels.

Bloomington

ficers and directors of the Improvement Association commended him for the "great job he did in handling the system to provide the town with clear and safe water during the period of high water November 4 and 5, 1985." As one officer put it, "Our plant was not equipped to handle the turbidity (sediment) caused by such high water, but with Paul's close monitoring of the plant—making modifications on chemical injection into the system—he was able to supply us with clear and safe water for the week the water was so high."

All the officers said that they appreciated his dedication and the hours he spends beyond those specified for his job. "He does full time and then some," one director said. "He does overtime and he doesn't get paid for it."

Yes, the citizens of Bloomington are pleased with the results of their hard work. They are finally able to benefit from all those years of meetings, study, and work, and they're not complaining. As Harman said, "The number of complaints are insignificant now as compared with before the new system."

New Threat

Now, just as Bloomington's residents are getting used to a very adequate supply of water, a new threat is seen on the horizon. Allegany County would like to expand its use of water from the Savage River Dam. At a recent public hearing conducted by the Allegany County Water Commission, Allegany County Commissioner Francis Philpot said that the extension of Westernport's water line to McCoole and Cresaptown would be "the best thing that could happen . . . it would open that whole valley up for residential and industrial development."

The Bloomington Improvement Association is afraid that a withdrawal of that much water from the Savage River Dam would pollute the town's water supply because of old deep mine pollutants flowing in from streams like Aarons Run. "We couldn't afford to clean it up," Reed said.

Speaking for the Garrett County Commissioners, Commissioner Elwood Groves said, "We can see an adverse impact on Bloomington," and he urged the Allegany County Water Commission to "protect the viability of Bloomington's water supply."

Allegany County is going full speed ahead though, and that county's delegation to the General Assembly has introduced a bill in the Maryland House of Delegates which would provide $835,000 in state funds, with a matching fund requirement, to assist Allegany County in funding phase one of the Savage River Water Service Area Project.

So now it's up to Bloomington's citizens, the Garrett County Commissioners, and local state legislators to guard that town's water supply. Commissioner Groves said that Bloomington "worked for years to get what they got, and Allegany County will need to prove through an engineering study that there will be enough water to save the viability of the supply to Bloomington. If they're not willing to do that, the Garrett County Commissioners will oppose them in every way possible."

Delegate George Edwards said that he had expressed his concerns to the Allegany County Commissioners, but doesn't oppose the expansion of the water's use if Allegany County does not disrupt or affect Bloomington's water supply. Although a part of the Allegany County Delegation, Edwards told the delegation that "Bloomington is his first concern."

Meanwhile, people in Bloomington are wearing white clothes again and have almost forgotten what it was like to carry water, but they won't sit back and let that happen to their town again. It's hard to take a good thing away from people who know what they have.

MORTGAGES CAN HELP

Mortgages are the most common way to finance the purchase of a home. Using mortgage financing can mean the difference in owner equity in a home and owning nothing but rent receipts.

People often refer to "paying the mortgage", but actually it isn't the mortgage that is being paid, but rather the promissory note which is secured by the mortgage. In other words, when you give the lender a mortgage you are using your real estate as collateral to guarantee that you will repay the loan as promised.

By the use of mortgage financing many people who would not otherwise be able to afford to purchase their own home may become proud homeowners. Also with mortgage financing you have a deed, in your name, to the property: it belongs to you and no one else. In addition, the interest you pay is tax deductible. Rent payments aren't.

Real estate professionals are experts in helping to arrange mortgage financing for prospective homeowners.

WVU Celebrates Shadow's Birthday

West Virginia University celebrated the first anniversary of a major scientific milestone this month by honoring a yearling heifer, and a score of employees who ushered the animal into the world, with a birthday cake.

WVU Acting President Diane Reinhard, along with animal scientist Keith Inskeep, College of Agriculture and Forestry Dean Robert H. Maxwell, and several researchers, staff workers and students went to the WVU Livestock Farm on the morning of February 3 to share the cake with Shadow, WVU's most famous bovine resident.

The calf was named Shadow by President Reinhard, because the animal was born on February 2, 1985, Groundhog Day, at WVU's Reedsville Experiment Farm in Preston County. The birthday coincided with WVU's Employee Week, and all the employees who assisted with Shadow's development were invited to the celebration.

She was the first calf born by embryo transfer to a cow which had been surgically sterilized by the removal of its ovaries. WVU reproductive physiology researchers implanted an eight-day-old embryo into the uterus of the sterile cow after treating it with hormones to prepare its body for pregnancy.

SHADOW, THE FAMOUS HEIFER AT WVU — WVU Acting President Diane L. Reinhard, who suggested the name Shadow when this heifer was born on Groundhog Day, 1985, visited the university's livestock and dairy farm near Morgantown early this month for the animal's first birthday. Shadow was the world's first calf born by embryo transplant to a cow without ovaries.

In the year since the birth of Shadow, WVU research has continued into the function of hormones and other body chemicals in the reproductive process in cows, Inskeep says. One other calf, Gabriella, was born to a cow without ovaries during the same experiment in which Shadow was born, but no more have been produced to date.

The research is important to the improvement of cattle herds, both in dairy and meat production. Scientists have known for several years how to stimulate cows to produce a half-dozen or more healthy embryos at a time through a process called superovulation. One WVU research cow had produced as many as 32 embryos simultaneously.

By implanting the embryos in cows without ovaries and mimicking the chemical functions of the ovary through hormone treatments, the scientists can study the function of the organ in the survival of embryos in the uterus.

Current research involves adjusting the levels of estrogen and other hormones given to the pregnant cows and in the timing of the treatments. If the research leads to a reliable method of preparing cows for embryo transplants, a higher proportion of the embryos produced by selected cows can be successfully carried to term.

Farmers Given Reminder About "Buyout" Program

Harry W. Hummel, chairman of the Garrett County ASC Committee, reminds county farmers that the sign-up period for the Dairy Termination Program ends March 7.

Dairy producers who are interested in participating in the program must submit a dollars per hundredweight milk bid, based on milk marketed during a base period, and contract to sell all dairy cattle in which they have an interest for slaughter or export.

The ASCS official said contracts signed by program participants will be considered binding and will provide for liquidated damages for failure to comply with program regulations.

Further clarification of the Dairy Termination Program may be obtained by contacting the Garrett County ASCS Office at 334-1901. That office can also provide information on the 1986 acreage reduction programs. Hummel stated that signup for acreage reduction ends April 11.

Corn, Soybeans Set Production Records

Maryland production of corn, soybeans, hay, potatoes, and sweet potatoes was all above 1984 levels with soybeans and corn for grain setting records.

Corn for grain production totaled 70.4 million bushels for 1985, one percent above the previous record set in 1984 when 69.6 million bushels were produced. Acres of corn harvested for grain at 640,000 were 40,000 acres below the record 680,000 acres harvested in 1981. Yield averaged 110 bushels per acre, second only to the record 1984 average yield of 118 bushels per acre, corn silage production totaled 1.53 million tons, four percent above 1984's 1.47 million tons and the fourth largest crop on record. Acreage of corn harvested for silage at 102,000 was 10,000 acres above 1984's 92,000 acres with average yield at 15 tons per acre, one ton below the 1981 and 1984 record yields.

Soybean production totaled 12.80 million bushels, four percent above the previous record of 12.33 million bushels produced in 1984. Soybeans averaged 32 bushels per acre for 1985 tying the record yield of 1978. Acreage of soybeans harvested at 400,000 acres was down six percent from 1984's 425,000 acres.

All hay production totaled 664,000 tons, up five percent from 1984 and the largest total since 1971's 773,000 tons. The yield for all hay was a record 2.89 tons per acre. Harvested acres at 230,000 were equal to their 1984 level. Production of hay other than alfalfa totaled 364,000 tons, eight percent above 1984 but 15 percent below the record 1967 production of 427,000 tons. Acres harvested totaled 155,000 acres, three percent above 1984. Alfalfa hay production for 1985 totaled 300,000 tons, tying the record years of 1958 and 1960 as well as being one percent above 1984's 296,000 tons. Alfalfa hay yielded a record 4.00 tons per acre, 0.3 tons above the previous record yield of 1984. Acreage of alfalfa hay harvested at 75,000 was four percent below 1984.

Potato production at 320,000 hundredweights was eight percent above 1984's 296,000 hundredweights. The 1985 potato crop yielded 200 hundredweights per acre, 15 hundredweights above 1984 while the acreage harvested at 1,600 was unchanged from 1984.

Sweet potato production for 1985 totaled 182,000 hundredweights, three percent above the 1984 production. Sweet potato yields averaged 165 hundredweights per acre, five hundredweights above 1984's. Planted and harvested acres were unchanged from 1984.

United States corn for grain production in 1985 is estimated at a record high 8.87 billion bushels, up 16 percent from last year. The U.S. yield is a record high 118.0 bushels per acre, 11.3 bushels more than last year and 4.8 bushels above the previous record high yield set in 1982.

Soybean production for 1985 is estimated at 2.10 billion bushels, 13 percent more than last year and the third largest crop on record. Area planted, at 63.1 million acres, and area harvested, at 61.6 million acres, are both down seven percent from 1984. Average yield set a new record high at 34.1 bushels per acre, up six bushels from last year.

All hay production in 1985 was 149 million tons, down one percent from last year's record high level. Area harvested in 1985, at 60.6 million acres, is also down one percent from 1984. The U.S. average yield at 2.46 tons per acre is slightly above last year. Alfalfa hay production in 1985 totaled 85.3 million tons compared with 90.1 million tons in 1984. Area harvested in 1985, at 25.7 million acres, is down four percent from last year. All other hay production is estimated at 63.7 million tons in 1985, up five percent from 1984. Area harvested, at 34.9 million acres is up one percent from the previous year. Yields averaged 1.83 tons per acre compared with 1.75 tons per acre in 1984.

Membership Day Scheduled At Southern States

Election of local board members, Farm Home Advisory Committee members and operations reports will be among the highlights of the Southern States Cooperative's membership day for Mtn. Lake Park on March 8.

The event, with the theme being, "Teamwork: always in season," will be held at Southern States Oakland Cooperative beginning at 10 a.m. The business session is slated to start at 12:30 p.m.

"The Membership Day," according to Manager Rex Hoalcraft, will give patrons and members the opportunity to become better acquainted with the cooperative's facilities, products and services. The local election is being held prior to the meeting with members voting by proxy. Members who have not marked their ballot should do so and deposit it in the ballot box prior to the beginning of the meeting. Hoalcraft stated that "all stockholder-members are particularly urged to attend the business session."

Hubert Custer of Deer Park will serve as chairman of the local meeting. Jim K. Stutler, a member of Southern States Cooperative's regional staff, will report on Southern States supply and marketing operations for the 1984-85 fiscal year. His report will also include a slide/tape presentation entitled "Teamwork: always in season." Hoalcraft will discuss local operations and services rendered to agriculture in the community.

There will be a special recognition ceremony for local board and Farm Home Advisory Committee members who retire this year.

Nominees for the local Board of Directors are Charles Mason Jr. and Ellwood Sanders, both of Oakland, and Lee Shillingburg and Sam Steyer, both of Deer Park.

Women nominated for the Farm Home Advisory Committee are Miss Pam Crosco of Deer Park, Mrs. Hilda Stahl, Mrs. Fred Stoner, and Mrs. James Wildesen, all of Oakland.

Election meeting delegate and alternate nominees for District E are Hubert G. Custer and Lee Shillingburg, both of Deer Park, and W. Brooks Hamilton Jr., Wayne B. Hamilton Sr., and Ray Ridder, all of Oakland.

Poultry Producers Not Out Of Danger Of Avian Flu Yet

Avian influenza, a highly contagious virus, nearly wiped out the poultry industry in Pennsylvania two years ago, and threatened poultry producers in the Delmarva region of Maryland and Delaware, with bans put on shipping or showing poultry in a number of states.

Although researchers, veterinarians, and state officials were able to curb the spread of the disease, experts say the Maryland poultry industry is not yet out of danger.

"The problem is still out there, and the potential exists for the disease to remain undetected and spread to commercial, specialty or backyard flocks," says Dr. Edward T. Mallinson of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service.

The fear of a recurrence of avian influenza is great enough that agriculture officials in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware are issuing renewed warnings to poultry producers about the dangers of the disease and how easily it can spread.

For at least the next 30 days, says Mallinson, producers are being asked to stop any business transaction with live birds that would involve their transport from one farm or region to another.

"We're asking producers to sit tight for a little while. This situation may resolve itself in fewer than 30 days, but we don't want to take any chances," Mallinson says.

Apparently, the movement of live birds which may be recovered carriers of the disease is the most common way avian influenza spreads, he says. The disease also may be spread by unsanitary poultry trucks and crates that contain virus-contaminated droppings or other debris.

The restrictions are meant to help more than just the big guys in the poultry industry.

"Small specialty producers were probably hit harder than the larger segments of the industry the last time around," Mallinson says. "Some small businesses experienced anywhere from 20-50 percent mortality rates."

In the meantime, he says, producers, large and small, should follow these guidelines to weather the storm:

1) Restrict traffic to your farm. That applies especially to other growers and shippers of live birds, and it includes family and friends who handle live birds.

2) Don't visit other farms.

3) Don't borrow or lend equipment or machinery.

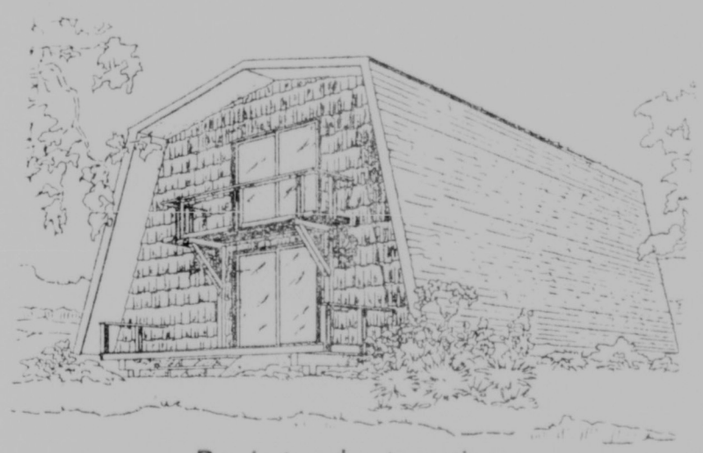
4) Shower and shampoo immediately after coming in contact with others who are involved in the poultry industry and before you enter your poultry house.

5) Don't allow anyone to enter your poultry house or egg room unless they are wearing sanitized coveralls and boots. Change your clothing when you leave your poultry house, and keep a pair of boots to be used only for your poultry house or egg room.

6) Only bring on the farm, or take from the farm, those articles that can be cleaned or disinfected.

7) Avoid contact with all wild birds and waterfowl.

8) Notify state agriculture officials if you have a noticeable rise in disease or deaths in your flock. Free diagnostic services are available.



For more information on how to protect flocks from avian influenza, contact the Garrett County Extension Office at 334-2145.

Conservation Reserve Program Basic Information

Purpose—The Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) in the 1985 Farm Bill designates that 40 to 45 million acres of highly erodible agricultural land may be set aside over the next five years. In Maryland, 241,800 acres are eligible for the CRP. Permanent vegetative cover, in one or more of the following five categories, will be planted on this land. The categories include: 1) trees, 2) grasses and legumes, 3) wildlife habitat, including shrubs, 4) field windbreaks and 5) shallow water areas for wildlife.

The CRP is a voluntary program established to help farmers prevent or control critical soil erosion now occurring on some of the nation's cropland. Secondary goals of the CRP are to help adjust the production of some surplus agricultural commodities, to improve water quality, to create fish and wildlife habitats, and to provide some needed income support for farmers.

Eligible Land—Eligibility is limited to highly erodible cropland on land capability classes II through V (soils eroding at three times the soil loss tolerance or higher), or land capability classes VI through VIII (highly erodible soils not generally well suited for use as cropland, even after application of conservation practices).

Cropland is defined as land that has been tilled to produce an agricultural commodity. This use does not include orchards, vineyards or land used for ornamental planting. Also included in this definition is land that has been set aside in a production adjustment program in two of the crop years from 1981 to 1985 and is suitable for crop production.

How the Program Works—Applicants will submit bids stating the rental payment they would accept to convert their highly erodible cropland to one or more of the permanent vegetative covers listed above. Farmers will sign a 10-year contract with the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture (USDA). USDA will provide annual rental payments (in cash or negotiable payment-in-kind certificates), 50 percent cost-sharing payments to help defray the cost of establishing permanent vegetative cover on the land, and technical help through the Soil Conservation Service (SCS); conservation of districts; the Maryland Dept. of Natural Resources' Forest, Park and Wildlife Service; and other agencies. The cover must be established by the end of the growing season that follows contract approval. Rental payments will not affect the total amounts of payments a farmer is eligible to receive through other programs.

Sign-up—The sign-up period is March 3 through March 14, 1986. A second sigh-up for the 1987 crop year will be held in the summer of 1986. ASCS will administer the sign-up.

Sign-up Process—The participant will: 1) Designate the land by fields proposed for the program. 2) Estimate the acreage of proposed fields. 3) Provide field cropping history for 1981 through 1985. 4) Designate conservation practices to be used. 5) Select oneor more of the acceptable land cover types. 6) Submit bids for the annual rental payment on the designated fields.

More information will be coming to farmers in news articles and letters.

Agronomy Field Day Rescheduled

The Agronomy Field Day which was cancelled on February 11 due to weather, has been rescheduled for Wednesday, March 19, at 10 a.m. at the Bittinger Community Building. The program will include the same topics that were scheduled for February. A family style chicken dinner is available for $5.00. Please make reservations by calling the Extension Office at 334-1990.

Federal Feed Grain Set-Aside Program

Dr. George Stevens, University of Maryland, will be presenting a program on the Federal Feed Grain Set-Aside Program that was in the 1985 Farm Bill at the Extension Office at 10 a.m. on March 12. He will assist you in the preparation and determining the ecoromics for your participation. To register, please call the Extension Office at 334-1990.

Pesticide Bills Are Topics Of House Committee

The House of Delegates Environmental Matters Committee heard three separate bills concerning pesticides on Tuesday.

HB-1382 was introduced by the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of changing some of the definitions and requirements in the Pesticide Applicator's Law, which should help prevent the misuse of pesticides. A Private Applicator's Certificate will now be valid for three years instead of five years, as in the past. Under the new requirements, each applicant must pass a written examination given by the department. The bill also states that a certificate may be renewed every three years by participating, within the 12 months before expiration of the current certificate, in a training course approved by the department.

An Authority of Local Jurisdictions Bill, HB-1493, would mandate that the state law concerning pesticides would preempt any law, ordinance, or regulation adopted by a local unit of government. If counties or municipalities were permitted to have ordinances concerning pesticides and applicators, licenses could be required by each of those seperate units.

Agricultural land is exempt from HB-1542 which would require posting of markers on property identifying areas of commercial pesticide application at least two days prior, and three days after, application. Also, the bill would require employees of certified applicators to successfully complete a training course developed by the Department of Agriculture, before any employee could apply pesticide to property. The certified applicator would be required to register any employee who would be applying pesticide within 30 days of employment.

Ag Land Transfer Tax

Senate Bill 657 will be heard by the Budget and Taxation Committee on Friday. This bill changes the Agricultural Transfer Tax Law so that parcels of land of 20 acres, or more, will be treated the same as parcels of land less than 20 acres. Basically this will allow an individual to sign a letter of intent to continue farming the land on all of the parcels, or a portion of the parcels. The present law only allows an individual to sign a letter of intent for all the parcels. If the individual violates the letter of intent, it provides for a penalty of 12 percent interest on the tax due.

It would also close a loophole in the law by triggering the tax on the change of use, rather than on the transfer of the land. Technically, under the present law an individual could develop the etire parcel and avoid paying the transfer tax as long as he maintained ownership.

Youth Camp Licensing

Also on Friday, the House Environmental Matters Committee will hear a bill that would require the State Department of Health and Mental Hygiene to develop and implement a program to license youth camps. It also provides for a Youth Camp Safety Advisory Council to advise and assist the department in formulating and reviewing the rules and regulations relating to youth camps. This could have an impact on 4-H camps because all volunteers would have to be licensed.

Sheep Inventory Up

The total number of sheep and lambs in Maryland on January 1 totaled 19,000 head. This is 3,000 head, or 19 percent above the total for a year ago. Nationally, totals fell from 10.4 million head for January 1 to 9.9 million head this year. The average value per head for the state's sheep is $94.00 as of January 1, up from the $79.00 estimated for the previous year.

The average across the United States was $67.40 per head, $6.30 above that for last year. The total inventory value for Maryland was $1.8 million (up 41 percent) while nationally the value was set at $669.9 million (up five percent).

Ewes one year old and older in the state increased from 11,000 to 13,000 with the number of rams and wethers at least one year old increasing from 2,000 to 3,000.

Nationally, both totals dropped with 6.8 million ewes and 308.5 thousand rams recorded. This compares with 7.2 million ewes and 313.6 thousand rams the previous year.

Maryland's lamb crop for the year at 16,000 was up 2,000 or 14 percent from last year. Across the United States the lamb crop fell five percent to 7.4 million. The lambing rate was 102 lambs per 100 ewes nationally and 145 per 100 ewes in Maryland.

U.S. House Subcommittee Replaces Price Support Cuts With Assessments

U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee approved legislation last week that would undo a required cut in the nation's dairy price supports due to Gramm-Rudman deficit cuts.

In the first such official action by Congress since the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law was passed late last year, the dairy subcommittee of the House Agriculture Committee voted to force the Reagan administration to back off from a planned March 1 cut in dairy support levels and to make the savings through increased revenues instead.

The administration had announced the price-support cut on February 12 as part of a plan to achieve a total of $1.3 billion in savings required in the current fiscal year. Other department programs, including subsidies for cotton and grain farmers, are due for similar cuts as part of a 4.3 percent across-the-board reduction.

The cuts are the department's share of $11.7 billion in cuts that must be made this year to meet the timetable set out by Gramm-Rudman, which aims at a balanced budget by 1991.

Dairy interests have made a proposal that savings be made through an increase in assessments on all milk producers instead of using a cut in the support price. The bill was introduced by Representatives James M. Jeffords, R-Vt., Steven Gunderson, R-Wis., and Tony Coelho, D-Calif.

Its effect would be to spread the pain of the cuts to a larger group of farmers.

"ARE YOU SURE YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO ROTATE THE WHEELS ON A TRACTOR?"

Garrett Co. Young Farmers Attend Nat. Conference

Two young farmers from Garrett County attended the Young Farmer and Rancher National Leadership Conference in Orlando, Fla., February 9 through 12. Karen Hamilton and Criss Kepple were among the 350 to 400 young farmers and ranchers who attended from all over the United States.

The trip was sponsored for Hamilton and Kepple by the State Young Farmer and Rancher Committee, the Garrett County Farm Bureau, and the Garrett County Young Farmers and Ranchers. Others attending from Maryland included Young Farmer and Rancher Chairman Gary Brauning, his wife, Kate, and family; Gilbert Bowling; Jeff Griffith; Herbert Wayson; and Ewing McDowell.

"Today's Preparation is Tomorrow's Success" was the theme of the conference, which featured guest speakers and mini-conferences on the subject. The two Garrett County representatives attended mini-conferences on Ag in the Classroom, Economics Farm Bureau Style, Farm Bureau in the Future, and sat on the Young Farmer and Rancher Program Ideas Panel.

The two main conference speakers were Dr. Barry Asmus and Dennis E. Emerson. Dr. Asmus is a professor of Economics who was voted the "Outstanding Young Man in America" in 1976. He has authored numerous papers and books, the latest being "Crossroads: The Great American Experiment" published by University Press of America. He currently is heard on 200 radio stations across the country on a program entitled "Perspective on the Economy."

Emerson is the director of Field Services for the Florida Farm Bureau. He currently serves on numerous committees; to name a few: Attorney General's Ad Hoc Committee on Agricultural Crime; State Advisory Committee Agriculture and Natural Resources, Department of Education; Vice President, Florida 4-H Foundation; FFA Alumni Association Member and the recipient of the Honorary State FFA Degree; and the U.S. Senate Agriculture Advisory Committee.

Kepple, who was also able to attend a news interview panel discussion with farm news media representatives, said "The National Leadership Conference gave me a chance to discuss current problems and advantages in agriculture with people from all over the country." She went on to say that it gave her a perspective she may not have gained otherwise.

"Experts from the Farm Bureau outlined new directions for the future of agriculture, but also emphasized traditional goals that are still important," she said.

For Hamilton, the trip followed her winning competition in the Maryland Young Farmer and Rancher Discussion Meet and her trip to the national contest in Georgia. "I always appreciate the chance to get together with other young farmers to discuss our future plans. The future of agriculture is in our hands," Hamilton explained, "and we need to decide how we are going to handle that."

Both girls felt that overall, it was incouraging to see so many young agriculturalists who were aware of farming's problems, but at the same time ready to find new answers and alternatives to work for a brighter future.

Red Clover Seed Should Carry Label

Maryland farmers will soon be purchasing and seeding red clover. As a precautionary measure, these farmers are being warned to avoid improperly labeled seed.

"Farmers anticipating seeding red clover seed this spring should make sure the seed they buy is properly tested and labeled," warned Malcolm Sarna, acting chief of the Turf and Seed Section of Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Farmers planning to sell red clover can have it tested by mailing a one-pound sample to: Maryland Department of Agriculture, Turf and Seed Section, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD 21401.

A schedule of testing charges is also available from the above address. The results of this test will enable the seller to label the seed in accordance with the Maryland Seed Law. Appropriately printed analysis tags are also available from the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Columbia Gas To Match Funds In Assistance Plan

Columbia Gas of Maryland has announced it will make up to $10,000 available for the Maryland Project Warm Share matching-funds program this winter to help low-income Columbia customers pay home heating bills.

Columbia is asking customers to participate by making tax-deductible donations. The company will match each customer's donation on the basis of $1 for every $2 contributed. All of the funds—without any deduction for processing costs—will be handed over to the Salvation Army, which will administer the program for needy gas customers.

"Our shareholders will provide these funds to match the donations made by our customers, employees and others," Area Manager Tom Lindsey Jr. said.

Distribution of the money to customers who demonstrate an inability to pay their Columbia bills with begin in March.

"We're very pleased that Columbia Gas is participating in this program of home-heating assistance for the needy during the winter," stated Major Luther H. Hoffman, Commanding Officer of the Salvation Army in Cumberland. "We hope to be able to help many families in this area to meet the cost of staying warm this season," he said.

Lindsey said that Columbia will work individually with customers having payment problems to find workable solutions. "Any customer in need of assistance should contact the Salvation Army or their local Columbia Gas office," he said.

Spelling Bee Scheduled At Broadford School

The Broadford Elementary fourth and fifth grade spelling bee will take place on Monday night, March 3, at 7:30 p.m. during the PTA meeting at Broadford Elementary School.

In addition, the agenda will include the election of a slate of officers for the 1986-87 school year.

All parents are urged to attend.

TV SHOWS HONOR OUTSTANDING TEACHERS AS TRIBUTE TO CHRISTA McAULIFFE

The tragic fate of the Challenger space mission has riveted the nation's attention to the important role that teachers play in the lives of America's children—indeed in all of our lives.

In tribute to Christa McAuliffe, the Concord, N.H. social studies teacher who died with the Challenger crew, the "Inside Your Schools" TV series will profile several other public school teachers who are making outstanding contributions to the classroom.

"Good Teaching: A Memorial to Christa McAuliffe" airs on the 650 cable systems affiliated with The Learning Channel (TLC), Tuesday, March 4, at 3 p.m., repeated Thursday, March 6, at 2:30 p.m. and Sunday, March 9, at noon (all times Eastern). It also airs on more than 120 PBS stations and numerous non-TLC cable systems in locally determined time slots.

This show replaces the "A Teacher in Space" special which was intended to recap Ms. McAuliffe's historic journey in space and assess the educational value of space exploration.

Among teachers profiled are:

•Yonkers, New York—Junior High School teacher Michael Campbell who brings social studies to life by holding mock presidential cabinet meetings.

•Atlanta, Georgia—Jean Ashe who conducts an outstanding English As a Second Language program at Hanson Elementary School.

•Peabody, Massachusetts—Father Frank Toste who coaches a nationally acclaimed "Stage One" drama troupe at Peabody High School.

•St. Cloud, Minnesota—Deb Johanson who has developed a "Special Buddies" program in which mainstream youngsters at Westwood Elementary School help their handicapped classmates.

•Perrine, Florida—Mazel Rodriguez who provides girls and boys at Perrine Elementary with the unique opportunity to study classical dance during the school day.

•Alston, Massachusetts—Helen Barry Smith a retired high school music teacher who is honored with a concert by her students from 30 years ago—several of them now professional musicians.

"This collection of stories represents thousands upon thousands of teachers who, like Christa McAuliffe, also possess the enthusiasm, dedication and values that we see throughout our public school system," said Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, which produces the magazine style "Inside Your Schools" series. "Christa's legacy is to get us to focus on them," he said.

Coming in April, "In Pursuit of Excellence: Public Education and the Gifted", will look at successful public school programs for gifted youngsters, provide tips for parents of potentially gifted students, feature an interview with James Alvino, editor of "The Gifted Children's Monthly" and profile two gifted students with vastly different talents.

Easter Candy Sale By Swanton Group Now In Progress

The Swanton Community Center is sponsoring a homemade Easter candy sale and orders are now being taken.

BLASTING NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that Schwinabart and Green, having been issued surface mining permit #348, on the property of Jonas D. Beiler and Dorothy J. Saum, et al, Election District No. 3, Garrett County, at Maryland Grid N: 659,000, E: 439,250, will conduct blasting activities in accordance with all applicable State and Federal Laws. Such activities will commence and continue in accordance with the following schedule of dates and approximate times, as approved by the Maryland Bureau of Mines.

Monday through Saturday from March 10, 1986 to December 31, 1986, from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m., except Sundays and Holidays.

At least ten minutes prior to each blasting activity, all accesses to the area will be controlled to prevent unauthorized entry, and a warning signal will be audibly indicated by three 5 second blasts with an air horn at two 2-second intervals; with the clear signal being indicated by one 20-second blast with an air horn, in accordance with applicable State and Federal Laws. Also as approved by the regulatory authority, blasting activities will not be conducted at times other than those announced without appropriate notification, or, in the event of an emergency situation where rain, lightning, other atmospheric conditions, operator or public safety dictates unscheduled detonation.

PUBLIC NOTICES

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing of the County Commissioners of Garrett County is scheduled for Tuesday, March 11, 1986, at 7:30 p.m., in the Commissioners' meeting room at the Garrett County Courthouse to consider a proposed service area in Garrett County to be designated the "Cherry Glade Run Sanitary District" which includes 219 North of Oakland, North Fourth Street, and the Mitchell Manor areas.

In a Resolution adopted on February 4, 1986 the Garrett County Sanitary Commission, pursuant to Title 9, Subtitle 6, Part V of the Health Environmental Article of the Annotated Code of Maryland (1982 Volume), proposed to create the Cherry Glade Run Sanitary District for the purpose of providing water and sewer facilities to serve the area described in that Resolution and shown on the plat attached thereto. A copy of the Resolution of the Garrett County Sanitary Commission adopted February 4, 1986 and the plat showing the boundaries of the proposed service area are on file in the offices of the Garrett County Sanitary District, 313 East Alder Street, Old Courthouse, Room 200, Oakland, Maryland, and are available for public inspection during regular business hours.

Interested persons will be heard at the public hearing on March 11, 1986 to determine if the creation of the Cherry Glade Run Sanitary District is necessary for the public health, safety, and welfare of the residents of the proposed service area and is feasible financially and from an engineering standpoint.

Reliable Feeding

Both the Model RD-820 ring-drive unloader and Model 988 surface-drive unloader feature a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that cut through frozen and packed silage to deliver a steady flow of silage day after day.

- Spring-tensioned power cutter keeps silo walls free of silage buildup.
- Adjustable depth-of-cut control makes feeding truly automatic.

Trade-ins accepted. See us today for details.

GCC's Continuing Education Division Offers "Something For Everyone"

SOMETHING FOR EVERYONE is offered in the form of non-credit courses by the Continuing Education Division of Garrett Community College at a nominal cost to area residents. Beginning directly above and moving in a clockwise direction: a Fundamentals and Investment Strategies course is taught by Leo Martin, of the Garrett National Bank, William Grant, of the First National Bank & Trust, and Rob Sharps, CFP for Butscher and Singer; instructor Donna Schrier assists student Elsie Lewis in a Word Processing I class; students in a Building Trades: Carpentry Skills Training class complete the framing on an out building; student Jonathan Maust utilizes one of many pieces of equipment used in the Machinist Skills Training class; and instructor Sandra Nauman teaches, left to right seated, Patricia Powles, Shirley Clark, Cynthia Fike, Peggy Chappell, and Susannah Kurtz how to prepare a culinary delight in Chinese Cookery I.

Editor's note: The following article on the Continuing Education Division of Garrett Community College wraps up a special series of stories published this month as part of the observance of Community College Month.

"Community-Self-Vocation", the logo of Garrett Community College, might well describe the objectives of the Continuing Education Division of the college. This division, whose offices are currently housed at the Oakland Branch, offers over 200 non-credit courses and short courses each year for all segments of the county's population. These courses, that enroll nearly 2,000 different students, are given at over 20 different locations throughout the county.

The range of courses offered by the Continuing Education Division is so diverse that it would appear to have "something for everyone." Among the 60 courses appearing on the spring schedule are subjects as varied as income tax preparation, computer literacy, Old Testament history, welding, and Chinese cookery. An additional 40 courses are being scheduled for the Sunshine Semester beginning in March.

According to Jeri Swartzentruber, Assistant Director of Continuing Education, her office provides courses in response to requests from businesses and community agencies. CPR and EMT training have been given for members of rescue squads and fire departments, special reading classes for the handicapped, geriatric aide training for nursing home employees to meet state certification, and computer applications for real estate professionals.

"If there are ten or more students interested in a particular course, we will take the course to them," Swartzentruber stated. "At the present time, vocational courses seem to be of major interest because of the labor market, with men re-training and women joining the work force for the first time. Courses such as geriatric aide, computers, office practice and procedures, typing, carpentry, welding, and other building trades are in demand."

Special interest or personal growth courses that appeal to other types of students are chess, ballet, tennis, bridge, spring crafts, and Easter candy making. Again this May, the Continuing Education Division, with the involvement of MFRI and EMS, will offer the Trauma and Disaster short course at the Grantsville Holiday Inn. Nearly 200 persons from throughout the state and surrounding areas are expected to attend.

Other population groups served by this division of the college are senior citizens and persons who never completed high school. Pat Helmick, in charge of the Adult Basic Education Program, said, "Those who can read this should tell someone who can't read about this program. It is for anyone who needs to improve basic skills or who wants to earn a high school diploma. These courses run from September to June and are free of charge to all students. Students who cannot attend class can complete the work as a home study program by checking out materials and working on their own." According to Helmick, the GED test is given at the McHenry campus every three months throughout the year.

Courses for seniors have been scheduled at nursing homes, retirement homes, and senior centers throughout the community. Among those currently being offered at the nursing homes are music, horticulture, communication skills, and applied arts. Senior centers have courses such as physical education, financial planning, insurance awareness, current events, applied arts, woodworking, and handyman for seniors.

Still another group served by the Continuing Education Division in cooperation with the Western Maryland Consortium are the disadvantaged and unemployed persons. Through the J.T.P.A., vocational training is provided to help these persons acquire entry level knowledge and skills needed for employment in specific occupational fields. At the present time, a course in electrical wiring and plumbing is being given.

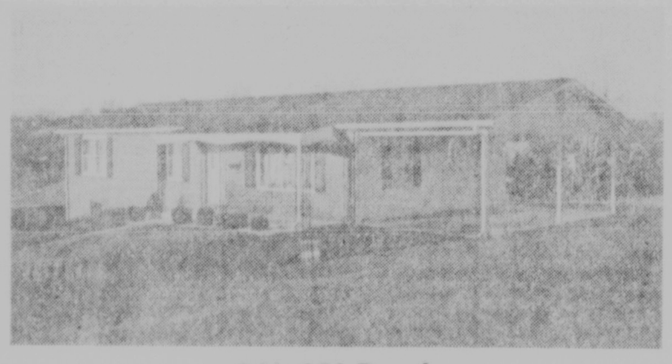
Bonnie Swyter, program coordinator, states that these courses usually enroll 15-20 students. "Every course," Swyter said, "includes some employment skills, related math and English skills and vocational hands-on training and experience. Most students are successfully placed into training related positions at the completion of their training."

Vocational training courses scheduled to begin in the near future are retail sales training on March 3, carpentry skills training on March 24, and waiter/waitress training on April 2. Students in the waiter/waitress class will get hands-on experience by serving hot meals for senior citizens at the Oakland Branch.

A related service of the college is the New Horizons program administered by Barbara Frey. This project is funded by the college and by the Maryland State Department of Vocational/Technical Education to provide educational opportunities for single parents and homemakers.

Since July 1, 1985, over 200 clients have been served through this project. Twenty-four of these are currently enrolled in credit courses, 105 are taking non-credit courses, and 53 clients have been successful in obtaining full or part time jobs.

The person who has the overall responsibility for these educational services and activities is Lowell Bender, Director of Continuing Education. Bender sees the philosophy of Continuing Education being closely allied with lifelong learning.



"There is an ever-increasing need for people to receive initial training and re-training," he said. "Our job is to determine what these needs for lifelong learning are, and to provide quality educational opportunities to meet these needs. We see people learning skills; we see people finding self-fulfillment as they pursue learning; we see people progressing from one educational level to another, from ABE to GED to credit courses and finally to an associate in arts degree; we see people learning for the fun of it. Last year, we had over 100 instructors teaching courses. We feel that their concern for students is a major reason students keep coming back to take Continuing Education courses."

Any persons interested in having further information about these various courses and opportunities offered by the Continuing Education Division can stop in and visit the Oakland Branch or call 334-8266.

24'x48' Rancher
1,152 sq. ft. 3-bedroom, for only $31,125
(With porch and carport, $33,485)
Completely finished from the plate up on your foundation. We set all of our homes with a crane so there is no stress on your foundation.
All of our homes come with the energy package which is standard. Insulation is R19 walls, R19 floor, R32 ceiling, Andersen Thermopane vinyl-clad wood windows with storms and screens, a very big energy-saver, and they never need painting. Exterior doors are metal insulated with storm doors; total electric heat with thermostats in each room.
You have your choice of interior drywall, paneling or both. Drywall has two coats of the paint of your choice; beautiful, textured ½" drywall ceiling over a 3/8" plywood sub ceiling.
Nice selection of top grade carpet throughout home except for kitchen and baths. There we offer a no-wax linoleum by Armstrong. This is put over a super strong 1 1/8" thick floor. Floor joints are 2x10, 16" on center.
Kitchen and bath have your choice of vinyl wall coverings, beautiful kitchen cabinets with stainless steel sinks, 30" GE electric range; exhaust fans in kitchen and bath, vanity-in-bath, with a one-piece fiberglas tub and shower; 52 gallon hot water heater, aluminum wood grain siding, shutters, gutter and down spouts, 5/12 roof pitch on 25' and 28' wide models.
This home can be custom designed to fit your own needs at no charge. A home is a big investment today so shop around and compare. But before you buy, be sure and see a Keystone Home . . . we think it will speak for itself.

THE REPUBLICAN

VOLUME 109 — OAKLAND, GARRETT COUNTY, MD., THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1986 — PER COPY 30¢

The Republican Begins 110th Year Of Publication

With the publication of today's issue, The Republican Newspaper begins its 110th consecutive year of existence.

It was March 3, 1877, when Captain James A. Hayden published the first issue of The Republican, with hopes it would become "a permanent institution" in the county.

Hayden, who was brevetted a major for gallant conduct at the Battle of Gettysburg, came to Oakland in 1873 as foreman of the Garrett County Herald. He published The Republican for 13 years before selling out to Benjamin H. Sincell, an employee of Hayden at the time.

Sincell, a native of Frederick, issued his first newspaper on July 11, 1890, his 21st birthday. His son, Donald R. Sincell, worked for nearly 70 years at Sincell Publishing Company, much of that time as general manager, until his death in 1979. The company is currently managed by Benjamin H. Sincell's grandson, Robert B. Sincell, general manager, and his great-grandson, Donald W. Sincell, editor.

The Republican now has a circulation of over 11,000 and has readers in nearly every state of the union, plus overseas. It has become one of the largest weekly newspapers in the state of Maryland, publishing an average of 40 pages per week. It is currently the only newspaper published in Garrett County.

Following a major equipment purchase this spring and extensive interior renovation to Sincell Publishing Company's building on Second Street in Oakland, an open house will be held and a special edition published to celebrate The Republican's 110th year of operation.

"EVERY MILE IS TWO IN WINTER," or so says 16th century author George Herbert, but not when the country road scenery is laden with such charm. This father and son, Jack and Collen DuBose, seem to be enjoying each step they take along the Bear Creek Road. The unpredictable weather of Garrett County provided us with yet another clean blanket of white this morning as we all awakened to a "Winter Wonderland." These sudden blasts of snow will undoubtedly remain with us for at least another month or two, confusing the crocuses and robins.

Black Bear Bill Passes Senate Committee

Senator John N. Bambacus's "Black Bear" bill passed the Senate Economic & Environmental Matters Committee last Thursday by a unanimous vote. The bill which would provide a maximum fine of $5,000 or maximum imprisonment of six months, or both, and suspension of the hunting license for up to two years for first-time offenders, will now go before the whole Senate.

Delegate George Edwards introduced his version of the bill in the House. That bill is being discussed by the House Environmental Committee today.

Gaithersburg Man Listed As "Stable" Following Mishap

A Gaithersburg man was listed as "stable" this morning by a spokesman at Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, where he was transported by Medevac helicopter following a single-vehicle accident Saturday near Gorman.

Tarl Y. Kim, 41, was injured when the vehicle he was driving, a 1967 Pontiac Ventura, struck the end of a bridge.

Tfc. L. Rosage investigated the 8:30 p.m. incident, charging Kim with crossing the center line.

Cheryl Y. Peterson, 29, Kitzmiller, was listed as "satisfactory" at Garrett County Memorial Hospital this morning, where she was admitted Saturday after a single-vehicle mishap on the Route 38.

According to police reports, Peterson was traveling south in a 1981 Dodge Colt when she fell asleep. The vehicle then ran off the left side of the road over an embankment, striking several large rocks.

Cpl. E.D. Selby investigated, and reported that no charges were made.

A snowmobile accident Sunday sent two Baltimore teens to Garrett County Memorial Hospial.

Kimberly L. Smith, 14, was treated and released from that hospital, while Jennifer L. Rabold, 15, was admitted and released at a later date.

According to the police, the snowmobile was sitting with the motor running. Both Smith, the driver, and Rabold got on the vehicle, and Smith touched the throttle, causing the snowmobile to lurch forward and strike a tree.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated the mishap.

A single-vehicle accident occurred Tuesday near the Mettiki Coal Corporation.

According to police reports, Joey W. Slaubaugh, 26, Horse Shoe Run, W.Va., was operating a 1972 Mack truck which was ascending a hill. The vehicle lost traction on the snow and ice and slid backward into a ditch.

Slaubaugh was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated.

A Swanton man escaped injury Monday when the vehicle

Peatlands Are Topic of Lecture By Renowned Botanist, Ecologist

World renowned ecologist and botanist at Vermont University, Dr. Ian A. Worley, gave a slide and lecture program titled "The Glades: Preservation in a Global Perspective," at Frostburg State College last Thursday evening. The audience numbered over 100 interested students and persons from both Allegany and Garrett County. After the lecture, a question and answer session was held. The University of Maryland Environmental Laboratory co-sponsored the program.

Dr. Worley has studied peatlands the world over and is an authority on bogs, glades and ferns. He has written over 100 papers dealing with peat bog ecology and has studied peat bogs in Ireland, Scotland and Iceland.

After explaining that peat is partly decomposed organic matter, usually acidic, he said that the 750 million acres of peatlands in the world could provide more energy than all the oil reserves known to man.

As a result of his research, Worley said that he has made three conclusions. The first is that peatlands are valuable. The second is that there are three prominent areas of human activity regarding peatlands; peatlands as sources of goods, example, peat; patlands as sources of tools, example, flood control; and peatlands as natural areas. The third conclusion was that within each of these three areas the fundamental characters of the values are equally diverse.

Speaking of the peatbogs and glades in Garrett County, Worley said that the high elevation in the county provides a climate which, when combined with the nutrient poor conditions created by a raised bog, make for quite a special habitat.

Worley said that some of the species of plant life living in that special habitat are rare and found only in the glades. Six rare species of mosses are found in Garrett County, according to Worley. "It is exceedingly uncommon to have the chance to discover the first location within a state of one or two species, but here there are six," he exclaimed.

The botanist told the group that "This unique raised bog is the only one found this far south and needs protection." He said

Men Charged In Bear Killings Pay $250 Fines

Two Westernport men charged with killing a pregnant black bear in January near Barton paid $250 fines each in Garrett County District Court, according to court records.

Department of Natural Resource police had arrested and charged James Edward Spiker, 35, and Dennis Lyle Chapman, 30, after discovering that a black bear had been shot three miles northwest of Barton in the Savage River Forest.

Spiker and Chapman had been scheduled for a hearing last Thursday before Garrett County District Court Judge Jack R. Turney. However, since the appearance in court was not mandatory, they chose not to appear and instead paid the fine.

A 12-gauge double barrel shotgun which was obtained during the investigation was returned to those charged, according to DNR police.

At about the time the hearing could have taken place last Thursday, Delegate George Edwards introduced House Bill No. 1614, which was co-sponsored by nine other delegates.

That bill calls for the creation of a fine of not more than $5,000 and/or imprisonment of not more than six months for killing or possession of black bears. The bill would also allow for the offender's hunting license to be suspended for not more than two years.

The bill also states that a second offense would call for the same financial and imprisonment penalties but the license suspension could last as long as four years.

Coal Marketing In Western Md. Sought By TCC

Tri-County Council of Western Maryland will meet next Wednesday and one sure topic of the group will be the marketing of Western Maryland coal and manufacturing products.

TCC Executive Director Michael Wagoner said earlier this week the council will apply for about $15,000 from the State Department of Economic and Community Development's Office of International Trade. The council would match that grant and use the $30,000 to determine if there is a market for Western Maryland products and how local companies can tap into the foreign market.

The director also said the study would also survey businesses operating in the three counties and determine the types of barriers which might lessen the likelihood of trading overseas.

Wagoner said the Maryland Coal Association and other interested groups could become involved in the study if the state grant is approved.

TCC President Arthur Bond said prospects looked good for the council to secure the grant. He also noted that aggressive councils will gain access to finish-out grants as the federal government phases out its Appalachian Regional Commission and Economic Development Administration.

School Official Reviews FY '87 Budget Proposal

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, Garrett County Superintendent of Schools, reviewed those budget items which he plans to recommend to the school board in his FY 1987 budget, at a Board of Education hearing sponsored by the Garrett County Council of PTA's at Red House on Thursday, February 27.

Ryscavage mentioned that salary and wages of employees, along with the associated fixed charges, make up approximately 75 percent of the budget. However, amounts for salaries and wages were not included in the report due to the fact that formal negotiations with these groups are not complete at this time. Ryscavage hopes to have these figures completed within the next few weeks.

The board previously met with the Garrett County Teachers' Association and agreed to an unapproved six and one-half percent salary increase for 1986-87, along with an increase in the amounts paid for extra-duty compensation and an increase in the amount of life insurance from $16,000 to $20,000 coverage.

Rycavage recommends increases in the areas of administration, instruction, special education, and pupil personnel services. Decreases were recommended for student transportation services because split-shifting will no longer be needed. Food service and health service allotments will remain the same.

Complete budget documents are available at the Board of Education office, and the public is invited to comment on the budget recommendations at the March 13 meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education, which will begin at 1 p.m. at the board office.

A more detailed article on the school budget will be released when salary negotiations are completed.

JWCC Annual Community Feud Slated April 10

The Junior Woman's Civic Club will hold its fourth annual Community Feud on April 10 at Southern High School. The master of ceremonies will be Pat Gregg, staff writer for the Cumberland Times/News.

Patterned after the television game show, Family Feud, the game is held to provide an opportunity for local organizations to win money for themselves or their favorite charity.

Participation is open to all community groups. An entry fee of $25 is asked and will be included in the prize money. Those interested in playing the feud should contact Jenny Wotring at 334-3294 by March 24.

Extra money can be won by pulling a marked lollipop from the lollipop tree and for scoring the most overall points. The team with the largest rooting section will also win additional money. Other prizes will also be available.

As in the past, a poll will be conducted at various local shopping areas to provide questions and answers for the final round of the games.

JWCC members will be in various shopping areas on Saturday, April 4 to poll the public. A spokesman from the club urges all citizens to cooperate if stopped by a pollster.

Positive Feelings Prevail Over Annapolis Meeting Concerning GCC

A meeting yesterday in Annapolis among local and state government and college officials was a positive and informative one, according to many of those attending.

Dr. Sheila M. Tolliver, the governor's executive assistant for education, and Constance Beims, the governor's appointment secretary, acted as facilitators for the meeting which included Garrett Community College Board of Trustees' members Katharine L. Smith, Charles Bender, William Grant, Dr. Raymond McCullough and Col. Richard Browning; GCC Interim President Dr. David A. Puzzuoli, the Board of Garrett County Commissioners, members of the State Board for Community Colleges and its executive director, Dr. James Tschectelin; District One Senator John N. Bambacus and District 1-A Delegate George C. Edwards.

The meeting was called by Dr. Tolliver several weeks ago following many inquiries about the situation at GCC to the governor's office. She said earlier there had been considerable debate about the college's operation, management, community relations and the roles of various bodies in these matters.

Immediately following yesterday's meeting, which was not open to the press or public, the county commissioners were contacted by phone for their interpretation and understanding of the meeting.

"It was a very productive meeting," stated Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. "We (commissioners) expressed our concerns about the conditions and various activities at the college. We stressed our position about communications lacking credibility and how the image at the college is sorely distressed."

Commissioner Gregg went on to say that as a primary local funding source for GCC they would not fund any new or expanded college facilities. He said it was also important to state that they (commissioners) had no intention of increasing the local funding until they were shown that the Board of Trustees were sincere about solving the college's problems.

"We are imploring the Board of Trustees to solve their problems and get the college on track," Gregg stressed. "We will remain among the college's strongest supporters, but we need to see some positive clarification of the issues before we can consider any increase in funding."

Gregg said the meeting focused on generalities about policies, procedures, hiring practices and vindictive actions against persons who spoke out at the GCC public meeting held by local legislators in late July last year.

"Essentially, we came to say what we had to say," concluded Gregg. "There was a great deal of time spent on the lack of communications on the part of the college . . . we certainly didn't need to travel to Annapolis to discover that, though."

Commissioner Elwood Groves II said the first part of the meeting dealt mainly with a discussion of the roles of the various entities involved. "However, by the second half of the meeting," he said, "it developed into a round table discussion in which everyone was free to make comments on any issue whatsoever.

"We hope the firm stand we have taken on freezing all funding for the college until the problems are solved will be an incentive for the Board of Trustees to make the necessary reforms to raise the public image at GCC," stated Groves.

Groves said he felt the meeting was positive in that it opened the communications process. "Also, we are in a more competent position now to ask the questions that need asked," concluded Groves.

Commissioner John Braskey restated the commissioners'

Judge Sentences Local Youth For Two Drug Counts

A Mtn. Lake Park youth will serve a total of two years in the Department of Corrections as a result of a trial held last Thursday in Garrett County Circuit Court.

Brian S. Lewis, 19, was sentenced by Chief Judge Fred A. Thayer to two years for each of two counts of distribution of marijuana. The judge then suspended one year of the each sentence, placing Lewis on one year supervised probation for each count. The two sentences will run consecutively.

The conditions of probation are that Lewis abide by the rules of parole and probation, pay court costs and pay restitution of $60 to the State of Maryland.

The charges were made by Sgt. C.H. Hinnant, Maryland State Police, following February 4 and 6, 1985, incidents in the parking lot of Par-Matt Lanes, Oakland.

Lewis was represented by Michael Morrissette, an Oakland attorney.

Fire Damages Mtn. Lake Park House Thursday

A Mountain Lake Park house sustained moderate damage as a result of what began as a flue fire last Thursday afternoon.

Firefighters from Oakland were called to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Larry J. Coddington, 614 I Street at 4:47 p.m. and, upon their arrival, summoned assistance from the Deer Park Volunteer Fire Department.

The blaze began in the flue of a wood stove in the kitchen, however quickly spread into the wall and eventually above a dropped ceiling in the kitchen. Heavy smoke was pouring out from under the eaves of the two-story wood frame structure.

Firemen made an interior attack on the blaze, but were hampered when they were unable to enter a room that had been sealed off in the second floor. They eventually gained access to the room from an exterior window that had been boarded up and then finished extinguishing the fire.

Damage was estimated to be in excess of $2,000, with most of it confined to the kitchen area. There was smoke damage throughout much of the rest of the house.

Firefighters remained on the scene until 6:46 p.m. Also called was the Southern Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

A spokesman for the Oakland VFD said that the house was equipped with a smoke alarm, which did function properly.

Mae Artis Celebrates Her 100th Birthday With Family And Friends

On February 13, Mae Artis was 100 years young. The following Sunday, family members and friends gathered together at Goodwill Mennonite Home in Grantsville, where Mae now resides, to help her celebrate.

Mae was born in Preston County, W.Va., on February 13, 1886. Her parents were Lloyd Heckert and Annie Alice Winters Heckert. She had three sisters and two brothers. Her youngest sister, Evelyn Hanna, now lives in Sarasota, Fla.

For several years, Mae taught school in Preston County and attended "Normal School" at Eglon, Terra Alta and Kingwood during the summer. She taught the Heckert School near Horse Shoe Run and the Slaubaugh School near Eglon.

She married Floyd Artis when she was 26 years old, and they lived for several years in Dobbin, W.Va., until purchasing a farm near Eglon, W.Va. This same farm is now owned by her granddaughter and family.

While raising their two sons, Lawrence and Paul, Floyd secured employment with the Celanese Plant in Cumberland. With the help of her two sons and foster daughter, Virginia, Mae took care of the farm while Floyd was in Cumberland.

Cumberland was home to the family for a short time, and in the late 1940's they moved to Mtn. Lake Park. There Mae got reacquainted with an old neighbor, Dessie Harvey, who is now her roommate at Goodwill Mennonite Home, and who also has celebrated her 100th birthday.

Mae has four grandchildren: Catharine Wilson, Sheet; Pauline Beshore, Cockeysville; Patty Varner, Dallaston, Pa.; and Barbara Hauser, Eglon, BIBS FOR THE BABIES — As part of the observance of Girl Scout Week next week, local Girl Scouts will be presenting bibs to all newborn baby girls at Garrett County Memorial Hospital next week. On the bibs is a photo of a Girl Scout with the wording "Future Girl Scout". Taking a peek at a newborn at Garrett Memorial this past week were, left to right, Bernadette Simmons, assistant director of nursing; Lisa Wolford, of Junior Troop 5537; Jennifer Wolford, Melanie McCloud, and Brenda Harvey, all members of Cadette Troop 5027.

Accident Citizens Elect Two Town Councilmen

There were 31 voters in Accident who went to the polls on Tuesday to vote for two councilmen. Elected were Richard Carlson with 31 votes and Fred Kahl with 27 votes. There were two write-in votes for Henry Oester.

Carlson was re-elected and will begin his fourth term of office as councilman. Kahl will begin his first term and will be sworn in by Mayor Wayne Fratz during the April 7 monthly meeting. Councilmen in midterm are Charles Strauss and Hobert Bowser.

Assisting Town Clerk Marjorie Fratz with this year's election were Alice Smith and Mary Zinkan, judges, and Rosalie Frazee and Jean Friend, clerks.

POS Funding for Parks

The clerk reported that the development application and project agreement from the town of Accident for $35,000 to further develop the town parks has been forwarded to the state. The state will fund 75 percent of the development costs through Program Open Space.

The first site is the Accident Community Park-West located at the end of Deakin Street near Town View Village. This site was previously improved for a picnicking area through POS funding. Additional planned projects include developing a sled-riding trail, nature trail, and arboretum; clearing a portion of the Baumann lot for volleyball and horseshoe playing area; installing some playground equipment; and developing additional picnic sites outside the pavilion area.

The second park site is the former Accident Elementary School playground area called Accident Community Park-East. The town has executed an agreement with the Central Garrett Little League to jointly develop a section of this land for a playing field, which will include fencing, a backstop, dug-outs, and restroom facilities. A gravel roadway and parking area will be added. Playground equipment, including an activity center and swings, will also be installed. The existing basketball court will be refurbished.

Upon state approval of the application, the town anticipates construction in the spring and summer months.

Appointment to Planning Commission

Earl Haenftling was reappointed to another five-year term on the Accident Municipal Planning Commission. Haenftling has served on this board since its creation in the late 1960's.

Community Action's Open House

In response to a request from Duane Yoder of the Garrett County Community Action Agency, town officials will be participating in the open house on March 26 for the apartments in the old elementary school. A ribbon cutting ceremony is planned by Community Action for 2 p.m. The apartments will be open for public review throughout the day.

Sheriff's Office Reports Thefts

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week reported two theft incidents which occurred in the area recently.

A breaking and entering theft occurred at a cottage along the Yacht Club Road sometime between January 1 and March 1.

According to reports, someone broke into the cabin of Rajmiel Odinec, Potomac. Stolen items included approximately $1,320 worth of assorted household furnishings. The incident remains under investigation.

A theft was reported by Daniel R. Atkinson, Mtn. Lake Park, on February 24.

According to reports, while Atkinson was away from home between February 21 and February 24, someone stole his 1977 GMC Vandora, which is described as white with a brown interior.

Md. State Police Note Transfers

Maryland State Police Tfc. Gary D. Resh was recently transferred from the McHenry detachment to Barrack C at La-Vale.

Resh has worked in Garrett County for eight of his 12 years as a trooper.

First Sgt. H.W. Graham, local commander of the Garrett County Detachment, said of Resh, "He was an extremely hard worker and dedicated to the varied duties of a Maryland Trooper."

Resh has been replaced by Tpr. Jon B. Dudiak, who transferred from the Berlin Barrack on the Eastern Shore.

Dudiak, 28, has been a trooper for one year, and resides near Bel Air with his wife.

Benefit Dance Slated Sunday

A benefit dance for medical expenses for Kassandra Lynn Moats will be held at the Oakland Fire Hall, rather than Southern High School, this Sunday, March 9, from 1-5 p.m. with music by Southpaw.

A bake sale and cake walks will also be available. Cost of admission will be $2 for adults and $1 for children over 12.

Kassandra was born prematurely on February 11 at West Virginia University Medical Center weighing only one pound, 13 ounces. She is the first child of Albert and Elizabeth Moats, Oakland.

Donation cans have also been placed in many local businesses for the child.

Fourth Union Lenten Service At Oak Park

The fourth in a series of Wednesday evening Lenten services will be held at Oak Park Church of the Brethren, Oakland, on Wednesday, March 12. Beginning at 7:30 p.m., the service will feature Rev. Ray Ursin, of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, as guest preacher. In keeping with the overall theme of Jesus' healing ministry, the Rev. Ursin's sermon will be on the healing of the Ten Lepers.

The Union Lenten services are part of an annual tradition begun a number of years ago. Through the services, the members of the sponsoring congregations are able to focus their attention on special themes during the Lenten season. Since the present series of services concerns the healing ministry of Jesus, offerings received during the services will be used to support the Chaplaincy Program at Garrett County Memorial Hospital and the Hospice Program.

The final service in the present series will be held at St. John's Episcopal Church on Wednesday evening, March 19. The Rev. Verne Leininger will be guest preacher.

Improvements Are Planned For Rest Area On Rt. 48

Hal Kassoff, administrator of Maryland Department of Transportation, announced this week that improvements will be made to the Rest Area-Information Center on U.S. Route 48 east of Friendsville. According to Kassoff, some of these improvements, which are necessary to meet traffic demands, can be done very soon at a reasonable cost. Others, however, will require more time and more money.

"The Rest Area-Information Center has become a popular place for motorists to visit as they enter our state," said Kassoff. "The average daily use of this facility is over six hundred people, with larger numbers during the summer months. Use of this area is expected to increase, particularly when U.S. Route 48 is completed."

Kassoff says that the sanitary facilities in the existing Information Center require immediate attention. The equipment is not adequate and they present a less than desirable sanitary condition. He said that this spring new commodes with an air-assisted cleansing action will be installed.

"The American and Maryland flags should be displayed at this entrance to our state," Kassoff declared. "This spring we will install two flag poles adjacent to the parking area near the Information Center. The existing sidewalk will also be extended along the parking area."

Other problems he cited include the location and space for the current basement sanitary facilities and a handicapped lavratory on the first floor which must be used by both men and women.

He feels that the anticipated use of the rest area will require a separate comfort building. "We have space for a building to the rear of the parking area close to the Information Center. We will soon have a consultant architect on board to assist us with the design of the building," Kassoff said. He added that the plan is to have the design complete by the end of this year so it can be advertised for construction bids in the spring of 1987.

Additional site lighting, necessary for pedestrian security; and to enhance the rest area during night hours, will be designed and installed as soon as possible.

Landscaping is also lacking, noted Kassoff. "Additional landscaping will enhance the visual quality of the area and some planting will be done this spring."

Kassoff said the proposed improvements will be of considerable benefit to highway travelers and will "enhance their image of scenic Garrett County and Maryland."

Police Arrest Area Juveniles

Maryland State Police at the McHenry detachment this week reported the arrests of several local juveniles.

Four male McHenry area juveniles were arrested in the last two weeks for the theft of snowmobiles from Vincent S. Curl on the Gravelly Run Road.

Tfc. C.R. Smith investigated the incident, reporting that three of the juveniles were 15 years old, and one was 17.

Two female juveniles from the McHenry area, one 14 and one 13, were arrested by Tfc. Gary Resh for telephone misuse. The two youths were charged with juvenile delinquency.

A 17-year old male juvenile from the Grantsville area was arrested February 20 for the assault and battery of a second juvenile at a high school dance.

Tfc. R.M. Hershberger investigated the incident.

Gerry L. Bowser, 23, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., was arrested February 25 for trespassing at the Friendsville Amoco.

The arrest was made by Sgt. R. Friend.

Police investigated a ski theft at the Wisp Ski Area on February 21.

According to reports, the skis were the property of Robert J. Fousek Jr., Swanton. Total loss of skis, bindings, and poles reached $420.

A breaking and entering theft occurred recently at the White Oak Inn, Grantsville.

According to police, someone entered the building through the basement window and removed cash and a fishing tackle box. Total loss and damages reached $783.

An assault and battery occurred around 11 p.m. February 9 at the Panorama Motel, McHenry.

According to police, Willie G. Monroe, Jr., 19, Chesapeake, Va., was talking on the telephone when someone in a white pick-up truck began to call him names. Monroe turned his back on the subject, who then struck him with a two-by-four. It is believed that two other subjects were present at the time. Monroe then ran to Garrett Community College, where he was a student.

Although the police were notified, a report was not filed until last week.

The incident is under the investigation of Sgt. R. Friend, who reported that several leads are being followed.

Senator Bambacus Honored By ARC

State Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany-Garrett) has been honored once again by the Washington County Association for Retarded Citizens (ARC) for his contributions to the betterment of life for mentally retarded citizens. A plaque recognizing the District I Senator's efforts was presented at the annual ARC awards ceremony at the Williamsport American Legion last week.

"It is a real privilege and a very special honor to receive this plaque once again," Bambacus commented. "I have the deepest respect for the ARC and its constituents. Their efforts reflect not only the highest standard of advocacy for retarded citizens, but also espouses the basic principles of self-help, dignity, and initiative.

"I am pleased to be able to work with this fine organization to develop legislation affecting mentally retarded persons, and I look forward to continuing a strong relationship in the years to come," the Senator concluded.

Correction Noted

On the front page of last week's Republican, a technical error caused a misprint in the story titled "DNR Officials, Local Yough Reps Hold Meeting." Advisory Board Member John E. Hinebaugh's quote mistakenly said "There is no definite feeling of cooperation between members of this group. The quote, as he said it, should have read, "There is a definite feeling of cooperation between members of this group."

Used Clothing Store Reopening

The Helping Hand used clothing store in Kitzmiller will reopen on Tuesday, March 11, after having been closed during January and February. The store is located on Union Street in Kitzmiller and is open to the public on Tuesdays from noon to 3 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

The store carries a large variety of clothing items for children, women and men. All items are priced inexpensively.

The Helping Hand is a non-profit entity and is run by the churches in Kitzmiller.

Medevac Copter Bill Goes Before Sen. Committee

This is not the first year that legislation has been introduced in Annapolis to upgrade or replace the Maryland State Police medevac helicopters. Two years ago Senator Francis Kelly (D-Balt.) sponsored a bill similar to the one he introduced this year. That 1984 bill never made it out of committee.

The deaths of two state troopers, who died January 19 when their helicopter crashed in a Baltimore park shortly after they delivered a patient to the University of Maryland's shock-trauma unit, prompted this year's legislation which is backed by Governor Harry Hughes.

In a recent news conference in Annapolis, the governor pointed out three reasons why approximately $30 million is needed to purchase the new helicopters which cost $1.7 million each. His first reason was that the existing helicopters are not and cannot be certified for instrument flying. Second, the governor said the larger helicopters are safer from that standpoint as well as the standpoint that they have two engines rather than one. Third, they have a greater capacity to carry patients. "I have seen a couple of them and they can carry two, three or four patients," he noted. Fourth, because the helicopters are larger, the medic has greater access to the patient than he does in the small helicopter.

The major objection which came from Senate committee members during a hearing Tuesday was a proposed increase in license tag fees to fund the purchase of 11 of these new helicopters. Many of those senators feel that the funding should come from the general state account.

Senator Kelly said, "We're fortunate because Maryland is probably the only state in the country that has a statewide emergency medical system. It doesn't make sense to have a system thats not funded properly."

The addition of 11 helicopters would mean the state could provide medevac service to Southern Maryland and expand 24-hour service to the Cumberland and Centreville areas.

Former Faculty Member of GCC Wins Lawsuit

Hugh B. Trimble, a former faculty member of Garrett Community College, won a suit against the college in Garrett County District Court last week.

Judge Jack R. Turney found that GCC must pay the former instructor back salary and hospitalization insurance in the amount of $2,620.86.

Trimble had lodged the complaint against the GCC Board of Trustees late last year.

The former instructor, on April 25, 1985, submitted a letter of resignation to the college stating that he would step down from his position at the end of the fiscal year. On May 20, Trimble took a job with the Maryland Department of Agriculture, while still employed with GCC.

Trimble's paychecks were reportedly discontinued on that same date and his hospitalization insurance was dropped.

Trimble contended that if any responsibilities had been given him after graduation he would have taken them, but he was given none. He had been employed at the college for over nine years.

Peatlands

he hopes there could be a planning group that would be able to save some of the glades for future use. Only Maine and Minnesota have had any state planning for glades and bogs, he said.

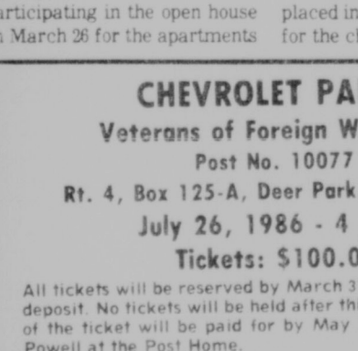
"Worldwide the vast majority of undisturbed peatland is undisturbed because of benign neglect, not because of active protection or preservation," he told the group and concluded by saying that "if we are to use peatlands wisely, we must have some controls."

Maryland Seeks Input On Use Of Overcharge Money

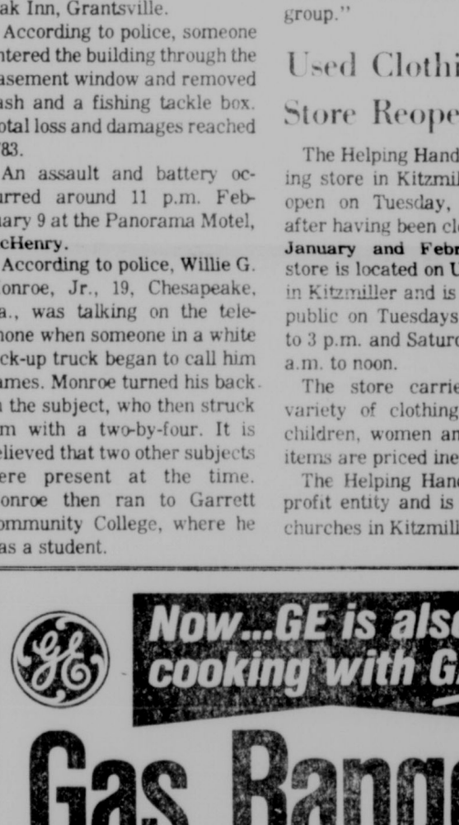
Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says the state will receive about $36.4 million as its share of an overcharge case with Exxon, brought by the U.S. Department of Energy.

Goldstein chairs the Energy Overcharge Restitution Trust Fund which must recommend specific uses for the money. "Under the terms of the settlement and federal law, money from this case must be spent under one of five federally funded programs, including residential weatherization, institutional weatherization, low income energy assistance, state energy conservation programs or state energy extension services," Goldstein said.

The Energy Overcharge Restitution Fund distributed $659,869 in October, 1985, as a result of settlements with two other oil companies.



"Because of the magnitude of the state's share of the Exxon settlement, I have requested an opinion by the Attorney General as the specific guidelines we should use in recommending projects to receive funds from this settlement," Goldstein said.



The trustees of the fund will also hold nine public hearings throughout Maryland between April 14 and May 15, 1986, seeking public input regarding the use and distribution of the funds.

The hearing nearest Garrett County will be on May 8, 3 p.m., in the Allegany County Commissioners' meeting room in Cumberland.

Award Established In Memory Of Carl DelSignore

In remembrance of Buffalo Coal Company President Carl DelSignore, who died last August, the Mining and Reclamation Council of America (MARC) has initiated the "Carl DelSignore Memorial Award."

DelSignore was a charter member of MARC, a Washington-based coal mining association he helped create in 1977. While president of the Bayard, W.Va., company, DelSignore served four consecutive terms as MARC's treasurer and was elected MARC's chairman of the Board in 1982.

A resolution creating this new award was presented to DElSignore's wife, Evelyn, as well as to Buffalo Coal Company president Don Cussins, at MARC's recently held Ninth Annual Meeting at Walt Disney World. The resolution recognizes DelSignore for his role in establishing MARC and recognizes his lifetime of service to MARC and the coal industry.

The award replaces MARC's "Chairman's Award" which was rewarded periodically to outstanding members of the coal industry. The recipient of the first "Carl DelSignore Memorial Award" is Ben Lusk, who was the founder and first president of MARC. Prior to establishing MARC, Lusk served as president of the West Virginia Surface Mining and Reclamation Association (1971-1977) and was also the Assistant Athletic Director in charge of sports promotion at West Virginia University (1968-1971). He is now a coal industry consultant in Washington. Over the years, Lusk had a close business and personal relationship with DelSignore.

"Both Carl DelSignore and Ben Lusk represent the proud heritage of not just the American coal industry, but American industry in general," MARC president Dan Gerkin said. "Carl was an astute businessman who knew how to get things done and was willing to go the extra mile. He proved that in the way he ran Buffalo Coal, in the way he planned reclamation projects and in his numerous civic activities.

"Ben has always met the continuing challenge of the ever-changing coal industry, and has built a successful consulting firm in Washington. Like any coal man, he's aware of the many risks in the business, yet he came to Washington in 1977, and with the help of Carl and others, molded MARC into one of the most respected and influential associations in Washington. It was natural and fitting that Ben Lusk should receive the first 'DelSignore Award.' "

THE CARL DELSIGNORE MEMORIAL AWARD was recently established by the Mining and Reclamation Council of America in memory of the Buffalo Coal Company president who died last August. A resolution creating the new award was presented to DelSignore's widow, Evelyn, and to new Buffalo Coal Company president, Don Cussins, at MARC's recent annual meeting, held at Walt Disney World. Pictured are, left to right, Mrs. DelSignore, Cussins, Bob Spencer, president of Hepburnia Coal Company, and Dan Gerkin, president of the MARC. DelSignore was a charter member of the MARC and the resolution recognizes DelSignore for his role in establishing the MARC and his lifetime of service to it and the coal industry.

Rev. Lindner To Be Installed At St. John's Church

The Reverend Ernest G. Lindner, formerly of Peekskill, N.Y., will be installed as pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, Accident, this Sunday, March 9, at 3:30 p.m.

Rev. Lindner was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., and attended the public schools of New York City. He is a graduate of Brooklyn College and Concordia Theological Seminary. He was ordained into the ministry on June 18, 1962, and has served congregations in South Dakota, New Jersey, Virginia and New York. Pastor Lindner and his wife, Carolyn, have one son, Karl, age 12.

The public is invited to the service of installation, as well as to a reception for the new pastor and his family to be held in the church social hall following the service.

Agencies Host Special Luncheon

Approximately 50 persons representing various local businesses and agencies were guests on Tuesday at an informational luncheon presented by the Private Industry Council, the Western Maryland Consortium, and the Garrett County Economic Development Office. The event was held at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

After introductions by M. Sue Shockey, supervisor of the local Western Maryland Consortium Office, a welcome was extended by Janna Naylor, chairman of the Joint Private Industry Council for Garrett, Allegany, and Washington counties.

Speakers included: Cathie Skaggs, special projects coordinator for the Consortium; Peter Thomas, executive director of the Consortium; Tom Jones, director of economic development for Garrett County; Gladys Anderson, manager of the Garrett County Office of Employment; John Ledden, career employability specialist for the Board of Education; Dr. David Puzzuolli, interim president of Garrett Community College; William E. Aspinall, executive director of the Appalachian Parent Association, Inc.; Butch Haggard, service officer for the Maryland Veterans Commission for Garrett and Allegany counties; Mrs. Shockey; and Connie Meyers, marketing specialist for the Consortium.

Each speaker shared information on how his or her respective offices and agencies provide assistance in the areas of employment and economic development. Guests received an information packet containing specific information about the various programs and services of these offices and agencies.

Events Schedule Now Available

The 1986 Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Schedule of Events is now available from the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council.

This new Schedule of Events lists a wide variety of events and activities to be held in Garrett County throughout the coming year. For a free copy, persons may contact the Deep Creek Lake-Garrett County Promotion Council, Courthouse, Oakland, MD 21550; (301) 334-1948.

Water Analysis, Soil Test Fees Now In Effect

A new fee schedule is now in effect at the Garrett County Health Department, Environmental Division, for water analysis, percolation tests and lot evaluation for septic system permits, according to Edgar Harman, environmental health official.

"Over the years, the Garrett County Health Department has been able to provide water analysis for property owners at no charge," said Harman. "This service was intended to encourage persons to have their water checked to assure that it was safe to drink. There is no other way to determine if a water supply is safe unless it is subjected to a laboratory test."

The health official continued, "However, due to a tight budgetary situation, the Health Department will no longer be able to offer this service free of charge."

There is now a $10 charge for all water samples, effective March 1, that are collected by Health Department personnel and a $5 charge for all samples that are brought into the office.

Harman requested that water samples not be brought in without prior arrangements with the environmental health personnel. They can be contacted at 334-8111 or 895-3111.

The fee for a percolation test and lot evaluation for the septic system permit has been increased from $10 to $20, effective March 1 also. The new testing procedures that have been mandated by the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene will involve more time in performing the deep pit evaluation.

Persons desiring more detailed information may call the Health Department at the numbers mentioned above.

Local Artists Exhibiting At FSC

Artists Donald Cook and Linda Reeves-Cook will be exhibiting drawings and works on paper in two separate shows at Frostburg State College during March at the Roper Gallery.

Mr. Cook is represented in "Seeing/Thinking/Feeling," a touring drawing show from the Maryland Art Place in Baltimore.

Olivia Georgia, director of the Maryland Art Place, said the exhibition "is another attempt to bridge the gap that exists between center and periphery in that it is the first in a series of traveling exhibitions to provide a greater forum for the exchange and circulation of Maryland art."

Included in this show, which will run from March 7 to March 27, will be three of the artist's charcoal drawings, "Nightpoachers", "Passage" and "Hagerstown Pike Near the Miller Farm" from "The Antietam Trinity."

"All of these works," Mr. Cook says, "and especially 'Nightpoachers', reveals my preoccupation with reinventing rural imagery; with making rural painting as vital and as new as its contemporary urban counterparts."

Mr. Cook is on the faculty of FSC, is a resident artist with the Maryland State Arts Council and is originally from Midland. He will also be exhibiting at Garrett Community College in the spring.

Ms. Reeves-Cook will be exhibiting works from her "Subterranean" series at FSC's Lane College Center beginning March 10.

The artist states that her small, abstracted watercolors are "an attempt to synthesize the real, external landscape with the internal landscape of the mind."

Ms. Cook continued, "My use of watercolor is unconventional and has been developed by experimentation over the past several years. It's been a slow and difficult process and I've been reluctant to show until recently, until I was sure where the process was taking me."

The artist acknowledges an indebtedness to the writings of Jung and the work of the early surrealists.

Ms. Reeves-Cook is a member of the faculty at Southern High School. The artists, married last April, currently share a studio in Oakland.

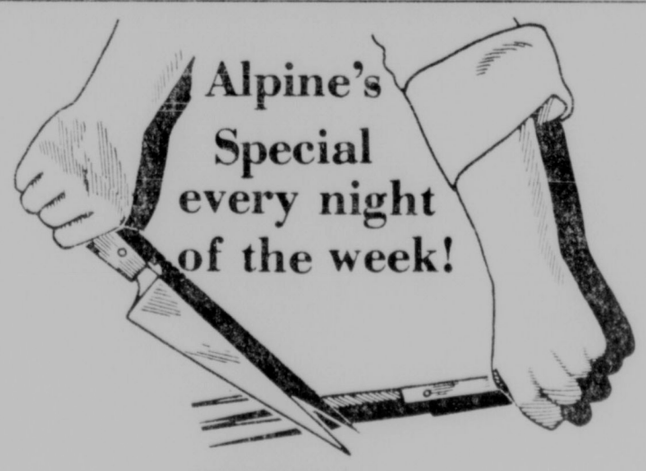
GIRL SCOUT WEEK in Garrett County was proclaimed for March 9-15 recently by the Garrett County Commissioners. The week will include the observance of the 74th birthday of Girl Scouting in the United States on March 12. Present for the proclamation signing by Commissioners Ernie Gregg, Elwood Groves, and John Braskey were, standing left to right, Lisa Masters, Tammy Wolford, and Sherri Wilt, who are three of only six senior Girl Scouts in the county. All are members of Troop 5020, which is led by Betty Wolford and sponsored by My-O-Tire Company. The other three senior scouts are Misty Savage, Eugena Friend, and Lori Friend, all members of Swanton Troop 5053. Their leader is Rita Savage and sponsor is the Swanton United Methodist Church. Some special events planned for the week include window displays in local businesses and libraries, attending church as a group, giving bibs to all new baby girls born at Garrett County Memorial Hospital during the week, and holding a birthday party on March 15.



Head Start To Open New Center

The Garrett County Head Start Program is announcing the opening of a new center in Accident beginning in September of this year.

Head Start is now accepting applications for children who were born in 1982 and 1983. Also, families who have children with special needs or handicapping conditions are encouraged to apply for enrollment in the program.

Applications may be obtained at the old Accident School in the portable classroom on March 14 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. When applying it will be necessary to bring the child's birth certificate and proof of family income in order to complete the application.

Further information and applications may be obtained from the Garrett County Community Action Head Start Office at 360 West Liberty Street, Oakland, Maryland, 334-9431, Ext. 215.

Litigation Craze . . .

We all complain about the high cost of health care. Yet one of the biggest reasons for the rate increases in the past several years is directly related to the "litigation craze" that has taken this nation by storm. Lots of patients, and their attorneys, are getting rich from multi-million dollar lawsuits that are now the norm instead of the exception.

Locally, Garrett County Memorial Hospital's liability insurance premiums doubled this past year and now stand at almost $200,000 per year. The malpractice insurance premiums for our local surgeons have done likewise, and have increased to nearly $40,000 per year. Our family practioners who deliver babies are experiencing a huge increase in their malpractice insurance premiums since so many of the litigation suits across the country are related to obstetrics. The increased cost of these premiums must be passed on to the patients.

The financial problems caused by this crisis is just one effect. Another which is seen more devastating to the future of our health care is that many physicians, especially surgeons and other specialists, are simply closing down their offices and terminating their practices because they can no longer afford such premiums. The physicians who continue must practice "defensive" medicine for fear of litigation. Their intuitive skills, which have no doubt been one of their best tools in the past and have saved lives, must be held in check, because the risk is just too great. Consequently a physician is inclined to order ten lab tests for a patient (all of which must be paid for) instead of two tests.

There is already enough tension associated with practicing medicine and it has been doubled by this black cloud of pending lawsuits that looms over every physician, ready to strike at every decision.

A number of pieces of legislation have been introduced in Maryland in an attempt to ease this crisis and restore sanity in the system. Senate Bill 558 and its companion House Bill 728 call for a variety of reforms in the present tort system, including setting a cap of $250,000 on non-economic losses in malpractice situations, such as in the nebulous area of "pain and suffering." Other bills which address this issue are SB 559 and 560, and HB 726, 727, and 1662.

Certainly persons injured by gross negligence by a physician should have all of their expenses covered by malpractice insurance. But millions of dollars above and beyond these expenses simply are not justifiable.

The bottom line is this: medicine is not an exact science and physicians are fallible human beings. The system in its current form makes the ridiculous assumption that physicians are something other than human and must be punished for making even the smallest error, even if the symptoms and tests indicated that his or her course of treatment was correct. The finest physician in the world, whoever it is, has made mistakes in diagnoses and treatment.

The huge settlements and millions of litigation cases in the works for every questionable call by physicians are destroying the professions of many fine doctors, increasing the cost of health care for all of us, and reducing the quality of overall health care—and it must be stopped!

Resistance to this legislation is strong, especially from attorneys, as one would suspect. We urge all citizens to write or call Senator Bambacus and Delegate Edwards today to voice support for the malpractice legislation package.

Our Turn

More "Fone" Frustrations
by Susan Alvarez

Have you ever answered your telephone in your own home only to hear a voice on the other end asking, "Where are you?" At times like these, I am tempted to say, "Well, actually I am in Nairobi. I'm having all my calls forwarded here until the coup d'etat is over and a monarchy is restored."

Another comment heard frequently when one dials a wrong number is, "Whatza matter? Don't you know this is not the Smiths?" At which point one is tempted to politely, "Yes, I know this isn't the Smiths. I just thought I'd call and ask for them on the slim chance that they might be at your house instead of at their own."

Yet another frustration of which the modern caller is confronted is the dreaded answering machine. "Hi! This is Carol. I'm not at home right now so leave a message at the beep." Someday I'm going to leave this message in a mysterious voice. "The code for the operation is fox-twelve-blue." Another tactic would be to garble the message intentionally and say, "Fantastic news! (Garble) has won the (garble) and you get to (garble-garble).

Finally, there is nothing quite so ego-deflating as the honesty of a child on the telephone. Consider the following actual conversation I recently had with a small child of a friend:

"Hi! Is your mommy home?"

"Who is this?"

"This is Susan."

"I'll tell her who it is but she'll probably be busy."

Or have you ever heard the infamous line, "My dad says to tell you he's not here." Encounters such as this have no reply. One simply hangs up the phone, picks his bruised ego up off the floor and redials Happy Thoughts For The Day.

Note from the other half of Our Turn:—Susan, you know when you called me (a friend) on Saturday. Did Annie (a small child) really say that?

Sullivan Enters U.S. Senate Race

Dick Sullivan, former chairman of Easco Corporation, a Baltimore based Fortune 500 firm, announced his intention to run for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate seat being vacated by retiring Senator Charles McC. Mathias Jr.

In explaining why he is running, Sullivan said, "America faces tough decisions and we need some Senators who understand the consequences. That's why I'm running for the United States Senate from Maryland."

The Republican candidate cited his background as the chairman of the Greater Baltimore Committee, the chairman of the United Way, and a founder of the state-wide Maryland Economic Growth Associates.

Sullivan called Maryland an America in miniature. He mentioned the diversity of its farms, factories and offices that go from the mountains of Western Maryland to the Chesapeake Bay. He promised, "I'll represent Marylanders with all our complexity in the United States Senate."

Sullivan concluded by saying that the major challenge ahead of this country, as he sees it, is to hold to the course that President Reagan has set. "We must modernize and expand and beat the competition in the world. We must remain strong enough to keep the peace. We must educate the next generation of Americans and offer opportunity and progress for them all."

Sullivan is married and has three children. He is facing former White House aide Linda Chavez in the Republican primary.

State Agencies Develop Plan To Serve Children With Special Needs

A plan for developing and expanding services for Maryland children with special needs has been devised by the state agencies that serve these children and their families.

The "Interagency Plan for Children with Special Needs" is a cooperative effort among the Department of Human Resources, Department of Health and Mental Hygiene, the Maryland State Department of Education, the Office for Children and Youth, the State Coordinating Council and child care advocates.

Among the children covered by the plan are those who are emotionally disturbed, developmentally disabled, delinquent and educationally handicapped children, as well as victims of abuse and neglect.

It is estimated that more than 10% of Maryland's 1.16 million children under age 18 will have one or more chronic problems requiring special care from the state. To insure that the State's response is well coordinated and properly administered, Governor Harry R. Hughes requested the State agencies that serve children to compile the plan, as part of his Children and Youth Initiative of 1985.

The plan calls for developing a continuum of services for children with special needs, including primary prevention activities (services which seek to anticipate the occurrence of a problem); early intervention services (early identification and treatment of problems), evaluation services, in-home and community services (services provided to a child with a special needs who is living at home) and substitute care services (alternative living situations such as family foster care and residential treatment).

The Plan says that in the next two years, the State must give priority to expanding alternative education, respite care, day care, intensive family services, specialized foster care and family support programs. In addition, mental health services for children are a high priority for expansion. The Plan also recommends actions on behalf of "uncovered children." i.e. those who now receive inappropriate or no services.

A permanent Interagency Planning Committee for Children (IPCC) is being established to assure that the Plan is implemented and that coordinated planning, budgeting and service delivery for children continues.

"The Plan represents a major step forward in the planning and coordination of services to children in Maryland," said Delegate Nancy Kopp, Montgomery County, who strongly supported the development of the Plan during the past year. "It is the first time the major state agencies serving children have worked jointly to develop a common agenda for children with special needs," she added.

"The important next step is to implement the recommendations of the Plan," said Frank Farrow, executive director of the Social Services Administration, and Chairman of the Planning Committee. "We are all aware that the real benefit of this plan is when it yields new help to families and children."

Copies of the plan may be obtained from the Social Services Administration by calling 576-5255.

Mishap

he was operating broke through the ice and began to sink into Deep Creek Lake.

Police said Carl P. Rebele, 57, was traveling east on Glendale Road in a 1985 Buick Century. As the vehicle neared the Glendale Bridge, it began to skid on the snow and ice. Rebele lost control of the vehicle, and it struck a guardrail on the left side of the road, became airborne, and crashed into the lake. Rebele was able to escape through the passenger window.

The vehicle was totaled.

Tfc. R.M. Hershberger investigated the mishap, charging Rebele with traveling at a speed too great for conditions.

A single-vehicle mishap Wednesday resulted in a Bloomington man being charged with driving while under the influence.

According to police, Richard Lynn Bittinger, 28, was westbound on Route 135 in a 1975 Dodge Charger.

Bittinger missed a left turn and ran off the road, striking a fire hydrant.

Tfc. D.G. Riggleman investigated, also charging Bittinger with negligent driving.

Eight Killed In Traffic Mishaps

Law enforcement agencies throughout the State of Maryland reported nine motor vehicle traffic fatalities during the week ending March 2. Of these fatalities, six were drivers, one was a passenger and two were pedestrians. Preliminary investigation of these accidents revealed that alcohol was a contributing factor in three deaths, speed ir four and driver error in six.

Traffic fatalities in Maryland through March 2 total 110, compared to 88 during the same period last year.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

I am writing to question yet another apparent poor decision that has developed at Garrett Community College: the hiring, under clouded circumstances, of another new administrator. After all the furor over firings, resignations, out-of-county students and numerous lawsuits over it all, one would think you folks would learn. Again the rules have apparently been circumvented and public's confidence has again fallen. Can't you folks do anything without mismanagement and attendant controversy?

Twenty years ago I was an optomistic supporter of the concept of Garrett Community College. However, my enthusiasm has warned over the years, and especially so recently. In this I think I am representative of the community as a whole. We, the taxpayers, still are behind the college, but are dismayed by the constant poor decisions, bickering and disgusted by a number of selfish faculty and administrators who appear to be far more interested in their own narrow interests than in helping provide an education. The published proposals of expansion are ludicrous in the light of continuing inept management of what already exists.

For goodness sake, gentlemen (and ladies), let's "wise-up" before we lose local control of this valuable institution.

To the Editor:

I recently participated in a EMT recertification class in Oakland at Southern Rescue Squad Hall.

The class was taught by Mary Ellen Lichty. This was my fourth recert. class and I was annoyed that I had to travel to Oakland to take the class when I am a member of Northern Garrett Rescue Squad.

This turned out to be the most interesting class I've ever taken. There were 30 enrolled in the class from Northern and Southern Squads, but no one wore red & white or blue & gold. We weren't asked which side of the bridge we lived on. No one cared. We were just 30 people with the same thought in mind, trying to pass another state final in order keep our certification.

Mary Ellen presented the lessons in a manner that was easy to understand. She gave us little clues as how to remember certain valuable and necessary information. My thanks to her for making this class special.

Southern members could not have been more gracious and hospitable. The friends I made the past seven weeks I will treasure long after the testing is over. A valuable lesson can be learned from this: People working together for other people, can make the impossible a positive fact.

To the Editor:

We, as citizens of Garrett County, feel compelled to write this letter. We hope it will awaken citizens of our county to the importance of supporting your local businesses.

Numerous citizens have been going to neighboring Allegany County to do their business. Most of this business is readily available in this county. We think the often "forgotten" Garrett County should come first.

When the schools need a donation for the band, football team, and etc., where do they go first? "Yes," your local businesses. When they want an ad for the school yearbook or newspaper, where do they go first? "Yes," your local businesses. When various other organizations in the county need donations where do they go first? "Yes," your local businesses.

Well, citizens of Garrett County, where would we be today if we had not the support of our local businesses? Wake up, citizens of Garrett County, before it's too late. Please support your local groceries, car dealers, doctors, banks, colleges and etc. We must work together as citizens and support our businesses which, in return, support us.

People of Garrett County

To the Editor:

I would like to commend Joanne Ashby for her letter that was published by your newspaper last week, in the February 27th printing of The Republican.

I do feel that the system needs to take a hard look at itself. It who meet these drivers, before legislation was introduced to increase the amount of the fine for anyone killing a black bear. But what about the recent light sentencing of the person responsible for the accident on New Germany Road? I hope that this is not overlooked, as changes also need to be made. I feel that not only MADD would benefit from a greater enforcement of penalties against drivers that are intoxicated, but all of us who meet these driver, whether on, or alongside the road.

Sincerely,
Donna Beitzel

view of the meeting by saying, "It opened up some lines of communication and now we're in a better position to express some of our concerns."

Braskey continued, " Until there is some stability shown at GCC, I think it is our fiscal responsibility to put a lid on the spending. One year ago I said we should not spend one more penny than our legal responsibility allowed on the college until things are straightened out and I still feel that way."

Braskey said on a positive note, "We have assurances from the State Board for Community Colleges that they do not intend to close the college or merge it with another college at this time."

He then concluded, "I hope this does get the college on the right track and that we can show the state that we can run our own college."

Katharine Smith, chairman of the GCC Board of Trustees, was contacted this morning about the meeting. She stated that the Annapolis meeting allowed for all the participants to share their roles in an open fashion.

"Various means of communications were discussed in order to enhance the cooperative manner in which all parties involved will work to further the mission of goals at GCC," said Smith.

Smith also restated that the Board of Trustees has no written plans for the building of a new Oakland facility. "That issue keeps cropping up and we're not sure why. We felt we made our position clear on that matter much earlier," she reiterated.

On the concern of the public image of GCC, Smith said, "The board has discussed the image of the college. We are aware that the image has not been perceived by some of the public as good, or not as well as it ought to be."

She stressed, "We are aware of it. We are working on it. Our attending yesterday's meeting is clearly one of the steps we are taking to correct the image of GCC."

Commissioner Gregg said yesterday that the commissioners as well as the SBCC expressed very adamantly to everyone present at the meeting that "what is important is the image the college presents."

He stated, "It doesen't matter what they're doing or not doing . . . they are not conveying to the media or the public a good image."

Gregg also stated that Bambacus and Edwards echoed the commissioners' feelings about the college. "We are all hearing the same things . . . we all receive letters, telephone calls and comments from our constituents. Therefore, we all have to assume there are some problems at the college. And as funding mechanisms, it's our responsibility to check out these allegations. We would be remiss as county and state officials if we did not. Our first concern has to be for the taxpayers who fund GCC."

Also in attendance at yesterday's meeting was Samuel Massie, chairman of the SBCC.

"I feel the meeting was a very positive one," he said. "We discussed various issues at the college . . . really all aspects of the roles of all these present at the meeting."

The chairman continued, "I feel better about the situation than I have in the past. I'm much more hopeful now that all involved can make it a better school and that it will continue to be a meaningful part of the community. Naturally, a school that small is going to have problems, but if all concerned cooperate, those problems can be alleviated. There was a definite feeling of cooperation yesterday by everyone."

Delegate Edwards contacted The Republican just before press time and made the following statements on the Annapolis meeting.

" It was a good meeting...the first time we've all gotten together to discuss the various roles of those involved. We talked about how things should flow and what each one can and can't do in regards to the administration and funding of the college," he stated.

The delegate continued, "There was also an open and frank discussion about the perception by citizens of the situation at Garrett. From where we (legislators) sit it has been negative in the past year. The Board of Trustees has to show a positive attitude. If something is not accurate, then they must correct it immediately. They have to open the lines of communication and they have to start now. It's time to forget the past and move the college ahead. GCC must continue to function as a vital part of the Garrett County community."

The books this week have several things in common. One of these things is the strong, vivid characters. Characters such as Allan Archibald and Sophie Willoughby. The first book, Organized Crimes by Nicholas Von Hoffman, features Allan Archibald, an inquisitive, complex sociology student in the 1930's. His life changes drastically when he sees a gangland slaying of a reporter. From that point on, his life becomes entangled with the organized crime syndicates of Chicago. This story gives a very shocking portrayal of Chicago; a city falling to pieces at the grasp of organized crime. And of one man who becomes captivated by the way the crime syndicate works.

The second book is by the relatively-unknown author of Csardas. The book is The Summer of the Barshinskeys, by Diane Pearson. This book is excellent! The story centers around the working class of England. A very stout, orderly family—the Willoughbys—lives their life in England. Enter the chaotic Barshinskeys, and the two families will ever be linked in friendship and love. The characters of this story are vivid and real-to-life. There is stylish Lillian Willoughby, loving Sophie Willoughby, bold Father Barshinskey, and manipulative Galina Barshinskey. This story will enthrall you as the two families spend one summer—and many years of living—intertwined.

Next, the thrilling book, The Miracle by Irving Wallace; and a Joyce Carol Oates' Angel Of Light.

NEWS from THE MARYLAND FOREST, PARK & WILDLIFE SERVICE

Trees, trees, trees. Pine trees, roadside trees, shade trees, fruit trees, wildlife den trees, hardwood trees, forest trees, Christmas trees—Have you ever stopped to consider the many trees that exist and the values and benefits that we receive from them?

Garrett County Project Forester Ernie Metz tried to imagine life, as we know it—without trees and forests. He asks that we stop for a moment and consider the far reaching effects of a resource we take so for granted. Much of our forest land is owned directly by individual holders of small tracts and together they provide many benefits—sometimes unknowingly. For example, about one-third of the land in the United States is covered by trees and other plants that receive, store and supply most of our usable water. Forest vegetation stabilizes soil and helps keep local climates from getting extremely hot or cold. Forests also reduce noise and air pollution, and convert carbon dioxide into the oxygen we breathe. These seemingly intangible benefits when added to the many products obtained from our woodlots point to the need to managing our woodlands for the future.

Forest products include many things beside paper, lumber and building materials. Songbirds, wildlife and recreational opportunities represent forest products too. Proper management can increase the availability of areas for backpacking, fishing, picnicking and hunting. Bark, as a forest by-product, is a source of many chemicals and is used for mulches and soil conditioners. By-products from wood also end up as vitamins, plastics, explosives, photographic film, toothpaste and pharmaceuticals, to name a few items.

Take a moment to consider where you would be without trees and forests, managed wisely for today and tomorrow. Contact the Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service office at the Mt. Nebo Work Center if you have forest management questions or need forestry assistance.

SHS Students Participate In WVU Honors Band

Four students from Southern High School were among the nearly 250 high school musicians from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia who participated in the West Virginia Invitational High School Honor Bands Festival. The free concerts were held February 21 and 22 at the WVU Creative Arts Center.

Pictured above, left to right, are the students who participated in the concerts, beginning with Kimberly Rosenberry. She played the flute for the concert, but also plays piccolo for the SHS concert and field bands and tenor saxophone for the stage band. Kim also participated in the Frostburg State Honors Band concert and while in Southern's band has received awards for best musician her freshman and sophomore years. She is the daughter of Charles and Verla Rosenberry, Oakland.

Chrissa Kisner, was accepted to the WVU Honors Band for her abilities on the clarinet. She also plays the saxophone for the SHS stage band. Chrissa also participated in the Frostburg State Honors Band recently and was named best freshman musician last year. She is the daughter of John and Carla Kisner, Deer Park.

Jim Comfort was selected by the WVU Honors Band for his talents as a multi-percussionist. During the concert he played drums. He also plays the saxophone and clarinet. Jim has been named to Who's Who in Music, received a U.S. National Band award and was named to the All-American Band Hall of Fame. He has served as marching percussion captain for two seasons with the SHS marching band and was a percussior arranger and instructor for Central Preston Marching Band last summer. He has enlisted in the delayed entry program for the U.S. Marine Drum and Bugle Corps. He is the son of James Sr. and Christine Comfort, Oakland.

Betsy Thayer was chosen to play in WVU Honors Band concert for her ability on the bass clarinet. She also plays the multi-toms in the field band and the electric piano in the stage band. She serves as bass clarinet section leader in the concert band. Betsy has been named to Who's Who in Music, the All-American Band Hall of Fame and received a U.S. National Band award. She is the daughter of Bryan and Virginia Thayer, Oakland.

taken was Linda Frantz, daughter of Darrell and Betty Frantz, Friendsville, who is a junior active in Woodmen of the World, Garrett County Roadrunners camping club and Typing For Fun. She attends Blooming Rose United Methodist Church and enjoys aerobics and volleyball. She plans to attend the Sawyer School in Pittsburgh, Pa. to become a medical secretary.

The Ways and Means Committee has sponsored several activities and will be in charge of the Dance-athon and dance to be held in April. Funds will be used for the honors banquet which will be held May 16.

YOUGH VALLEY INDIANS

by William Nedrow, reporter

The February 24 meeting of the Yough Valley Indians was called to order by Becky Meyers, president. Roll call was answered by eight members and four leaders. Regina VanSickle, secretary, read the minutes from the previous meeting.

Becky reminded members to bring their Hoard's Dairyland cow judging sheets to the next meeting. Jack Teats, leader, said that Achievement Night would be on April 12 at Southern High School. The club decided to sell candy bars from America's Best Candy Co. in Alabama to raise money for sweatshirts or T-shirts to wear to the fair in August. The club discussed the possibility of going to King's Dominion in Virginia for our club trip. The club decided to sell slab wood for $20.00 per load to raise money for the treasury.

The next meeting will be March 10 at 7:30 p.m.

After the meeting, Pat Bowser, leader, showed members things that were missing or needing to be corrected in their record books before they were turned in on Friday, February 28.

Northern's December Students Of The Month Honored

Northern High School recently recognized their December Students of the Month selected on their academic and extracurricular achievements.

Pictured above, left to right, are the students chosen for that award. Matthew Eggleston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lancaster, Friendsville, is a junior and plays varsity football and basketball. He is also a member of the Letterman's Club and the band. He attends Selbysport United Methodist Church and plans to attend college.

Stephen Dyche, also a junior, is the son of James and Carolyn Rephann, Grantsville. He is a member of the Literary and Logic Games Club and is a junior fireman with the Grantsville Volunteer Fire Department. He enjoys running, hunting and three-wheeling and is a member of the Cherry Grove Church of the Brethren. He plans to attend college or a technical school for drafting or electronics and hopes to be a computer technician.

Jennifer Golden, daughter of Ed and Sonya Golden, Grantsville, is a sophomore. She is a varsity cheerleader, a member of the Student Council, chairman of the Public Relations Committee, a member of the Cheerleading Club and president of the Grantsville 4-H Club. She attends St. Ann's Catholic Church and plans to attend college and major in business communications and become a corporate lawyer.

Melissa Bittinger, a senior, is the daughter of William and Patty Bittinger, Grantsville. She serves as secretary of the Student Council and the senior class, is a member of the Computer Club, the chorus and the school newspaper, The Viking. She plans to attend Frostburg State College in the fall to major in elementary education.

Marla Brenneman, also a senior, is the daughter of Allen and Virginia Brenneman, Accident. She is in the FFA Club and enjoys crafts. She attends Glade Mennonite Church and teaches first and second grades in Sunday School. She plans to work with children after graduation.

Amy Thomas, not pictured, is a freshman and is the daughter of David and Carolyn Thomas, Accident. She is an officer of the NHS Ski Club and also enjoys swimming and archery. She is a Jehovah's Witness and plans to be happy and make others happy.

According to the 1980 census, there are 370 more females than males in Garrett County.

Northern's Ways And Means Committee Making Money

The Ways and Means Committee of Northern High School has been busy this school year in finding ways to make finances for Student Government projects.

Pictured above, left to right, are the members of the Ways and Means Committee. Bill Bishoff, son of George and Joyce Bishoff, Friendsville, is a sophomore active in 4-H. He enjoys tennis, skiing and helping on the farm. His goal is to attend college and major in engineering.

Becky Meyers, daughter of Larry and JoAnn Meyers, Friendsville, is active in the Northern branch of SADD (Students Against Drunk Driving), the Friendsville 4-H Club and Lodge No. 135 Woodmen of the World. She was the Friendsville Summer Fest V Queen and is the tenth grade Hugh O'Brian Foundation sponsor. She enjoys outdoor activities and her ambition is to major in computers and business to eventually obtain a job in that field.

Dianna Vitez, chairman, is the daughter of Vaughn and Phyllis Vitez, McHenry. She is a sophomore and is active in Student Council and the Silk Squad. She is a member of Zion Lutheran Church, Accident, and enjoys swimming and playing the piano. She hopes to attend the University of Maryland and become a lawyer.

Cindy Bosley, daughter of Clay and Linda Bosley, Friendsville, is a freshman and is active in Student government, the Jobs Club and her church. She is interested in psychology, foreign countries and the arts. She plans to learn more about the various career fields before making a decision about her future.

Would You Believe . . .
this is a modular home?
IT'S TRUE! This is our Vista
It comes complete in four sections. But wait—that's not all! This modular has a cathedral ceiling in the living room, four skylights, exposed beams, and large glass openings. There's a contemporary island kitchen, a den, nursery, two full baths plus a garden tub.
There's more skylights on the second floor and oh—so much more it's hard to tell you everything in such a small space.
So call or visit us and let us tell you more about our Vista.

Jerry Moyer, Oakland; James, Philip and Steve Margroff, Keith Harman, Paul Thomas and William Schefft spent Friday and Saturday loading the furniture and household belongings of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest G. Lindner and son, Karl, Peekskill, N.Y. The Lindners were Monday overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Thomas and were Tuesday luncheon guests of Mrs. Esther Margroff. They have moved into the parsonage at St. John's Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. Installation of Rev. Lindner as pastor of St. John's will be held this Sunday, March 9, at 3:30 p.m., followed by a reception in the church basement. Everyone is invited to attend. There will be no worship service or Sunday School session that morning at St. John's, but members are invited to attend the Sunday School class at Zion Lutheran Church, Accident, at 9:30 a.m. and the worship service at 10:30 a.m. The midweek Lenten service on Wednesday, March 12 at Zion Lutheran Church, will begin at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

The Ladies Aid Society of St. John's Lutheran Church, LCA, will be held on Tuesday, March 11, at 7:30 p.m., instead of the regular meeting date. The midweek Lenten service on Wednesday, March 12, will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

A special program is planned for the community on Palm Sunday, March 23. A covered dish dinner will be held at St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Accident, at 5:30 p.m. for which sign-up sheets should be signed. Lenten music will be presented at Zion Lutheran Church, Accident, at 7:30 p.m. that same evening. Anyone wishing to sing in the choir should attend the practice at Zion on Sunday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m.

A class in preparation for baptism for about ten young people and their parents from the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Oren Bender. Pizza was served to the group by the Benders. The Youth Group from the church met at the Bender home on Friday evening for a hymn sing.

Spending Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Reichenbecher were Mrs. Mary Zinkan and Mrs. Freda Moser, Accident; Mrs. Charles Ringer, Mrs. Elsie Glass, Mrs. Alfreda Friend, Mrs. George Hetz and Mrs. Gertrude Glass. They are members of the Ladies Aid Society of St. John's Lutheran Church, LCA, and spent the day quilting a quilt top that was made and donated by Mrs. Luceil Duckworth, McHenry, and has been sold to benefit the ladies aid.

TERRA ALTA

Falcons Meet

The Terra Alta Soaring Falcons Club met Thursday, February 20. Jeannie Zinn called the meeting to order.

Discussion was held on how to spend the money raised from selling candy bars. It was decided to buy new mattresses for the 4-H camp. The club sent a Valentine card to their 4-H Club Flood victim family. Devotions were read and Joe Stiles gave the lesson. A Dance Weekend will be held March 14-16. Alan Davis and Rob Lindsey plan to attend. It was voted to spend $50.00 for flowers and shrubs for around the community sides. The 4-H Roundup will be held March 22 at Bruceton High School.

The meeting adjourned and candy bars were passed out for members to sell. The next 4-H Club meeting will be held on March 20.

Births Announced

Mr. and Mrs. John A. DeLauder, Terra Alta, announce the birth of a daughter on February 17 at Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland. She weighed five pounds, 11 ounces and has been named Madonna Norrean.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. George A. DeLauder and maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Hans Goehl, all of Terra Alta. Maternal great-grandmother is Mrs. Nora Patridge, also of Terra Alta.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Chorn, San Diego, Calif., announce the birth of their first child, a son, born January 13 at the San Diego Naval Hospital.

The mother is the former Pamela Wilhelm. Maternal grandmother is Virginia Wilhelm, Terra Alta. Maternal great-grandmother is Myrtle Rumer, Bruceton Mills. Paternal grandparents are Stella and Will Chorn, Las Vegas, Nev.

Valentine Dinner Held

A valentine dinner was held at the Faith United Methodist Church in Cranesville, hosted by the men of the church for their families on February 16. Prepared and served by the men, the dinner consisted of ham, vegetables, salads and desserts.

Scout News

The postponed Troop 88 Court of Honor, originally planned for February 11, has been rescheduled for March 11. All former troop leaders and scouts are invited to attend.

The dinners will begin at 5:30 p.m. All attending are to bring a covered dish, dinnerware and silverware. Drinks will be provided. The Court of Honor will begin at 6 p.m.

Troop 88 was reorganized in November 1985 and has been on two camping trips, a Klondike Derby and a troop "Good Turn" at the Mary Ruth Flood Distribution Center.

All boys 11 years of age and older are invited to join the scouts. Persons may call Paul Shogren, 789-6987, for further details.

Brad Yoder Leads Roanoke Team To NCAA Divisional Tournament

When Roanoke College junior Brad Yoder is introduced before the start of every game as being from Accident, Maryland, it usually brings a smile to the faces of the Virginia college fans.

As co-captain of the 1985-86 Maroons, Yoder, a graduate of Northern High School and Garrett Community College, has made a "yeoman's contribution" to the recent success of the team, according to his coach, Ed Green.

Roanoke recently defeated Washington and Lee University, 68-53, to send them to the NCAA Division III South Atlantic Regional this weekend in East Orange, N.J. The Maroons made it to the 32-team tourney with a lot of help from 6-4 Yoder, who averaged 16 points in the three Old Dominion Athletic Conference Tournament games.

Yoder made a perfect six of six free throws against Eastern Mennonite to seal an 87-83 victory in the quarterfinals. Against Emory and Henry, he sunk six of eight from the floor and made good on three of four free tosses.

In the championship game, Yoder sparked the team early by hitting his first four shots. Overall, he shot 65 percent from the field and 81 percent from the foul line during the tournament, which earned him selection to the ODAC All-Tournament team along with teammates James Pennix and Charles Small.

It was not only his scoring that led Roanoke to the NCAA tournament, Coach Green stated. "Brad is fine young man who has helped provide the leadership that our extremely young team needed," he said.

Green was responsible for recruiting Yoder from Garrett Community College, although it was one of his teammates that Green was really there to observe. "We were looking at Doug Shiflett as a strong, big man who could help us," Green said, "and we saw Brad and could not overlook his shooting touch." Shiflett is now Yoder's teammate and roommate at Roanoke, as they both made the journey west to play for one of the top NCAA Division III teams in the country.

While at Northern High School, Yoder led the area in scoring with 729 points for a 30.4 per game average. He went on to play one year at Loch Haven College in Pennsylvania and then played his sophomore season at Garrett.

"It was a privilege to coach Brad and be part of his development as an individual and a player," stated Northern High coach, Harv Speicher. "His most outstanding characteristic to go with his great statistics is his super attitude. I've never seen him show any temper against the opponent or officials and he sets a great example for the other players.

"Our players accepted their roles and they knew he was the player we had to go to if we were going to win," Speicher continued. "Once we got him the ball, he put it in the hole. And most of his shots were from the 12 to 18-foot range with three people around him."

In his first season at Roanoke, Yoder has averaged 10 points and 3.4 rebounds per game. Details of the Division III were unavailable.

Yoder is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmer Yoder.

ORDC Tourney. Awards Ceremony Set For Saturday

The fifth and sixth grade Oakland Rotary Dribblers Club, SCCP Championship Tournament and awards ceremony will be held this Saturday, March 8, at the Southern Middle School Gym.

Quarter-final action is slated to begin at 9:15 a.m. when the top seeded Irish (13-3) take the last seeded Terps (3-12) and second seeded UCLA (10-5) challenge seventh seeded UNLV (3-11). Quarterfinal action continues at 9:45 when fourth seeded Duke (10-6) takes on the fifth seeded Hoyas (9-7) and the third seeded Heels (9-5) are matched up against sixth seeded WVU (4-12). Semifinal action will follow at 10:15 when the winners of the Irish vs. Terps and Duke vs. Hoyas contests meet each other and the Heels vs. WVU winner takes on the survivor of the UCLA vs. UNLV match-up. The final two teams to survive the eight team single elimination tournament will meet for the championship at 10:45. The awards ceremony will follow at 11:45. The general public is invited to attend.

The following is a list of the leading scorers:

Brett Rice (Irish 236), Jeremy Bosley (Duke) 162, Garth Glotfelty (Hoyas) 143, Dave Kurtz (Heels 137, Britton Martin (UNLV) 100, Ritchie DEWitt (Heels) 88, Nathan Dixon (UCLA) 68, Ed Martin (Terps) 59, Ingrid Carlson (UNLV) 53, Jamie DeWitt (Irish) 45, Diane Kordiban (WVU) 41, Brian Shawl (WVU) 39, Amy Rice (WVU) 37, and Donnie Dintaman (Duke) 37.

Coit Custer (Duke) 36, C.J. Getson (Duke) 35, Mike Stewart (Terps) 30, Kathy Gibson (WVU) 28, Dave Biser (Hoyas) 28, Clinton Harvey (Hoyas) 26, John Sines (UCLA) 23, Mike McGoldrick (Terps) 19, Jack Spiker (Heels) 19, Brian Messer (Irish) 12, and Jason McClung (WVU) 11.

Southern Jayvees End Season With Another Thriller

Yogi Berra's famous quote "It's not over till it's over" proved applicable once again for the 14-5 Southern Jayvee basketball team as they recorded one of their patented come-from-behind victories over the Bruce Jayvees on Friday, 51-38. Seven of the Rams 14 victories were won in a similar fashion.

The Little Rams were behind by as much as nine points late in the second quarter when they came charging back on steals by J.R. Bosley and Bobby Bernard to cut the deficit to three, 22-19, by halftime.

Bosley scored nine of his 17 points in the third quarter, when Coach Dave Bender's cagers outscored Bruce, 15-10, and took a 34-32 lead. The Rams pulled away in the fourth period behind the defense and rebounding of Scott Finch (three steals, eight rebounds) and Mike Ruff, who scored eight of his 11 points in the final chapter.

Steve Mertz led a much improved Bruce squad with 12 pts.

The Rams' final record ranks them among the top three jayvee teams in the area, along with Fort Hill (18-2) and Bishop Walsh (13-6). Southern split with both Fort Hill and B.W. in the regular season.

After a 3-3 start, the Rams won 11 of their remaining 13 games. "This team was extremely fun to watch from the stands, but they were very hard on coaches 'tickers,' stated Bender. "This team was also very courageous in being able to deal with sickness and injury, and still be able to muster the will to come from behind against all odds and be as successful as they were. Our staff is proud of them and I'm sure they'll provide Ram fans with some exciting basketball in years to come."

Southern featured a balanced scoring attack, with five players scoring over 100 points on the season. They were J.R. Bosley, 177 points (10.4 ppg); Bobby Bernard, 170 points (9.4 ppg); Jeff King, 162 points (9.0 ppg); Richard Evick, 116 points (6.1 ppg); and Mike Ruff, 114 points (9.5 ppg).

Bosley also led the team in steals (41) and was second in assists (37), free throw pct. (65%), and field goal accuracy (45%). Bernard led the team in total rebounds (123) and King was first in assists (45) and free throw accuracy (67%).

As a team the Rams held their opponents to 42 points per game (37% field goal pct.) while scoring 47.5 ppg and shooting 40% from the field. "Most of the time these guys would put the team ahead of themselves," Bender said, "there's also no doubt in my mind that people like Sean Hershman, Stan Lambert, Jack McCauley, Chris Helbig, James Burns, Dave Burdock, Randy Evick, Scott Clever, and Scott Watson contributed as much to our succes as the Bosleys and the Bernards" stated Bender.

Statisticians for the J.V. team were Erica Carlson, Johnna Marple, Stacy Haines, Shelli Terlizzi and Leigh Knotts. Jayvee cheerleaders were Lisa Schmidt, Laura Buckley, Bonnie Ruston, and Marcie Polce.

Bender was assisted by Barry Lauden, who has been with the SHS basketball program for four years as a volunteer assistant and Bill Ewing, who this year returns to the SHS coaching staff after assisting Tom Bosley in 1977-78.

In three years Bender's teams have won .611 pct. of their games.

Huskies Whipped By Valley Before Losing In Tournament Opener

A final regular season loss on Friday, followed by a first round Region I Class C tournament loss Tuesday, concluded the 1985-86 season for the Northern Huskies, who recorded a season record of 8-15.

The loss Friday evening was at the hands of top-seeded Class C Valley, 70-55, in Accident and the tournament defeat was to Mount Savage, 78-46, at Allegany High School.

John Smith paced the 15-7 Black Knights against the Huskies with 19 points, 11 of which he netted from the foul line. Chris Winner added 12 points and Frank Garlitz finished with 11.

The Huskies were led by Mike Robeson and Bill Torres, who each hit 12 points.

Northern stayed close to the Knights throughout the first half, down 19-14 by the end of the first quarter and 37-32 at halftime, but Valley increased their advantage to 53-42 by the conclusion of the third period and the Huskies never managed to close the gap.

Foul trouble is what really cost the Huskies the game, as they out-gunned Valley from the floor, 22-17. The Knights were given 44 opportunities at the free throw line, however, and made good on 36 of them. Northern connected on nine of 16 foul shots.

In the preliminary game, the Northern jayvees were defeated 57-40. John Harmke led the Huskies with 16 points, while Fred Sloan paced the winners with 22 points.

Heavily favored Mount Savage had all they could handle from the Huskies in the first half on Tuesday night, as Coach Harv Speicher's squad was down by only three, 36-33, at halftime.

Mike Robeson provided the spark for Northern in the first half, when he scored 18 of his game-total of 20 points. Several of his points came near the end of the second quarter, when the Huskies out-scored the surprised Indians, 10-2, in a two-minute spurt.

But the Indians answered with a 10-2 spurt of their own in the third quarter and assumed a 46-35 lead at the 5:23 mark. Brian Hoppert, who finished with a game-high 26 points for Mount Savage, netted 12 of them in the third period.

The Indian defense limited the Huskies to just 13 points in the entire second half, while their offense went on to record a 24-point fourth quarter and win going away. It was the Indians' 14th win in 22 games.

Robeson was the only Husky to reach double figures. Scott Williams netted 16 points and John Lohnas added 10 for the Indians, who will now face second-seeded Hancock in the Region I tourney. Mount Savage is seeded third and the Huskies were ranked sixth.

Rams Conclude Season With Loss To Bruce

The 1985-86 campaign for the Southern Rams came to a close on a disappointing note Friday evening in Oakland when visiting Bruce came from behind to defeat Coach Oren Yoder's team, 72-57. The Rams finished with a 9-12 record, while the win improved the Bulldogs' slate to 12-10.

Southern raced out to a 12-2 advantage in the early going, as the Bulldogs simply could not get rolling. However, by the end of the first quarter, Bruce had narrowed the Ram lead to four, 18-14.

The teams played evenly in the second period and the Rams held a 34-29 advantage at halftime.

However, the Bulldogs came back to out-score the Rams in the third period, 23-11, and in the fourth period, 20-12, for the win. Southern was nipped by Bruce earlier in the season, 53-57.

Dave Shaw and R.L. Fisher paced the winners with 20 points each, while Scott Costilow chipped in with 10 points.

Danny Jackson led the Rams and all scorers with 21 points on ten buckets and one of three free throws. Jon Reneslacis finished with 14.

The Rams lost the contest at the free throw line, where they converted only three of seven shots, compared to a 22-for-28 effort by Bruce. Southern held a 27-25 edge in field goals.

Southern Girls Mash Bulldogs

The Southern High girls varsity basketball team wrapped up its season last Thursday evening by mashing host Bruce, 54-32. Coach Don Stemple's squad concluded the campaign with an 11-9 record.

Jackie Noe, Kendra Stemple, and Tricia Heatherman led a balanced offensive attack for the Lady Rams, as they each finished with 12 points.

Southern was never seriously threatened by the Bulldogs, holding leads of 14-8, 32-9, and 52-20 at the quarters, before Coach Stemple played his reserves throughout the final stanza.

Stacy Nash paced Bruce with 11 points. It was the Bulldogs' eighth loss against 12 victories.

Dr. J.O. Yoder To Be Speaker At Special Dinner

"This is the Lord's dong and it is marvelous in our eyes," affirms Dr. J. Otis Yoder, president of Heralds of Hope, Inc. and speaker on "The Voice of Hope" and "Hope for Today" radio program, broadcast in 99 countries.

Dr. Yoder, along with Mrs. Yoder, Jerry A. Roth and Mr. and Mrs. A. David Myers, will tell the story of the growth and global outreach of these 18 years at a complimentary dinner to be held March 20 at 6:30 p.m. at the Grantsville Fire Hall. Admission is by reservation.

Following dinner, a multi-media production will be shown depicting the world-encompassing ministry of Heralds of Hope. The presentation has as its theme the well known song "The Ninety and Nine," featuring tenor soloist David J. Brunk and illustrated by slides. Among the slides will be photos of the audience of 20,000 Dr. Yoder preached to in Ibadan, Nigeria, in early December.

Opportunity will be given through a "Hope Promise" and a free-will offering to support the continuing ministry of Heralds of Hope.

"The Voice of Hope" is heard each Sunday at 2:30 p.m. over radio station WFRB, AM/FM, Frostburg.

Local coordinators are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brenneman, telephone (301) 895-5660. Persons wishing to attend the dinner are urged to call for reservations as soon as possible.

Mae Artis

W.Va.; eight great-grandchildren; and two great-great grandchildren.

Her husband, Floyd, died in 1952; son Paul died in 1958; and son Lawrence died in 1969. Her foster daughter, Virginia, is also deceased.

At the birthday celebration, family members enjoyed reminiscing with Mae about the stories she told them when they were young, and the good times they had with her while they were growing up.

They remembered that she often talked about picking chestnuts in the fall when she was a girl to buy clothing and shoes for school. Another relative, who was the same age as Mae's sons and went to Aurora High School with them, said he was "one of Mae's boys." He said that Mae never speaks ill of anyone. "The most she ever says is, 'I just don't understand why he would do something like that,'" he commented.

The same person says that the church is very important to Mae, and for many years St. John's Lutheran Church in Red House was a big part of her Christian life.

Her eldest granddaughter, Catharine Wilson, told a story that she remembered from her youth. "When I was about five years old, Grandma took me fishing in a creek on her farm. She cut a branch from a tree for a pole. Twine was used for a fishing line and a safety pin became a hook. With that homemade equipment we caught three small fish which Grandma fried when we got home. What a memorable fishing experience!"

Today, Mae enjoys visits from her friends and family. She likes to receive mail, write letters, and read, especially the Bible.

In a poem that great-granddaughter Vicky Lin Kous wrote to honor Mae on her birthday, it shows what an example she is to her family. As the last verse says: "Mae Artis, a friend to many, my loving great-grandmother. A woman of true virtue, but most of all, a God-fearing Christian. What a heritage!"

Something To Think About

R. Mark Durst

DIRECTOR

NO HIDDEN COSTS

All of us have had the experience of opening a bill and being staggered by the amount. This is often because what we THOUGHT we were paying has been considerably augmented by "hidden costs"—taxes, service charges, surcharges, interest charges, etc.

The great majority of funeral directors adhere to a professional code of ethics which includes provisions for seeing that this doesn't happen. In order to eliminate those hidden costs, you will find that these funeral directors are explicit about the costs of goods and services. In addition, once the family decides on the kind of service desired, the funeral director should provide a written document for the family to review and approve.

This should include a description of the service and the price. Any supplemental charges for merchandise or service should be listed. It should also make mention of any sums which the funeral director will advance on behalf of the family, e.g. newspaper notice.

Some Things Are Alike . . . Hearing Aids ARE NOT

So before buying a hearing aid:

1. Have your hearing tested by a Clinical Audiologist certified by the American Speech Language Hearing Association.
2. Be thoroughly informed about the results of your hearing test, and undergo an evaluation to determine if a hearind aid will be beneficial.
3. Know that not all hearing aids will help you—a hearing aid must be chosen specifically for your needs.

Schrilla Beachy, Curtis Eaby Wed In September Ceremony

Schrilla Lynn Beachy and Curtis Eugene Eaby were united in marriage on September 21, 1985, at the Maranatha Assembly of God Church, Grantsville. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Robert P. Eaby and Rev. Paul A. Moran, Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David O. Beachy, Grantsville. The groom is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Robert P. Eaby, Waldorf.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a taffeta gown trimmed in Alencon lace and accented wih pearls. It featured a high neckline, long straight sleeves with puffed shoulders, and a ruffled lampshade skirt which flowed into a long train. The bride's fingertip length veil was held in place by a wreath of lace flowers. She carried a cascading bouquet of lavender roses, gardenias and greenery.

The maid of honor was Vicki Kamp, Grantsville, friend of the bride. Pam Logue, Waldorf, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Kathleen Eaby, Waldorf, sister of the groom; and Mary Rifenberg, Waldorf, Priscilla Beachy, Grantsville, sister of the bride, served as flower girl.

The maid of honor was attired in an orchid matte taffeta gown featuring a one-piece open portrait ruffled collar, puffy sleeves and a full wrapped tulip skirt which was sashed and bowed at the waist. She wore shoes which were dyed to match the gown.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids wore huckleberry matte taffeta gowns in the same style as that of the maid of honor. The attendants carried cascading bouquets of lavender roses, miniature white carnations tinted in huckleberry, and greenery. Each wore a comb of silk roses in her hair.

The flower girl wore an orchid floor-length gown with short puffy sleeves. In her hair, she wore a wreath of matching silk flowers and streamers. She carried a basket of lavender rose petals.

Serving as best man was the groom's father. Ushers were Lundy Logue, Chris Tutka and Robert P. Eaby, Jr., brother of the groom; all of Waldorf. Ringbearer was Paul A. Moran III, Waldorf, cousin of the groom.

The groom was attired in a white Dynasty Collection tuxedo and a single lavender rose boutonniere.

The groomsmen and ringbearer all wore silver grey Dynasty Collection tuxedos with a single lavender rose boutonniere. The ringbearer carried a heart-shaped pillow made by Mary Kamp, mother of the maid of honor, as a gift to the bride.

Music was provided by Darla Nielsen, who served as both organist and vocalist. Songs included: "All In His Own Sweet Time","The Wedding Song" and "The Rose".

The groom sang "Lady", accompanied by his sister Kathleen Eaby, as the bride walked up the aisle.

Amy and Lori Glotfelty, Grantsville, cousins of the bride, handed out wedding programs and birdseed packets. Cindy Lowdermilk, Friendsville, registered guests.

A reception, catered by Shelby Gable, was held at the Grantsville Fire Hall following the ceremony. Sharon Glotfelty, aunt of the bride, served the cake, and Nancy Glotfelty, aunt of the bride, served punch and coffee.

The bride, a graduate of Northern High School and West Virginia Career College, Morgantown, W.Va., is presently employed as a medical secretary for Physical Therapy Specialists, Fort Washington.

The groom is a graduate of LaPlata High School, and is a fulltime student at Charles County Community College, LaPlata. He is employed by Southern Maryland Hospital Center, Clinton, in the medical records department.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the groom at the Casselman Restaurant. The bride was the guest of honor at two showers. One was given by Marlene Beachy, mother of the bride, and Vicki Kamp. The second was given by Kathy Eaby, mother of the groom; Pam Logue and Kathleen Eaby.

Following a wedding trip to the Will O' the Wisp Resort, McHenry, the couple took up residence in Accokeek.

Miss Myers To Wed Mr. Yost

Fred William and Fern Myers, Markleysburg, Pa., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Dawn Fern, to Stephen Hall Yost, son of Charles Peter and Doris Yost, Morgantown, W.Va.

The bride-elect is a 1974 graduate of Uniontown Area High School, a 1978 graduate of West Virginia University with a baccalaureate degree in dental hygiene and a 1982 graduate of Fairmont State College's nursing program. She is employed as a registered nurse in private practice ophthalmology in Morgantown.

Her fiance is a 1967 graduate of Morgantown High School and a 1971 graduate of West Virginia University. He is employed as the hospital representative in West Virginia for Sandoz Pharmaceuticals.

The couple plans to marry on Saturday, August 30, 1986, at Drummond Chapel United Methodist Church in Morgantown.

Linda Maffett, Wesley Eisentrout Exchange Vows In September Event

Linda Susan Maffett and Wesley Mark Eisentrout were united in marriage on Saturday, September 28. The double-ring ceremony was performed by Pastor John Schrimshire, of the Mountain Lake Independent Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Maffett, Oakland. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Eisentrout, Morgantown, W.Va.

Vocal selections included "Savior Like A Shepherd," "Walk Hand in Hand" and "Whither Thou Goest." Mrs. James Mosley was soloist, accompanied by Miss Jennifer Geer, pianist.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father. She was attired in a gown of white posh and taffeta, with accenting white satin ribbon. She wore a matching hat with a half-length veil. Her bouquet consisted of white roses and carnations with lavender and mint azaleas intermixed.

Brenda Heath, friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Kim Maffett and Lorie Maffett, sisters-in-law of the bride. The flower girls were Beverly and Ann Sebold, cousins of the groom.

The attendants' dresses were of spearmint posh and taffeta, accented with satin ribbon. The dresses were made by Mrs. Grace Fraley.

Serving as best man was David Everly, friend of the groom. Neil Maffett and Mark Maffett, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Bulletins and bird seed packets were available for each of the guests. Mrs. Edna Sebold, aunt of the groom, registered guests. Mrs. Janet Kiddy, aunt of the groom and Mrs. Karen Lewis, friend of the bride, served the cake. Mrs. Wilda Fitzwater made the mints and Mrs. Helen Heath served the punch.

The three-layer white cake was decorated with an intricate white icing lattice-work heart and blue birds. The cake was topped with the traditional bride and groom figures. The cake was baked by Mrs. Margaret Sanders.

The bride and her mother made the silk flowers, arranged the bouquets, boutonnieres and corsages.

The bride is an 1984 graduate of Southern High School. She attended Garrett Community College during her senior year of high school as an ECAP student; (Early College Admissions Program) majoring in business administration. She plans to continue her education in Virginia.

The groom is a 1982 graduate of University High School, Morgantown, W.Va. He is a 1985 graduate of Garrett Community College, with honors, and an 1985 graduate of Diesel Institute of America. He is employed by Perry Engineering, Winchester, Va.

The couple currently resides at Route 1, Box 209, Winchester.

Millie L. Meeks, W. Dale Hutzel Wed During November Ceremony

Wedding vows of Millie Loughry Meeks and W. Dale Hutzel were solemnized on November 22, 1985, at 7 p.m. at the Rush Baptist Church, Friendsville, by the Rev. Ray Perkins.

Doug Gaither, Accident, served as organist. "The Rose" was chosen as the prelude to the "Bridal March", with bridesmaids Trina Hutzel, Accident, sister of the groom, wearing a floor length taffeta and chiffon burgundy gown and Glenna Machado, Modesto, Calif., sister of the bride, weearing a light blue taffeta and chiffon floor length gown.

The bride chose Vonda Moreland, Oakland, her sister, as the matron of honor. She wore a floor length taffeta and chiffon burgundy gown.

Flower girls included Daneille Meeks, daughter of the bride, and Nikkol Moreland, niece of the bride, both of Oakland. Their dresses were both pink floor length taffeta and chiffon and were designed and made by the bride.

Branden Moreland, Oakland, nephew of the bride, served as the ringbearer. He wore a light blue suit and carried the rings on a pillow of pink taffeta, covered with off-white lace which was heart shaped and designed and handmade by Mrs. Leona Propst, Oakland, grandmother of the bride.

The groom wore an off-white western style suit with a light blue shirt and dark blue tie. His boutonniere included one pink and one light blue rosebud of silk, trimmed with an off-white ribbon of lace.

Royce Moreland, Oakland, and Glenn Frazee, Friendsville, brother-in-law of the bride and grandfather of the groom, served as ushers. They wore dark blue suits.

Woodrow Mills Sr., College Park, uncle of the bride, was best man. He wore a light blue suit.

All attendants wore corsages and boutonnieres of pink, dusty rose, and blue mixed silk flowers accented with baby's breath, which were made by the bride.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Loughry, Oakland. The bride's gown, which she made, was floor length pink taffeta covered with off-white lace. The banded high neckline of taffeta with a lace yoke met the deep V-line bodice and was emphasized by a wide lace ruffle. The fitted waist line joined the full gathered skirt and was accented by a wide ruggle at the bottom, forming a ruffled bustle of lace. White sandal high heel shoes served as something old, the dress as something new, a diamond necklace belonging to the bride's sister, Vonda, was something borrowed, and a hand bouquet of pink, burgundy, white and blue silk flowers served as something blue.

Mrs. Loughry, the bride's mother, wore a street length dusty rose dress and Mrs. DeWitt, the groom's mother, wore a street length light blue dress. Mrs. Phyllis McCarty, Friendsville, served as guest book attendant.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Gorman hall. The bride and groom presented an engraved champagne glass to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Loughry, Mrs. Dorothy DeWitt, Mr. and Mrs. Royce Moreland, Glenn Frazee, Mrs. Glenna Machado, Woodrow Mills Sr., and Miss Trinia Hutzel as a wedding memento. The bride baked and decorated a three-tier wedding cake with two stairways connecting another two-tier cake and a single-tier layer. All cakes were off-white, trimmed with pink, burgundy and blue roses. Mrs. Helen Sheyka, College Park, and Mrs. Doris Frazee, Friendsville, cut and served the cake.

The couple spent a three-day weekend honeymoon in Grafton, W. Va.

Following the honeymoon, they returned to their home at Route 3, Oakland.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mrs. Helen Sheyka, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Mills Sr., all of College Park; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Loughry, Worton; Mrs. Glenna Machado, Modesto, Cal., Mrs. Glenna Ringer and family, Bruceton Mills, W. Va.; and Mr. and Mrs. Russel Simmons and son, Thomas, W. Va.

Miss Teets Becomes Bride Of Mr. Coddington In August Event

Lorie Rae Teets and Michael Craig Coddington were united in marriage on Saturday, August 3, at the Mtn. Lake Independent Baptist Church. The ceremony was performed by Pastor John Scrimshire.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Teets, Oakland. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Coddington, also of Oakland.

Music selected for the ceremony included "My Only Love", "If", "Woman/Man That I Love", and "The Wedding Song". Youth of the church sang a special number during the ceremony. Mrs. Phyllis Maffett was organist.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was attired in a gown of shimmering lace. The collar was decorated with seed pearls and sequins. The long sheer lace sleeves came to a point to enhance the feature of the gown. The princess waist fell to a full skirt which was fully layered with lace. The hoop gave the gown its fullness. The skirt fell to a full cathedral-length train and the veil was a wreath adorned with tiny white roses and azaleas which held the floor length veil of bridal illusion. Her bouquet was composed of roses, azaleas, baby's breath, and a tail of calla lilies, accompanied with satin streamers.

The bridesmaids all wore pink gowns and carried bouquets of pink and burgundy roses with wreaths to match.

Treva Bernard, friend of the bride, served as maid of honor. Amy Moyer, friend of the bride, and Rebecca Coddington, sister of the groom, served as bridesmaids. Jolon Strawser, friend of the bride, served as junior bridesmaid, and Becky Weaver, friend of the bride and groom, served as the flower girl.

Brian George, friend of the groom, served as best man. Danny Helmick and George Futch, friends of the groom, served as ushers, and Andy McKenzie, cousin of the groom, served as ring bearer.

Donna Symons and Michele O'Conner registered names and distributed programs.

A reception was held following the ceremony at the Deer Park Fire Hall. Paul and Katie Merrill, with the help of Jesse Skipper, catered the event. Mrs. Martin baked, decorated, and served the white and pink and burgundy rose cake which featured a light fountain of pink shimmering water. Michele O'Conner also served punch.

The bride hosted a brunch at her home in honor of her attendants prior to the wedding.

The bride was the guest of honor at showers given by friends and her parents.

Out-of-town guests were from Virginia, West Virginia, and Baltimore.

The couple now resides in Manassas, Va.

Ross, Krause Exchange Vows In Double-Ring Ceremony February 1

Betty Louise Ross, Accident, and David Andrew Krause, Hagerstown, exchanged marriage vows on Saturday, February 1, at St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Hagerstown.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Dorothy Bowser, Accident. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Krause, Hagerstown.

Escorted to the altar by Roger Bowser and given in marriage by her parents, the bride was attired in a full length white satin gown embroidered with satin roses. She carried a bouquet of white and lavender carnations and baby's breath.

Pastor Brake performed the double-ring ceremony. Matron of honor was Diana Krause, sister of the groom. Bridesmaids were Suoy Swope, friend of the bride and groom, and Christy Krause, sister-in-law of the groom.

Serving as best man was Michael Krause, brother of the groom. Ushers were Jeff Horning and Rob Walkins, friends of the groom.

A reception followed in the church fellowship hall.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School and is employed by View Street Diner in Hagerstown. The groom is a graduate of South Hagerstown High School and is employed by Federline in Frederick.

The Krauses are residing in Hagerstown.

Celebrate Birthday And Anniversary

Harry Ark, a native of Amboy, W.Va., and now a resident at Dennett Road Manor Nursing Home, Oakland, celebrated his 91st birthday on January 27, and three days later, he and his wife, Mae, observed their 69th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Ark was one of eight children and spent most of his life in West Virginia as a farmer and woodsman. He married the former Mae Hemrick in 1917 and the couple moved to Maryland in 1951, where he continued to farm and drive a milk truck. He also worked as a custodian for the Garrett County Board of Education until his retirement.

The Arks are the parents of two daughters, Mrs. Hazel Dilsworth, deceased, and Mrs. Mildred Knotts, Oakland. They have seven grandchildren, including Leona Wilt, Streetsboro, Ohio; Helen Blizzard, Virginia; Edward and Albert Dilsworth, Maxine Gower, Shirley Schrock, and Delores Bee, all of Oakland. They also have 19 great-grandchildren and four great-great-grandchildren.

The Arks have been members of the Crellin Assembly of God Church for 35 years. Mr. Ark has resided at the nursing home since March 1984 after suffering a stroke.

Ringers To Observe 60th Event

John Darwin and Ruby Evelyn Ringer, Accident, will observe their 60th wedding anniversary on March 14.

Mr. Ringer is the son of the late Joseph and Lelia Ringer, who resided in Albright, W.Va. Mrs. Ringer is the daughter of the late William and Dicie Jefferys, who were also residents of Albright.

The Ringers are the parents of three sons: Junior Ringer, Albright; Jimmy Ringer, McHenry; and the late Elwood (Woody) Ringer. They also have seven grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

The Ringers' address is Star Rt. 1, Box 35-A, Accident.

In Loving Memory

Of John L. Fitzwater, Jr., on his birthday, March 7.

AWAY

He lived and breathed the rare splendor of the air,
He walked upon the new mown grass with a very special flair.
His robust frame so full of life,
His voice so firm and calm,
Enjoying the sweet nectar of the earth,
Along with me, his wife.
He built a life so very fine;
Upon family, church, and students in his care,
This wonderful love of mine.
He traveled on through a fabulous expanse of time and space to a measureless domain,
Ne'er to tread this earth again.
His brief life touched many.
His lovely memory shall never fade,
As time swallows each fleeting day,
He's not forever gone,
He's only away.

His Wife, Helen

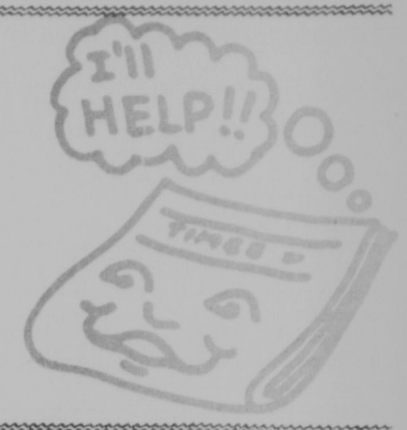
National Newspaper in Education Week, held each year in March, is a project sponsored by the American Newspaper Publishers Association and the International Reading Association. NIE Week's aim is to promote solid reading habits among students and to introduce teachers and administrators to newspapers as an effective teaching tool.

Thousands of school systems in the United States, Canada, and throughout the world now regularly participate in Newspaper in Education programs. For teachers and students who use newspapers in school, NIE Week is the time to celebrate the newspaper as an instructional tool of exceptional value.



The activities on this page are primarily language arts exercises that deal with the newspaper itself. Some of the areas covered are: differentiating fact from opinion, understanding what makes news, reading for pleasure—and how the newspaper is a good source for doing so, writing clearly and concisely, and how to read and interpret such things as editorial cartoons and advertising.

This page of information has been a cooperating effort between the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation, the International Reading Association, The Western Maryland Reading Council, and The Republican Newspaper.

Service to its readers

Newspapers provide services to readers by printing advertisements, advice articles, recipes, TV schedules, stock market reports, movie reviews, consumer advice columns and much more.

Make a list of service items found in today's newspaper. Explain why you consider the items you have listed to be service items.

What makes news?

Every day newspaper editors must decide which stories make news, out of all the possible items they have for the newspaper. Following are things that editors take into account when deciding if something is newsworthy.

Is it timely? Events are timely if they have just happened; events that have happened in the past but that are affecting us now or in the future would also fall into this category.

Is it nearby? An event that is local—in our city or state.

Is it important? An event that affects many people.

Does it involve well-known names? An event that involves famous or familiar people, places or things.

Does it indicate progress? The latest information in science, education, medicine, archaeology or other fields.

Does it indicate conflict? Disagreements between people, countries, businesses, etc.

Is it of human interest? Events that touch emotions, that have to do with the "ups and downs" of life.

Is it of an unusual nature? Events that are out of the ordinary or unexpected.

Choose several articles from today's newspaper. Determine which categories from those listed above explain why the articles are in the news.

1. Write the headline of the lead story on the front page of today's newspaper.
2. What is the date of the newspaper you are reading?
3. Where did the lead story take place?
4. How many pictures are on the front page?
5. How many stories are on the front page?
6. Divide the front page stories into: local _____ state _____ national _____ international _____ How many stories are there in each category?
7. How many pages are in today's newspaper?
8. Is there an index on the front page? _____ If so, on what page (s) will you find the editorials?
9. Find the logo or flag on the front page. Describe it.
10. What is the price of your newspaper?
11. Look at the index. How many sections does today's newspaper have?
12. A byline tells who wrote a story. Count the bylines on the front page.
13. A dateline tells where the story originated. How many datelines are there on the front page?
14. A jumpline tells where to turn to continue the story. How many jumplines are there on the front page?
15. Find one new vocabulary word on the front page.

Reading for fun

Many items in the newspaper are there to provide reader enjoyment. As you read today's newspaper, make a list of articles and other items that you consider entertaining. Be prepared to explain your choices.

Just the facts

A news story should tell the reader what happened, and should not reflect the opinion of the reporter. Reporters who are doing their jobs properly depend on other people and on a variety of sources for the information they include; they try to report all sides of an issue.

Critical newspaper readers should look at several items to assess the objectivity of a news story.

Sources—Critical newspaper readers might ask themselves how many sources have been used in the story, who has been interviewed, whether the sources are reliable and if there are other sources that might have been used. (Note: The word "source" is often used to refer to the people who have spoken with reporters, although the sources reporters use also might be printed accounts of information.)

Quotations—A critical newspaper reader notices if quotes are direct or paraphrased, if the person quoted is being specific or vague and whether the person quoted is thought to be an expert on the subject.

Vocabulary—A critical newspaper reader looks at the exact meaning of words used in the story. Some words have different degrees of meaning, such as, "said" and "exclaimed," "angry" or "furious." Often readers do not read carefully and therefore misunderstand the story. For example, there is a big difference between the words "arrested" and "convicted."

Choose a news story to examine. Where possible, list the sources of information. Find an example of an indirect and direct quote. Identify several vocabulary words that could be said to have different degrees of meaning. Discuss how your own prejudices might influence this activity.

Sports—far and near

Sports pages in a newspaper generally cover a wide variety of events, both local and national. The writing done for the sports pages differs somewhat from writing that appears elsewhere in the newspaper. Sports stories are descriptive, and often contain idioms or phrases that have particular meaning to sports fans. Logos, insignias or team nicknames also appear frequently in the sports pages.

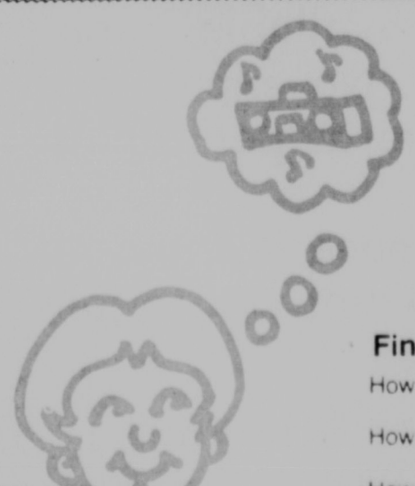
Make a list of team nicknames or abbreviations found in today's sports section.

Using the newspaper, find three uses of idioms or phrases that apply to sports. In your own words, tell what the idioms or phrases mean in the context of the story. Then define the literal meaning of the idioms or phrases you have selected.

Editorial cartoons

Editorial cartoons are opinions expressed through pictures. Editorial cartoonists use caricatures to portray well known people and symbols to illustrate ideas. For example, former President Jimmy Carter was frequently drawn by editorial cartoonists with a broad, "toothy" grin. Newspaper artists often use Uncle Sam to depict the U.S. government, a donkey to stand for the Democratic Party and an elephant to represent the Republicans.

Clip several editorial cartoons and answer the following questions:



What symbols are used in the cartoon?

Who is the cartoonist?

What is the subject of the cartoon?

Describe the caricatures used; name the people they represent.

What opinion is being expressed?

Advertising

Advertisements provide income for the newspaper, consumer information for readers and potential buyers for advertisers.

Most newspapers have three kinds of advertisements: national, retail (or display), and classifieds. National ads advertise products or services that are available throughout the country. Retail ads advertise products at a specific place of business—within your own city. Classified ads usually are placed by individuals or businesses, and are classified according to the item, service or job being offered.

Find an example of each kind of advertisement:

How many national ads can you find in the front section of today's newspaper? _____

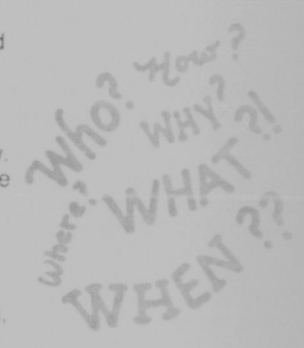
How many retail ads can you find? _____

How many pages of classified ads are in today's newspaper? _____

How many ads use color to attract your attention? _____

Fact and opinion

Critical newspaper readers know how to tell fact from opinion. Many opinions are based on fact, while others may be the product of a person's long-standing system of values and beliefs.



Look through today's editorial pages and make a list of facts and opinions. Try to explain how you decided which was which.

News style—Who, What, When, Where, Why and How

A "straight" news story is written in an inverted pyramid style. That means that the story's most important facts are presented at the beginning, with details following. As you read through a newspaper story, you will probably find that the details are presented in descending order of importance.

A straight news story should have a lead paragraph that answers the questions who, what, when, where, why and how. If the story answers these questions, readers will easily get the main idea of the story. A story's headline also should reflect the main idea.

Choose three news articles. Fill in the chart below for each article. Answer the questions who, what, when, where, why, and how. (You may not get the answers to all these questions, but you should be able to tell the answers to four or five of them.) What is the main idea of each story? Compare the main idea with the headline.

Editorials

Editorials contain the opinions of the people who manage the newspaper. Editorials are often written to support or endorse a candidate for political office; they may criticize and sharply disagree with the actions of a public figure or agency; editorials may defend the newspaper's own policies—or they may simply teach, praise or entertain. As you read editorials, keep in mind that they are opinions. You may agree or disagree with them, accept or reject them; however, they should help you form your own opinions.

Look at two newspaper editorials. List the headline, topic and opinion expressed.

Letters to the editor

A letter to the editor is the expressed opinion of a newspaper reader. People often write letters to the editor in response to something they have read in the newspaper, or they may write to express their feelings about a matter they consider important. When you write a letter to the editor, you are exercising your right to freedom of speech.

Learn to express your opinion by writing a letter to the editor. Choose a topic. Outline the facts relating to the topic, and then decide how you feel about the subject you have chosen, based on the facts you have uncovered. By using your notes, write a letter to the editor of the local newspaper. Be sure to sign your letter.

Newspaper columnists

You may have noticed regular columns in your newspaper—short articles by a columnist that often run on the same page or section in each issue (say, the page opposite the newspaper's editorials) and generally appear two or three times each week. People who write columns are usually free to express their own opinions on a variety of topics, although columnists generally develop their own area of expertise, as well as their own writing styles. Many columnists do their work for a company, called a syndicate or group, that then sells the column to your newspaper and to others around the country.

List the columnists found in your newspaper. Note the syndicate or group that they write for. Also list the topics found in their columns. Classify their "value" to readers: that is, do they entertain, persuade or inform?

Feature writing

Feature stories, unlike news stories, are not limited to news events. Features can cover a wide variety of topics and often deal with the emotional or human side of a story. The lead in a feature story usually "grabs" the reader's attention, and often adds interest to the article. Many times the lead is descriptive, often it provides background information and occasionally it asks a question or provides a contrast. Details of the story build up to the climax.

Locate two feature stories in the newspaper. Determine the type of lead used, and list the main ideas for each story. Make your own list of topics for feature stories.

Interpretation

Part of a newspaper's responsibility is to interpret the news for its readers. Interpretation can be found in articles labeled "Analysis" or "Commentary" and in editorials, letters to the editor, editorial cartoons, etc.

News stories supply the facts; interpretations give opinions based on the facts.

Using the newspaper, locate three articles, columns or editorials that interpret the news. Note the topics of each and summarize the point of view expressed. Do the articles deal with past or present issues?
